Miss Mildred Dunlop of Taftville will spend the vacation week with friends in Providence, R. I.

The final training period for the class of 1928 will end Friday. Junior divisions 1 and 2 will begin training on May 7th, immediately after the week's vacation.

The normal school was the stage setting for part of the film An Ill Wind that is being produced for St. Paul's Episcopal church by the Cinema Service company of Hartford. G. F. Jackson of Norwich was director. One scene was taken in the social science room. Normalites who were starred in this scene were: The Misses Rose Goldblatt of Baltic, Margaret McCarthy of New London, Sylvia Johnson of Baltic, Genevieve Fisher of Salem, Ruth Furlong and Loretta Higgins of Norwich, Miriam and Rose Cohen of Julia Dytko of New London, Mildred Willimantic, Florence Gadbois and Dunlop of Taftville, Corinne Elie of Baltic and Julia Daley of Waterbury.

Miss Ardath Leveille of Putnam was given a surprise party Wednesday evening by the girls staying at the Donovan house.

Miss Marion Cleland, of Springfield, secretary to Principal George H. Sherman, will entertain guests from Plainfield over the week end.

Miss Katherine Beare instructor in art will spend next week at her home in Taunton, Mass.

Junior report cards came out today.

ROAD SOCIETY

Elias Miner of Westerly was in this vicinity several days last week.

Mrs. Agnes Lathrop of Norwich has been the guest of her brothers, R. O. Fernando and George Wheeler, the past week.

Mrs. George Readleton has returned to her home after spending the winter in Norwich and Willimantic.

Mrs Dwight Tibbetts, Mrs. Agnes Lathrop and Miss Louise Wheeler spent Monday afternoon at Maple Lawn.

Mrs. William Austen of Westerly spent Wednesday with Mrs. William Billings.

Mrs. Edmund Burdick attended the meeting of the Social Corner held in Grange hall at North Stonington last week.

Mrs. Seth N. Williams, Miss Priscilla Loper and Miss Grace D. Wheeler attended the meeting of Anna Warner Bailey chapter, D. A. R., in Groton Thursday, where reports of the congress at Washington were heard.

The name William Eugene has been given to the son born to Mr. and Mrs. William B. Ryon (Priscilla Billings).

Mr. and Mrs. John Harkness of Potter Hill spent Sunday at Edmund Burdick's.

The birth of a daughter Wednesday to Dr. and Mrs. Neville Usher is of local interest, as Dr. Usher is a grandson of the late Rev. John O. Barrows of Norwich Town, for a number of years pastor of the Road Congregational church.

"good morning, motor"

"MORNING, Boss. Just a minute, please, before you step on the button. I need a drink. I wish the family would remember that I am not air-cooled. Otherwise okay. Bill changed the oil yesterday and that good gas you have been buying lately keeps me as free of carbon as a demonstrator's motor. My pep and pick-up will please you today, Boss."

"BACHELOR" MOTORS AGE RAPIDLY

HABITUAL DINERS-OUT are bad insurance risks.

So are motors which are habitually fed anything and everything in the way of gasoline and motor oil that the roadside offers. It's a short life and not always a merry one for the unfortunate owner.

This company operates a fleet of several thousand trucks and automobiles. They all lead regular lives and get nothing but Socony Gasoline and Socony Motor Oil. Some of them have run more than 100,000 miles and are still on regular duty.

We have been refining for fifty-four years. We test our products thirteen times before they reach your engine. This ensures uniform quality at all times and wherever you may buy it.

Nothing succeeds like a good habit. Prolong the life of your car by standardizing on Socony.

DANIELSON

NOT TO NAME GRAND JURY UNTIL THIS MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, April 27—Not until Sheriff Charles A. Gates makes his report in the superior court at Willimantic Friday morning will the personnel of the grand jury summoned to hear the presentment of evidence against Roland G. Lalone and Albert G. Raymond, held at Springfield, Mass., as fugitives from justice in Connecticut in connection with the death of State Officer Irving H. Nelson, be made public.

This afternoon Sheriff Gates declined to disclose the name of anyone of the 18 individuals, including an attorney and a physician, who will constitute the grand jury. As far as he would go was to state that the grand jury will be representative of everyone of the 15 towns of Windham county, and to intimate that as late as 3 o'clock this afternoon this grand jury was not quite complete.

At Putnam, State Attorney Howard C. Bradford stated that he had no knowledge whatsoever of the grand jury personnel, that matter, he said, being entirely in the hands of Sheriff Gates.

Neither was there any information available as to who the witnesses are to be when the presentment is made in Willimantic tomorrow morning. It is intimated, however, that their number will be considerable and that the grand jury will have opportunity to hear much, and in detail, about all the work that has been done by state officers from the Danielson barracks in the three weeks that have elapsed since the death of Officer Nelson, and its relation to the effort to bring Lalone and Raymond from Massachusetts into this state to stand trial for murder.

Back of the proceedings scheduled for Friday morning is the ambition of the official group that has been investigating the case, and that will prosecute it, in all probability, to get the prisoners into Connecticut in time to stand trial at the present term of the superior court, criminal side, for Windham county. This program, of course, is all dependent on the result of the grand jury proceedings in Willimantic this week end.

Should an indictment be returned against Lalone and Raymond and should they be returned to Connecticut for trial, there is going to be all kinds of pressure brought for opportunities to be present at it. That already is indicated. For the convenience of the great majority of persons intimately concerned with the matter, there is the possibility, it was said today, that in case the trial is held in this state that it will be at Putnam.

No case developing hereabouts in years has stirred public interest like this one.

This afternoon at the home on North Main street funeral services for Mrs. Anna L. Sweet were conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church. Relatives and numbers of friends were in attendance. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Daniel Gallup, Edward Gallup, John W. Gallup, E. Bitgood, G. O. Thomas and William Sweet, of Moosup. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

From the home in Moosup this morning the funeral of Mrs. Joseph Emond was held with funeral services at All Hallows church at 9 o'clock. Rev. J. E. McCarthy the pastor. Rev. J. H. Quinn of the Sacred Heart church at Wauregan and Rev. Oscar Norman, curate at All Hallows, were officers of the solemn high mass of requiem. Burial was in St. Anne's cemetery at Cranston, R. I. The bearers were Louis Emond, Albert Levesque, Joseph Levesque and Theodore Labrie were the bearrs. L. E. Knnedy was the funeral director.

Real Estate For Sale: 7 room cottage in excellent condition, modern improvements large lot, Francis St., price $3800. (Can you imagine it?) Rent payment plan. Also have attractive house of 8 rooms with improvements on Conn. Mills Ave. adjoining property recently sold to Wilfred L'Heureux. (Fine neighbors.) See J. C. Witter, don't wait.—adv.

Friday evening of this week, from 9 to 10 o'clock, there is to be something of very special interest to the people of Danielson and vicinity on the program of WNYC, the New York city municipal broadcasting station. The broadcast of that hour will include violin solos by Miss Madelyn Cronin of Danielson, a student at the college of Mt. St. Vincent on the Hudson.

Heavy blasting that resounds in Danielson and territory for several miles about is incident to the blowing away of rock on Ledge Hill, midway between Danielson and Brooklyn, as the first process of getting out the stone that is to be crushed and used on the highway that is being reconstructed between the two places.

Forty Hours devotion will begin following the last mass at St. Joseph's church in Dayville on Sunday and will continue through until Tuesday morning. Meanwhile numbers of visiting priests will be in attendance.

Business men here, as a very general rule, will arrange their hours of keeping their stores open, beginning next Monday, in accordance with the daylight saving plan of timekeeping that will go into effect next Sunday morning.

President M. H. Berthiaume of the Danielson chamber of commerce is planning for one of the largest meetings of the year when Dr. Stanley H. Osborn of Hartford addresses the organization at the May meeting next Tuesday evening.

There appears to be a bit of impudence, combined with indiscretion, in the fact that someone took a No Parking sign from its location on Academy street, near Main, and carried it away to Hawkins street, there abandoning it.

A number of Danielson women are showing special interest in arrangements being made to make the May breakfast of the Woman's board of the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam a big success next Tuesday.

Elimination of French's crossing, on the Providence-Willimantic line between Central Village and Plainfield, is on the program of the state highway department, and that bit of progress will be welcomed by everyone who is familiar with the dread cross-over, where lives have been lost.

According to all reports, this has been a week that has stagnated the interest of the majority of trout fishermen in the great spring sport. It has been too cold, it has rained and snowed too much, and the water has been too high. And all of that makes a bad combination for successful angling. Yet some hardy souls have brought in a few fish.

Insofar as those on the outside hear, the negotiations between representatives of Powdrell and Alexander, Inc., and the Connecticut Mills Co. Inc., for the purchase of the plant of the latter company, now idle in Danielson, have not made great progress of late. It appears that there is a difference in opinion between the negotiators as to what the property referred to should be sold for, at this particular time.

Amateur boxing bouts are on the bill for Friday night at the armory in Danielson, the first since the ban on such affairs was fixed a few weeks since. The bouts are being staged here under the auspices of the military organizations stationed at the state armory with Frank Barber of the old Casino A. C. is matchmaker.

PUTNAM

REPORT FINDING TWO GUNS PROVES TO BE FALSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 26—It was stated Thursday morning that two guns thought to be the death delivering weapons that killed Officer Irving H. Nelson of the Connecticut state police near Pomfret on the night of April 6, were found today a short distance from the place where the fatal shooting took place. However a checkup of the story proved that it was only a false rumor. It was later learned that officials assigned to bring in evidence against the two now being held in Springfield, Lalone and Raymond, that the throwing away the revolvers would be sheer madness on the part of the murderers and was almost impossible.

Nothing new developed Thursday in the Nelson murder case in Putnam. Many Putnam people who are interested in the case are in hopes that evidence now gathered by the state police will induce the grand jury to issue a bench warrant that will bring both Lalone and Raymond to Connecticut to stand trial for the murder of the Danielson police officer. As far as the public knows now the state has no direct evidence against the two alleged Worcester gunmen, in connection with the shooting of Officer Nelson. The grand jury of Windham county will sit in session in Willimantic on (Friday) morning at 11 o'clock and will hear all the evidence presented.

The Putnam fire department was called out Thursday afternoon at 3 30 o'clock by a four stroke call to extinguish a chimney fire at 18 Lee street in a house owned by Charles Seder. The quick work of the members of the hook and ladder company extinguished the blaze that was shooting out onto the roof. No damage resulted to the building from the fire or chemicals. This was the fifty-third fire call of the year, which greatly brings the department's record for 1928 much lower than it was on April 26, 1927.

Fourteen barrels of soot coming from a flue as the result of the cleaning of a chimney by members of hte fire department was greatly exaggerated by a mistake on a fire report and subsequently was stated so in a recent article appearing in this column, as was the case in the chimney fire at the home of A Magnant on Battey street, Monday evening The amount of soot causing the fire in the chimney was about 14 pounds according to Chief Thurston of the fire department.

The juvenile minstrels held Wednesday evening at the Putnam high school auditorium under the auspices of the Windham County Y. M. C. A. for the benefit of Camp Woodstock was largely attended. Putnam puvenile amateur actors staged an excellent showing and the camp improvement fund will be greatly benefitted by the proceeds of this entertainment. The cast included members of hte various Y groups throughout the county.

Fishermen returning from a day spent in the field Wednesday in search of the much wanted "brown trout" that are said to have been released in trout streams in this vicinity, said that none were seen. In Killingly where one collector of rare species of fish has offered a $1.00 a pound for any such fish anglers in that vicinity spent many hours in an effort to land a brownie but none were reported caught.

Putnam stood between winter and summer Thursday. During the noon hour the mercury took a turn for the higher altitudes and by afternoon it appeared that Dame Spring had returned with the tidings of warm weather, but the recent snow storms during the week kept many of the more cautious wearing their winter apparel.

Clean up week will officially commence on Monday April 30 and all plans for a successful six day clean up of the city are being made by those cooperating with the city council and the chamber of commerce. Children of the graded schools both public and parochial have been drawing up slogans to use during the week designated by the city officials for spring cleaning. The assistance that will be rendered by the highway department in the carrying away of rubbish will be the greatest contribution. Both the west and east sides of the city will be taken care of by the teams of the highway department during the week of April 30 to May 5.

Putnam will be the center of interest in the checker world on Saturday when the contestants of this section will meet at the Putnam Masonic club to play for the championship of eastern Connecticut. Many entrants have signed up to play with the manager, William P. Warren of Putnam. Among those who have signified their intentions of entering at this meet are: Present Champion C. E. Hallen of Lebanon; W. P. Warren of Putnam who was second winner in last year's meet; Joseph Gorneau; Charles LeDoucier; Dr. E. F. Perry, American Legion champion of Putnam; Arthur Seymour of Salem; George W. Baker and Elbra Baker of Brooklyn; F. B. Stanton of Putnam; M. H. Geissler of Putnam; William D. Casey city champion of Willimantic; Joseph Gorman of Norwich and E. L. Pultz of Lebanon. All of the above mentioned have been runners up in past tournaments and will probably give many tough battles during the play Saturday. The list has not been filled yet and there are man places left for anyone who wishes to enter.

All religious services in the city will commence on daylight saving time on Sunday April 29 excepting the Second Congregational and St. Mary's church which will not adopt the new time until the following Sunday May 6. No reason has been given by the pastors of either church as to why services will not begin one hour earlier. All other business houses and mills have signified their intentions of starting on the new time on Monday morning.

Although no official date has been set for the opening of the Putnam country club members have been enjoying a few rounds during the week on the newly repaired course. Generally the weather allows the club to officially open on April 1, but the exceedingly late season has kept many off. Thursday found a few on the links making their way around for the first time this season. The first tournament of the season slated to be played at Putnam is Memorial day but no club has yet been picked as an opponent for the Putnam duffers.

OBITUARY

Mrs. George H. Hicks

(Contributed.)

Isabella Lucy Maria Jewett, 74, was born in Willimantic Nov. 19, 1853, oldest daughter of Rev. Ebenezer Jewett and Lucy Ormsby, and died at her home in Abington Thursday, April 26. Nov. 30, 1870, she married Reuben G. Weeks, a Civil war veteran. They had seven children: Ida (Mrs. William G. Jennings) of Quinebaug; Maurice C., Washington, R. I.; Alfred C., Abington; Harry S., Elma, Wash.; Charles R., New London; Owen A., Abington, and William E. Hempton. There are nine grandchildren and two great-grand children. Reuben Weeks died about thirty-one years ago.

In 1904 she married George H. Hicks, first selectman of the town of Pomfret, who survives her. Since that time she has made her home in Abington.

She was a charter member of Wolf Den grange and had held the office of chaplain; a member of the Woman's Relief corps of Putnam, a valued worker in the Ladies' Benevolent society and an ardent worker in Abington Social library.

She will be greatly missed in the community, where she leaves many friends, as was shown by the crowded Congregational church, where the funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. There were beautiful flowers. Rev. G. H. Hawkes conducted the services, assisted by Rev. Frank A. Fuller of Putnam, who read a poem written by Mrs. Hicks. About two hours before her death she directed her granddaughter, Miss Cybel Jennings, where to find it and bring it to her. The poem written by Mrs. Hicks was entitled "Mother's Poem to My Children." She was half-sister of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Jewett Brown of Pomfret and Mrs. Alfred Griggs of "The Haven," at Abington.

We love these sweet whiter washes that are neither scrubbed nor boiled

IT'S now so easy to keep Ann in fresh, clean clothes. I can wash her little frocks whiter, brighter than ever—so easily.

When I think of the way I used to rub, scrub and boil to get Ann's clothes white—! But now I just soak and rinse for the whitest week's wash ever.

No scrubbing to wear me out—and wear the clothes out, too. The grimiest edges become snowy with little or no rubbing. I've even given up boiling the wash since I changed to Rinso.

Rinso suds are marvelous. So creamy and lasting. They loosen the dirt and stains safely, without the help of bar soaps, chips or powders.

Most of my neighbors now use Rinso in their washers or tubs. We all love the sweetness of the whiter washes that we get the "no-work" Rinso way.

Why don't you get the BIG package of Rinso from your grocer today?

ARBOR AND BIRD DAY

By proclamation of Governor Trumbull today is Arbor and Bird day. We can feel certain that the day will be observed in the schools, as it usually is, that trees and shrubs will be planted, that exercises will be held, that special programmes will be arranged. It is not that there is any special advantage to be gained in setting out trees and shrubs today, there is nothing magic in April 27th in this respect, but it is desirable that there should be a keen interest maintained in regard to trees and birds and a great help is furnished by having the minds guided in the right direction relative thereto.

It all fits in with the beautification efforts which are made in regard to private and public grounds. It is in keeping with the recently adopted plan of the state for setting out trees along highways and otherwise contributing to their attractiveness.

Well may we reflect on the governor's proclamation when he says: "As population increases and standards of living improve, the preservation of our trees and plant life becomes worth while not only from an aesthetic standpoint, but also in connection with such basic problems as food and shelter. Within the memory of most of us, forest conservation was only the hobby of a few enthusiasts. In two decades it has become a necessary factor in any general programme of civic betterment. Even an elementary knowledge of the perils and safeguards of plant life, was, until recently, to be scarcely found outside the walls of our agricultural schools and experiment stations. Now no child is too young to learn the tragic story of our chestnut trees, to help in the elimination of the tent worm, the japanese beetle and other scourges and to appreciate the part played by our bird life in the destruction of garden pests of all sorts."

Arbor and Bird day comes this year within American Forest week and it should have the effect of creating the additional interest which is needed in conserving our woodlands and stimulating the needed efforts in behalf of reforestation.

THE FLOOD CONTROL BILL

It has long been realized that the attractions and influence of the pork barrel are many. It is brought to attention again in a conspicuous manner by the action which has been taken in congress concerning flood control.

There is no dispute over the desirability of flood control legislation. All are agreed as to that, but it makes a big difference whether congress points to an unlimited pile of money and directs that a raid be made upon it, or whether an effort is made to meet the situation in a sound, businesslike manner.

By the unanimous vote of the senate and by the action in the house, the latter being taken in defiance of the expressed opposition of the president who has referred to such legislation as extortionate, legislation has been favored which means that the outlay may go over a billion dollars, even a billion and a half having been mentioned as a possibility if that measure is carried out. The house has persisted in its action even though it knew that it faced a veto, such amendments as it made not accomplishing the modifications which the president has sought.

There will be need for a conference between the two houses in order to reconcile the differences in the bill, and it is not improbable that the senate will endeavor to find out for its own information just what the objections are to the legislation that has been voted. Whether the points which have been called to attention by the president will now bring the senate to a realization of the responsibility it should assume is a question.

President Coolidge has been willing to make certain concessions for the sake of aiding the legislation, but it remains to be seen whether the pork barrel packers can be turned from their intended course and whether they can be made to recognize and respect the advice which has been given them against the political tactics which they are pursuing in the place of sound principles. Unless the conference results in overcoming the defects which the president has pointed out a veto can be expected.

THE UNKNOWN NORTH

It is quite evident that there is still plenty for fliers to do in the polar regions when it comes to getting a thorough knowledge of just what exists yonder.

According to the reports which have been given of the Wilkins flight from northern Alaska to Spitzbergen it is disclosed that he did not go over the north pole, didn't undertake to do so but shaped his course so that he would fly over a part of the polar region about which considerable uncertainty prevailed. With good conditions he would have been enabled to make an excellent report of what he saw and tell whether there was land or just ice covered ocean in that locality. Bad weather conditions at that very point frustrated one of the important objects of the flight. It was demonstrated that the flight could be made, and it removed that section from the unvisited portions of the globe but even though it has been crossed in the air there is nothing known about it.

There is much of the region around the pole about which no more is known. The Wilkins flight has once more demonstrated what can be expected into and away from the unknown localities. Whether there is an undiscovered land will remain a mystery until there has been a careful covering of the top of the earth in various available northern points of land to and across the pole to points on the other side of the circle.

It is not work that every one would hanker for. It means flying under conditions which would not appeal to many. There is involved no little risk and there is need for a great amount of courage and confidence. Gradually in time, as the result of the efforts made by those who like such work we can expect to know much more about the frozen north than we do and it is certain that much valuable assistance is going to be obtained through those who operate flying machines.

DECIDED SOME TIME AGO

Throughout the state there is keen regret manifested in the statement of Senator McLean that he will not stand for another nomination. It is regretted because it is felt that he is the man for the place, that the state desires to retain the benefit of his experience and the advantage of his ability and there are those who carry the idea that he could so adjust himself to the duties of the office as not to make it burdensome under increasing years.

That has shown to be entirely possible in the cases of others, but it is evident that Senator McLean regards himself as the best judge of his own situation. His decision, in fact, is in complete accord with the statement which was forwarded from Washington some weeks ago by The Bulletin's correspondent in which it was declared that he would not stand for a renomination. It was felt that at that time that the senator might be prevailed upon to change his mind. From all indications he had at that time indicated what he has now said. That intimation was a warning which the people of Connecticut were not desirous of accepting.

Efforts to retain the services of a man whose departure from the senate will be a loss to the nation as well as the state have been made in such a manner as to get a favorable response if such were possible. Senator McLean is evidently desirous of stepping out of political life. His statement is unquestionably sincere. He is actuated by his physical condition and desires to spend some time outside political activities. In yielding to his wishes Connecticut will do so with keen appreciation of his services and sincere regard for what the termination of them means.

THE SENATE TAX CUT

The action of the senate finance committee in voting for a tax reduction bill amounting to $203,000,000 indicates that the committee is disposed to give heed to recommendations which have been made by the treasury department and to conditions existing at the present time.

With the senate committee advocating such a tax cut it is realized that it is so close to treasury estimates that little opposition is likely to be encountered in that respect. It will mean a considerable cut below the amount set in the house bill and even a greater reduction from the amount which the democrats have been endeavoring to write into the bill.

What the senate will do with the bill which the committee will report is uncertain. Conditions there are such as to upset it if there is that desire but in the interest of common sense it is a measure which should get support even to acceptance by the house. It is not improbable that a bill calling for such a tax reduction would get the approval of the president provided there are no serious defects hidden therein.

The senate measure does not provide for some of the desirable changes in the existing federal taxes. It doesn't cut the corporation tax as much as might be desired and it doesn't touch the inheritance tax, but in the case of the corporation tax the action taken is governed by the conditions prevailing and an unwillingness to invite a deficit. The ending of the automobile tax and the lowering of the rates applying to the immediate surtax brackets give attention to changes which have been strongly urged.

DIARY OF A POINTED FOX

Oct. 16—As a rule I do hate these checkroom conversations, and when Miss Ellinor decided the evening was too warm to take me with her into the theatre I surely was disappointed. It started out the way these evenings usually do. There was that old-fashioned chinchilla from Tennessee, with some interminable gossip about the "best people." And the stories those ankiets told! I actually preferred listening to the opera hat and the cane talking over the stock market, although that was dull enough.

But I woke up when this little Russian sable on the hook next to mine told me a tale I shall not forget in a hurry. I just wonder if it is all true.

He opened the conversation by inquiring with a charming accent if I knew what was good for a cold. He had got his feet wet, he explained, when his mistress had wept, whose parts of every American state save and he stammered with embarrassment as he confided it—that it may be necessary for her to part with him.

"She is, — how you say it?—hard up," he said with a sigh. "And in the old country we used to eat off silver and gold. Think of it!"

I thought it over, and waited for him to go on. He explained, after a pause, that his mistress was a real sure-enough countess and had lost position and wealth in the revolution and was having a difficult time getting along on what she had saved from the wreck, plus what she could earn as a seamstress. He said her name was Natalie Something-or-other, which I never could pronounce, and that she came to the theatre to study styles and also in the hope that some day she would run across Peter.

Peter, it seems, is her son and she last saw him six years ago, when he was only 16. She does not know whether he is dead or alive, but heard he had come to America. I don't understand the politics of it all, but somehow or other Peter and his mother got in dreadfully bad with the powers in Russia, and one night the secret police came to take them away to prison. The countess knew that they would either be killed or sent to Siberia. So they made a dash for liberty and escaped. The countess and Peter exchanged clothes, and he escaped but she was captured, and was about to be shot when a powerful politician was struck by her beauty when he came to visit the prison, and ordered her release. She promised to be his bride, but on the night of the wedding she stole his automobile and dashed for the frontier, where she escaped in peasant's clothes. The sable may have been seeing too many movies. But there may be something in it, especially about her being broke.

Oct. 17—I hardly can wait to write down what happened after the theater last night. We went to a little restaurant around the corner from the playhouse. After the sandwiches the waiter said the eclairs were "simply delicious." So Miss E had an eclair, and she and her escort went on talking. But pretty soon he said:

"I think you are staring at that waiter; he certainly is a handsome fellow." Miss E. said with a sigh. "He certainly is," and pretty soon she ordered some more eclairs.

We saw the good-looking waiter coming in from the kitchen with the eclairs and all of a sudden what did he do but dump those eclairs right in a gentleman's lap! You could hear them go "squash" as they fell. The man was furious, but the waiter paid no attention at all. He had spied somebody at a table in a far corner of the room and was rushing right over there.

Well, who was it but my friend, the Russian sable, perched on the shoulders of the most beautiful creature you ever saw—one of these queenly old girls with piercing black eyes and a creamy white skin and aristocracy written all over her. And she kissed the waiter and went over him right there in public. Of course, I knew it was Peter!

Well, the man on whom the eclairs had dropped called the proprietor, and the proprietor told Peter he was fired. Then Miss E and her escort mixed in and the countess told Miss E her story and Miss E told her that she thought it was all too sweet for words, and that she was sure the Junior Helpers would give a party for the benefit of the countess and of Peter and that they are to come out and see Miss E's Daddums. And if I know anything Daddums will have to come across!

As for that sable, did you ever see a sable grin? Loyal little fellow, that.—Chicago News.

Stories That Recall Others

Probably Much Colder

Ronald aged five has an explanation for everything that happens. He called at a neighbor's home recently and in running back and forth knocked a thermometer from the wall.

Deciding that the incident demanded an explanation he went to his hostess and said: "The temperature is down."

Not Necessary

Each winter a certain Sunday school class had given new suits of clothes to two boys who are sons of an industrious but poor member of the congregation.

This year as the time for the gift was approaching, the members of the class noticed that one of the boys was not attending Sunday school. One day the teacher decided he would find out why the boy was not present on the previous Sunday. He stopped the boy's brother on the street and inquired.

"He has a new suit and doesn't need to," was the unexpected reply.

YOUR HEALTH

LUMPS

By John William Shuman, M. D., Los Angeles, Calif.

A lump, which is the name for swelling or tumor in Latin, may be a wen of the scalp, a mass which can be felt within the breast or abdomen, a ganglion of some tendon near a joint, an enlarged lymph gland, a thyroid growth too large, a rupture, or many other things.

No one admires, desires, or harbors a lump but tries most everything to get rid of it. Just look at the cures for warts from charms to the knife! The latter being more successful than the former. The same is true for most all other kinds of lumps, and there is a reason.

The reason is not all for cosmetic purposes, although that is a prominent feature for many desiring to get rid of moles, warts, goiters, and even a disfiguring lump on the nose. The main reason for wanting to trade a lump for a neat scar line is because that lump is quite likely to develop into something else.

A lump will do one of three things: Remain the same, get larger, or go away. The last is the least likely occurrence and most people, knowing this, fear the second. When a lump grows it too frequently foretells that terrible disease, cancer!

When one studies the appalling figures pertaining to lumps in the breast there is reason enough for sitting up and taking notice. They are: "Eighty percent of breast lumps are cancer and 80 percent of the remaining 20 percent become cancer."

Lumps which grow quickly and are hard, painful, and soon soften usually contain pus. If one prefers an unsightly scar from letting the abscess burst, in preference to a neat little scar from a skillful surgeon's knife, that is his business.

If a man desires to carry a rupture until it will hold one-fourth of his intestines or until it kinks and causes obstruction, that is also his business; but he should know the risks and carry plenty of insurance.

There are a number of lumps for which, in their late stages, little or nothing can be done except relieve the pain somewhat, which is a real job; but all things including lumps and mountains, have a beginning; and if properly managed would not have reached second, third, or fourth stages. To this end, patient and physician must co-operate earnestly and intelligently.

Until folks have less fear of the doctor and doctors are less fearful of losing patients by telling them the truth, lumps will come and grow, and patients will go.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dirt Road Farmers

Mr. Editor: The American Agriculturist had a page devoted to the subject—Dirt Roads. I hope every subscriber has read those letters. May I quote a few sentences from them?

"Times have changed with the advent of the automobile. The superintendent who would erect a 'thank you ma'm' across the highway at the present time would be shot before daybreak.

"Consequently our hilly dirt roads are subject to the fury of the elements and just let a heavy car pass over a newly worked road and you have two beautiful ditches which convey your water to the foot of the hill usually with disastrous results.

"It is unthinkable to suggest a greater burden of taxation on the farmer for highways especially on the back road farmer. He is paying his share of all public improvements and is getting no direct benefit thereby. I believe our assessors should give this matter their attention and regulate assessed property values accordingly. It is only fair that property along improved highways should pay a greater proportion of the cost of such improvement.

"When we consider that the dirt road farmer is producing milk, etc., and marketing the same at a cost far in excess of the farmer living on an improved highway and paying dear for the privilege he does not receive we can easily understand why he frets."

Here in Lebanon is a very good case of dirt road cussedness. Near Exeter pond is a large hotel, also the Leonard Bridge postoffice. The nearest improved road is 4 miles away. The mail comes 8 miles over dirt road since the train stopped bringing it. The mail messenger has perhaps had no experience upon dirt roads and complains every trip he has made either way.

Now the fact in the case is that the taxes with which the hotel is burdened amounts to almost one twentieth of all taxes assessed in the town of Lebanon, and six of us here pay $2,000 in taxes which is one tenth of all the taxes. Here we are out in the wilderness compelled to pay for roads and lights at the center of Lebanon and all other improvements and get to that part of Lebanon only at town meeting time.

During these months of mud, it was impossible for a truck to come out and bring grain or to get calves and poultry the farmer wanted to sell. He had to tote everything with wagon and horses and very little at a time for fear that he would get stuck in the mud.

I think it would be only fair to pay people a bonus for inhabiting that part of Lebanon during winter.

Yours for a square deal,
A DIRT ROAD FARMER.

How Much Water Should Baby Get?

A Famous Authority's Rule

By Ruth Britton

Baby specialists agree nowadays, that during the first six months, babies must have three ounces of fluid per pound of body weight daily. An eight pound baby, for instance, needs twenty-four ounces of fluid. Later on the rule is two ounces of fluid per pound of body weight. The amount of fluid absorbed by a breast fed baby is best determined by weighing him before and after feeding for the whole day; and it is easily calculated for the bottle fed one. Then make up any deficiency with water.

Giving baby sufficient water often relieves his feverish, crying, upset and restless spells. If it doesn't, give him a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. For these and other ills of babies and children such as colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, sour stomach, loss of sleep, underweight, etc., leading physicians say there's nothing so effective. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper—and millions of mothers have depended on it in over thirty years of ever increasing use. It regulates baby's bowels, makes him sleep and eat right, enables him to get full nourishment from his food, so he increases in weight as he should. With each package you get a book on Motherhood worth its weight in gold.

Just a word of caution. Look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on the package so you'll be sure to get the genuine. The forty cent bottle contain thirty-five doses.

Suffered 8 Years With Eczema

After Other Remedies Failed, Ends Skin Trouble Quickly This Simple Way.

"You may be interested to know that for about 8 years I was suffering with a skin trouble I called Eczema. It affected me in two different parts of my body. A short time ago I noticed your ad in a newspaper for Peterson's Ointment. I purchased a box. I must add that I have tried almost every known remedy and failed. I will proudly admit that your remedy has proven the best and has not been half used up yet."—Ray O. Nesbet, Augusta, Me.

Other remedies may fail, but the success of Peterson's Ointment is so certain that druggists all over America are glad to recommend it, for eczema, pimples, acne, ulcers and all skin eruptions—35 cents a box—at your druggist.

The Auto Driver Said:

"I DIDN'T SEE IN TIME."

But that excuse will not do. If the next vehicle, as in the old days, was half a mile away, any kind of vision might be good enough for safety.

But today, with accidents averted by feet or even inches, only one kind of eyesight should be tolerated—the best.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful. Rev. William J. Reynolds, pastor of Newent Congregational church, conducted the services, and read a committal service at the grave in Ames cemetery, Lisbon. The bearers were George and Frank Steinke, George and Albert Bradlaw. Undertaker George G. Grant of Taftville was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

STATE ENCAMPMENT, V. F. W., IS COMING TO NORWICH

At the regular meeting of Richard E. Hourigan post, No. 594, Veterans of Foreign Wars, which was held Tuesday evening in the post rooms in the Olympic building, with Commander Herbert F. Burdick presiding, Lewis J. Hull Jr., chairman of the encampment committee, made an excellent and progressive report, stating that the coming state encampment which is to be held in this city on June 8, 9 and 10, will be the biggest and best convention held by the Veterans of Foreign Wars in this state. An elaborate program has already been drawn up, which will include prominent speakers and guests from all parts of the state. A big parade is planned for the second day in which every organization both military and fraternal will be invited to take part. The encampment committee is devoting its best efforts towards making the entertainment of the convention a success.

Jesse J. Peloquin, chairman of the entertainment committee made a very good report of the dances which have been held in the Post hall the past few weeks and announced another to be held. Arrangements have been completed for a regular stag party, to be held Saturday night, and the committee is working hard to give those attending the best time yet. Several members of Murphy Rathbun post, New London, were present at the meeting and Past District Commander Joseph Perrone of that city, gave a very interesting talk in regards to the Cootie organization which is a social order of the Veterans post. It is expected that R. E. Hourigan post will soon have a pup tent or Cootie organization is already 18 members of the post have enrolled, and much activity and social times will take place at the post quarters when this order is organized.

OIL HEATER CAUSES FIRE IN BATHROOM

An oil heater left in a closed bath room Thursday night to heat the room made a call for the fire department at 7:40 Thursday evening to No. 1 Kinney avenue, the house owned and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. David Blum and family.

The oil heater had blazed up and thoroughly blackened the white enameled bathroom with soot, besides scorching the paint around the window. When Mrs. Blum opened the bath room door and saw the blackened room she grabbed the oil heater, carried it down into the street and a telephone call for the fire department was put in. Engine No. 6, Squad A, the chief and the deputy chief responded to the call.

Deputy Chief Taft called attention Thursday night to the dangerous practice of lighting an oil heater and leaving it in a closed room. The flame of the heater, he said, exhausts the oxygen in the room, flares up and down, smokes and forms gases, with the possibility of an explosion. It is running too much of a risk to leave an oil heater burning in a closed room unless some one is watching it.

CITY MEETING VOTES TO SELL BARN BUT NOT TO G. & E. DEPARTMENT

A special city meeting, Thursday night at the town hall, voted to sell the present city barn, voted an appropriation of $25,000 for the erection of a new city barn on Brook and Baltic streets, turned down a proposition to sell the present city barn to the gas and electric department as a site for a new city gas and electric office building, passed a resolution calling for the enactment of a new charter, and adopted a resolution appointing a committee to hold public hearings between now and October on the matter of the proposed consolidation of the city and town.

Over 300 people crowded the hall. All available seats were filled, and additional chairs and benches were provided by Supterintendent Joseph J. Fields of the courthouse but in spite of the extra accommodations 200 more people had to stand throughout the two hour session. It was one of the largest attended city meetings in years.

Mayor Milo R. Waters called the meeting to order at 8 o'clock sharp and after the call had been read by City Clerk Weston C. Pullen, Mayor Waters stated that it was a city meeting and that no one who is not a city voter had a right to vote at the meeting. The first matter to come before the meeting was the proposed appropriation of a sum not to exceed $30,000 to provide for the erection of a new city barn and buildings for the public works department on land owned by the city on Brook and Baltic streets. Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., presented the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolved, that the court of common council of the city of Norwich be and they are hereby authorized to appropriate a sum of money not to exceed $30,000 for the erection of a city barn and buildings for the public works department of the city on land owned by the city and located on Brook and Baltic streets.

New Site for City Barn

Mr. Shields said that the purpose of the resolution is to move the city barn to the Turner pond property. He stated that there was a misapprehension that it was to be put on the Lake street property.

That is not so, he said. Mr. Shields went on to say that the new barn would be a public improvement and would provide adequate quarters for the public works department. It would not require the borrowing of money or tax. He referred to the proposal of the gas and electric department to take over the property and called attention to the fact that as the gas and electric department have a lease on their present quarters the public works department could continue to use the present barn for some time to come. Mr. Shields said that if the city barn property were sold other interests might erect a garage or gas station on the sitee. The city ought to try to beautify Union square, said Mr. Shields. He then moved that the resolution be adopted by a ballot vote.

Offers Amendment

H. H. Gallup introduced an amendment to the resolution cutting down the $30,000 appropriation to $25,000 for the new city barn on Brook and Baltic streets and directing that the present city barn be sold and the proceeds used to pay off the debt.

Speaking for the resolution Mr. Gallup said that there is a feeling against having the gas and electric department located on the present barn property. The property is valuable he said and could be sold for more than $30,000. Put your barn on Brook street if you please, he said.

Mr. Gallup said he thought the gas and electric department ought to attend to their business, selling gas and electricity and collecting the bills. He said that if they did that they would not need the extra space. I believe they are selling ranges, etc., that other good people are selling. They are hurting others. It is not a legitimate business for the gas and electric department to engage in. Mr. Gallup said that the city barn ought to be sold to some concern.

Former Commissioner Speaks

I am heartily in favor of the amendment, said D. T. Shea, a former member of the board of gas and electrical commissioners. He said he has been in many cities and failed to see any city barn that looks like $30,000. He said he was in favor of selling the city barn for commercial purposes and was opposed to turning it over to the gas and electrical department for a three story building to be used as an office building and for the sale of merchandise. Selling it to the gas and electric department is not a sale. It is simply taking a dollar out of one pocket and putting it into the other.

Commissioner Desmond Speaks

Jeremiah A. Desmond, member of the board of gas and electric commissioners said that it was while Mr. Shea was a member of the gas and electrical commission that the department started selling appliances. Mr. Desmond said that when he was appointed to the commission he was opposed to the sale of appliances by the department but that he is now satisfied that they should sell appliances. Private gas and electric companies all over the country are selling appliances. It is their biggest asset, Mr. Desmond said. He called attention to the fact that the gas and electrical department is paying $4,000 a year rent.

During the last four years up to the present time the gas and electric department has paid $164,138.66 to the general fund of the city for use of other departments. He also quoted other figures regarding the finances of the department. When the $400,000 mortgage bonds were due the department paid off $100,000 and renewed $300,000.

Mr. Desmond called attention to the fact that the average saving to the city is $17,000 a year as the city purchases electricity for the street lights at cost. He spoke of the new hydro plant the department has installed at a cost of $152,000. The plant is manufacturing 60 per cent of the department's requirements, by water. The department has already paid off $75,000 of the hydro plant cost and in a short time the new plant will be clear. The department payroll is $182,000 a year and there are about 100 persons on the pay roll.

Mr. Desmond said that the gas and electric commissioners hadn't asked anyone to speak or vote on the resolution. I am not urging you at all, he said. Use your own judgment.

Brings Up Another Site

We have heard a little about the finances of the gas and electric department, said Mr. Shea. We don't question that they are making money. The trouble is they are making it so fast they don't know where to spend it.

I am not in favor of paying out of our gas and electric funds $30,000 and incur the expense of tearing down and removing the present building and the estimated cost of $100,000 more to erect as proposed a three story building for office purposes and for the sale and display of merchandise. For two reasons—first, we do not need any such buildings so far away from the plant. Second, I think I know where the same money can be put to better use.

Now there is adjoining our plant on North Main street land that extends to Golden street to which we would have access without crossing the railroad tracks. This property was offered to us over ten years ago and we would have bought it then if the common council would allow us to use our own funds to purchase it. We believed we needed it then, but we need it a hundred times more now. On that land—as some present tonight know—there are three brick buildings, one modern construction with an elevator, sprinkling system, on railroad siding, this brick building three story high was recently built at a cost of over $60,000—two other buildings not so new. This property would not only give us ample room for a new gas holder but storage for all our rolling stock, merchandise and equipment, and the new building is suitable for foremen's offices and take care of at least 90 per cent of our office force; so that we would need only a small office down town centrally located where bills could be paid the same as taxes and water bills.

Now this property can be bought for about two-thirds of what is estimated the three story building and land would cost on Union square. The balance could be returned, as is being done this month, to the consumer who produces our surplus. Believe me, I have no desire or reason to cast any reflection upon any official, nor do I wish to antagonize our present commissioners—they are all my friends, an' they have admitted that the city should own that property, and as some have put it, almost regardless of price. But I think they need a little encouragement from the city voters. I myself believe that if the city can buy that property for $100,000 or less, it would be the best move made during my 48 years in Norwich. I have a dread of a gas famine. We barely escaped one 14 years ago when the common council refused to sanction our spendding $50,000 to build the holder we now have and it was one of the hardest battles I had to persuade them to reconsider and favor the proposition. I hope those who think as I do will vote for the amendment.

Vote $25,000 For City Barn

The amendment was carried by viva voce vote. Action on the resolution as amended was next before the meeting. I think the sense of the meeting is to move the city barn and to sell the present barn, said Mr. Shields. If there is no objection, I will cast one vote in favor of the amended resolution, to save time. He cast the vote and the amended resolution was adopted.

After the vote had been cast there was a question as to whether the city barn could be sold under the adopted resolution. Judge John H. Barnes said that he did not hear any mention of the sale of the barn in the resolution as read by the clerk. It developed that the wrong resolution had been read. "In view of the fact that the clerk read the wrong resolution, I'll cast another vote," said Mr. Shields. He cast the "yes" vote and the amended resolution was finally adopted.

The meeting then took up the second matter in the call, which was the proposed sale of the city barn to the gas and electric department for a city gas and electric office building site. In view of the action of the meeting on the first item of the call, I move that the second item be indefinitely postponed, said Mr. Shields.

Calls It "Gag" Law

I don't like this gag law, said Mr Shea, who was quickly on his feet after Mr. Shields had made the motion to indefinitely postpone.

Mr. Shea, said Mayor Waters, you have voted not to let the gas and electric department buy the barn.

But can't I introduce a resolution to cover paragraph two, asked Mr. Shea

You might try, answered the mayor

Mr. Shea then introduced a resolution to the effect that the gas and electric department be authorized to purchase the property adjoining the gas and electric plant and facing Golden street, the appropriation figure being set at $100,000.

Mr. Shields said he didn't think the appropriation would be valid under the warning!

We could get the sense of the meeting, said Mr. Shea.

Mr. Shields then withdrew his motion to indefinitely postpone and Mr Shea inserted in his resolution that it be the sense of the meeting that the court of common council authorize an appropriation of $100,000 out of the gas and electric funds for the purchase of the Turner-Stanton property adjoining the city plant.

Jeremiah A. Desmond, gas and electrical commissioner, spoke against the resolution. He said that the commissioners had made an offer for the property some time ago of $65,000 which was considered what the property was worth. We offered $65,000 but we couldn't get together. Now we have a resolution appropriating $100,000. I hope the resolution doesn't go through

Mr. Shea said that if the property could be bought for $80,000 or $85,000 the opportunity should not be let go by.

No Sale to G. and E. Department

Mr. Shea's motion, when put to vote was lost. Mr Shields then re-introduced his motion to indefinitely postpone action on the proposed sale of the city barn to the gas and electric department and the motion prevailed.

The third item on the call then came up for action. This was a proposal authorizing the city to borrow, on or after May 16th, 1928, from time to time in anticipation of the taxes of a sum not to exceed $60,000 to meet the city expenses from that date until the city meeting in June acts on the appropriations for the coming fiscal year and until the appropriations voted are made by the court of common council in June.

Mr. Shields introduced the following resolution covering this matter:

Resolved that the court of common council of the city of Norwich be and they are hereby authorized to appropriate a sum of money not to exceed $60 000 for the necessary expenditures of the city during the coming fiscal year of the city from May 16, 1928, until after the annual city meeting and council meeting to be held in June, 1928.

In the past this procedure has not been followed, said Mr. Shields. The fiscal year starts May 16th. No appropriations are available until after the city meeting in June. In the past the Norwich Savings society has advanced money without any certificate to show that they had advanced the money. They trusted that it would be taken care of at the city meeting. This resolution is only to take care of the

COSTS $12.40 PER CAPITA FOR STATE'S DEPARTMENTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 26—The department of commerce announces a summary of the financial statistics of the state of Connecticut for the fiscal year ending June 30 1927. The per capita figures for 1927 are based on an estimated population of 1,631,000.

Expenditures

The payments for operation and the maintenance of the general departments of Connecticut amounted to $20,100,618, or $12.40 per capita. This includes $1,581,491, apportionments for education to the minor civil divisions of the state. In 1926 the comparative per capita for operation and maintenance of general departments was $11.82, and in 1917, $7.13. The payments for operation and maintenance of public service enterprises in 1927 amounted to $81,860; interest on debt $656,865; and outlays for permanent improvements, $9,050,580. The total payments, therefore, for operation and maintenance of general departments and public service enterprises, for interest and outlays were $29,889,918. Of this amount $89,635 represents payments by a state department or enterprise to another on account of services. The totals include all payments for the year, whether made from current revenues or from the proceeds of bond issues.

Of the governmental costs reported above $11,891,370 was for highways $4,101,020 being for maintenance and $7,790,350 for construction.

Revenues

The total revenue receipts were $32,658,116, or $20.15 per capita. This was $11,818,778 more than the total payments of the year, exclusive of the payments for permanent improvements, and $2,768,198 more than the total payments including those for permanent improvements. This excess of revenue receipts is reflected in increased cash balances, not shown in this summary. Of the total revenue receipts $89,635 represents receipts from a state department or enterprise on account of services. Property and special taxes represented 25.2 per cent. of the total revenue for 1927, 28.0 per cent for 1926, and 38.4 per cent. for 1917 The increase in the amount of property and special taxes collected was 31.7 per cent. from 1917 to 1926, but there was a decrease of 0.9 per cent from 1926 to 1927 The per capita property and special taxes were $5.07 in 1927, $5.22 in 1926, and $4.82 in 1917.

Earnings of general departments, or compensation for services rendered by state officials, represented 9.8 per cent. of the total revenue for 1927, 10.0 per cent. for 1926 and 6.2 per cent. for 1917.

Business and non business licenses constituted 54.0 per cent. of the total revenue for 1927, 52.3 per cent. for 1926 and 49.8 per cent. for 1917.

Receipts from business licenses consist chiefly of taxes exacted from insurance and other incorporated companies and of sales tax on gasoline while those from non business licenses comprise chiefly taxes on motor vehicles and amounts paid for hunting and fishing privileges. The sales tax on gasoline amounted to $2,840,361 in 1927 and $2,344,313 in 1926, an increase of 21.2 per cent., which was due to an increase of one cent per gallon in the tax rate on sales.

Indebtedness

The total funded or fixed debt outstanding June 30, 1927 was $16,291,100

The net indebtedness (funded or fixed debt less sinking fund assets) was $3,078,148, or $1.90 per capita. In 1926 the per capita net debt was $2.27 and in 1917, $6.56.

Assessed Valuations and Tax Levies

The assessed valuation of property in Connecticut subject to ad valorem taxation was $2,544,602,534; the amount of state taxes levied was $1,312,953; and the per capital levy $1.12 In 1926 the per capita levy was $1.14 and in 1917, $1.59.

CONGREGATIONAL WOMEN DISCUSSED HOME MISSIONS

The 42nd annual meeting of the Woman's Congregational Home Missionary union of Connecticut was held in the United church in New Haven on Wednesday. Delegates and friends from all over the state were present, about 800 women in all. Mrs. Keller Latham, who is one of the vice-presidents of the union, presided at the afternoon session. Much important business was transacted and inspiring addresses were given by workers in different parts of the country even one from Porto Rico. The work in the rural districts of the state, and in the schools in the southern states was especially emphasized.

Dr. Maurer of New Haven spoke of the new church at Storrs, which is being called "A New Adventure in Religion," and what a fine thing it is for all the students attending Storrs Agricultural college. The home board of missions is combining with the foreign board. Another meeting will be held in Hartford next fall, at which time the new constitution will be voted upon. The name of the missionary society will be The Council of Congregational Women of Connecticut.

Rubbish On Fire

Rubbish on fire behind a bill board on Water street on the Dr Tingley property made a call for the fire department Thursday at 1:25 o'clock. The blaze had probably been started by some one throwing a cigarette into the accumulation of papers.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Miss Hannah M. Crowell, of Oldelms has returned after a visit of several weeks in Rosemont, Pa.

Mrs. Harry E. Prentice, 191 Washington street, was hostess to the Home Service unit Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Norris S. Lippitt, who have spent the winter at Ridgewood, N. J., with Mr. and Mrs. Theodore V. Haviland, are in Norwich, guests at The Wauregan for several days, before opening their cottage on the sea wall at Neptune Park.

Mrs. Frank Innis, who has been visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. Roy D. Judd, of Broad street, left town Thursday for her home at Shelburne Falls, Mass.

At the weekly meeting of the Aftermath club Thursday evening the prize was won by Mrs. Thomas A. Crowley.

Mrs. Charles L. Stewart and Miss Dorothy Stewart have been in New York this week.

The exhibit of Miss Helen F. Newton's paintings at her studio-apartment, Pinehurst, has been proving very pleasant socially this week, besides affording her friends an opportunity to see her paintings of still life, some flower pieces and landscapes. Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Orlas Dodge poured tea, Thursday Miss Louise C. Howe was at the teatable and this (Friday) afternoon Miss Betsey Mitchell will pour. Miss Newton recently had the honor of being elected a member of the New Haven Paint & Clay club, where she has exhibited her canvases for five years. Her paintings have also been shown at the exhibit of the Connecticut Academy of Fine Arts, in Hartford. She did not exhibit at the Eastern Arts show at Hartford last week, as was stated.

BARBARA FRITCHIE'S NIECE SAYS FLAG STORY TRUE

"In the Nov. 3 issue of the Evening Star, you published an article entitled 'Barbara Fritchie Story Refuted,' in which it was stated that John Clagett Proctor, at a meeting of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants, read a paper on 'the three authentically recorded reasons why Dame Fritchie could not have waved the American flag that memorable Sept. 10, 1862.' The occasional attempts to discredit the flag waving incident I usually read and consign to the waste basket, because from more than 'three authentically recorded' sources I have learned that she did wave her flag to the Confederates as they stood in front of her house on the morning of Sept. 10, 1862, waiting for A. P. Hill's division to come into Patrick street by way of Mill alley, but Mr. Proctor has made several statements so absolutely untrue that I feel a correction should be made. Will you kindly give this correction the same publicity you gave the article refuting the Barbara Fritchie story?

"Mr. Proctor evidently was not thoroughly informed regarding facts. He declared that the story of Barbara Fritchie had already been disproved thoroughly. On what does he base this assertion? Three reasons are cited 'why the famous woman of Frederick could not have waved her flag.'

Not Ill at Time

"The first reason given is, 'Barbara at that time was bedridden, and had been so for quite a while.' I know that is not true, because she was remarkably active for her years, and during the time the Confederates were encamped near Frederick she was able to go to the home of her niece, Mrs. Hanshew, accompanied by a companion. After celebrating her 96th birthday, Dec. 3, she took cold and pneumonia developed, resulting in her death Dec. 18 after a few days' illness.

"The second reason. 'It was not light when Jackson left Frederick, as evidenced by a note left at the door of Rev. Dr. Ross, Presbyterian minister of the time.' The note, dated Sept. 10, 1862, 5:15 a. m., is quoted. If Mr. Proctor were an early riser he would know it is daylight at 5:15 a. m. in September, but the Confederates were not leaving Frederick when the note was written. Jackson's corps was encamped at Worman's mill, two and one-half miles north of town. After breaking camp they marched into Frederick, and as the flag waving incident was witnessed by a woman on her way to her daily work, it was probably about 7 a. m.

"Mr. Proctor's 'third reason that brands the incident as a myth is that Jackson's army did not march by Barbara's home, but selected another route.'

"There are persons still living who will testify that this is not true, but the most reliable evidence comes from James L. Parsons, of Washington.

"In a letter written to the Baltimore Sun, dated Nov. 12, 1913, replying to an article published in the Sun, signed by W. Gordon McCabe, in which the statement was made that there was no such brigade as the 3d Brigade, Jackson's corps, at the time of the occupation of Frederick by Lee's army, Mr. Parsons says:

Former Soldier Quoted

"'There was such a brigade as the 3d Brigade, also known as Tolliver's Brigade, composed of the 47th and 48th Alabama regiments, the 23d and 37th Virginia regiments. I was a member of the 23d Virginia. This brigade, with Jackson's corps, marched through Frederick on the morning of Sept. 10, from a camp about two and one-half miles north of Frederick, down Market street to the Hagerstown pike. Tolliver's Brigade halted on Market and Patrick streets a sufficient time to permit A. P. Hill to march through the Mill alley, which intersected the Hagerstown pike beyond Barbara Fritchie's residence. This was not a short cut, as the distance from the Market and Patrick street route only amounted to a few hundred yards. The use of said alley was for the purpose of transferring Hill's division from rear to front. I distinctly and clearly remember stopping at the creek and hearing considerable talk and reference to a Yankee woman having waved a Yankee flag at this particular house, which is known to have been occupied by Barbara Fritchie.'

(Signed) James L. Parsons,
'Washington, Nov. 12, 1913.'

"The quotation from Mr. Whittier, which Mr. Proctor has correctly given, shows very clearly that Mr. Whittier had a 'mass of evidence,' as Mr. Pickard, his biographer, stated, to prove that the poem was founded on fact. It may interest you to know that the late Dr. Russell H. Conwell told me Dr. Oliver Wendel Holmes gave Mr. Whittier the description of the 'green-walled hills' and fertile valleys of Maryland, which formed the setting of the poem.

"While Mr. Quantrell and others at different times and places waved the Union flag in the face of the Confederates and vice versa, they attracted only passing attention. The dear 'little old lady,' with her silk flag in her hand, threatened by some of the rougher men, but protected by the higher officer, who gallantly came to her rescue, is the real hero of the Whittier poem."

Gift to Veteran Mail Carrier

Edward A. Lord, who recently retired from the postal service at Northampton after being employed as mail carrier 28 years, was presented an easy chair by the force of the postoffice there this week.

Mr. Lord was born in Old Lyme, this state, April 16, 1863, the son of the late Joseph and Lucy (Meach) Lord, and went to Northampton at the age of seven.

FAST A. A. U. BOXING CARD SLATED FOR DANIELSON HALL THIS EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 26—All signs point to a record crowd of fight-hungry fans at the amateur show to be staged at the state armory in Danielson Friday evening. Owing to the restrictions laid down by the A. A. U., simon pure bouts have been, and still are, exceedingly scarce in the state and the Casino A. C. management has not only beaten the great majority of clubs in obtaining sanction to resume its activities, but has arranged a card the equal of which has seldom been seen in these parts.

The headline attraction will be the bout between Big Boy Burlap of Westerly and Ben Smith of Newport Naval Training station, both 200-pounders and both packing wallops which have commanded the sincere respect and admiration of numerous opponents. Joe Russo of Westerly is another favorite in eastern Connecticut, and there are numerous battlers on the list from the towns up and down the Quinebaug valley, each of whom has his loyal following in his home town. The teams entered are Newport, Westerly, Waterbury, Jewett City, Danielson and Moosup. The list of 24 entries is as follows:

Heavyweights

Earl Champlin (Big Boy Burlap), Westerly.
Ben Smith, Newport.

160-Pound Class

Pete Smith, Waterbury.
George Herr, Danielson.

150-pound Class

John Blaney, Newport.
Bill Golden, Newport.
Joe Russo, Westerly.
Mike Stevens, Waterbury.
Young Gravelin, Moosup.
Tony Badger, Moosup.
Ben Dempnski, Jewett City.
Bill Farrell, Danielson.

145-pound Class

Eddie Kulas, Jewett City.
Alex Socquet, Danielson.

135-pound Class

Charles Dennis, Newport.
Young Chappee, Westerly.
Gene Martin, Waterbury.
Byron Parker, Danielson.

126-pound Class

Ben Salinsky, Jewett City.
Ernest Gauvin, Jewett City.
Joe Bouley, Danielson.
Francis Socquet, Danielson.

112-pound Class

Jack Sharkey, Waterbury.
Joe Bishop, Danielson.

The new bleachers at the State armory are ready and are of a type which combines maximum seating capacity with greatest safety. The management has arranged to handle a large crowd and there will be plenty of ringside and gallery seats in addition to the bleachers. There is ample space for parking in the vicinity of the armory. The bouts are scheduled to start at eight o'clock and the doors are to be opened at seven, the fighters weighing in at 7:30. For those who arrive early, there will be orchestra music until the show starts.

ATHLETICS CONTINUE TO WIN, BEATING SENATORS

WASHINGTON, April 26—(AP)—Washington's losing streak reached the four-game mark today when the Philadelphia Athletics defeated them 10 to 0 in the visitors' opening game here. Tris Speaker, who last year played for Washington, did enough today to beat his former mates single handed. With three on base he banged a triple. Cobb got one, too. Quinn held the Senators in hand throughout while Zachary and Burke were hit hard. Score:

Yanks 9, Red Sox 4

NEW YORK, April 26—(AP)—An eighth inning rally enabled the New York Yankees to defeat the Boston Red Sox, 9 to 4, today in the opening tilt of a three-game series.

Bill Carrigan removed MacFayden in the eighth with the score tied, but Harriss, the third Boston pitcher, proved easy picking for the Yankees. A hit by Durst filled the bases and a pass to Koenig forced in Robertson with the ultimate winning run. Ruth's sacrifice fly and hits by Gehrig and Meusel sent in four more runs.

Al Shealy, a New York pitching recruit, flashed a steady game and contributed a single to the eighth-inning rally. Score:

Indians 8; Tigers 1

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 26—(AP)—Gathering ten hits off two Tiger pitchers the Cleveland Indians took the opening game of the series with Detroit 6 to 1 today.

George Grant, hurling for the tribe, was wild throughout the game but was not scored on until the final inning. The Indians pounded Sorrell and Smith at will. Score:

'BOUT SPORTS

The defeat that Walter Linder and his Deep River high outfit administered to Warren Harding yesterday at Bridgeport no doubt is cheerful news to Academy fans this morning. Harding it will be remembered was one of the Wildcats' strongest rivals in the dash for the state title but this defeat will be quite some obstacle. However, the Academy cannot take any chances for it, too may suffer the same thing although there does not seem to be anything like Deep River floating around for the next few games at east. The Red and White is the only team to date to beat Deep River this year.

JOHNNY GREENE HEADS ACADEMY HITTERS WITH THE MARK OF .643

Johnny Greene, lanky center fielder, leads the Academy in hitting with three games played. Johnny has a mark of .643 gained with nine hits in 14 times at bat. Lloyd Jarvis, fellow pitcher-outfielder, is right behind with .616, while Alex Arico, freshman first-sacker, comes in third with a mark of .417. Billy Tirrell, left fielder, and Captain Mace Goldblatt, catcher, round out those in the select .300 class. Joe (Boots) Greene, technically leads the team with a mark of 1.000 on one hit in one time at bat.

Lloyd Jarvis leads the fielders with nine chances errorlessly handled, although Johnny Greene, his brother (Boots), Tirrell and Weisgraber also bat 1.000. Goldblatt, with .951 is next.

The team hitting average of .374 is considered very good, the club having poled out 46 hits in the three games to date. The Wildcat fielding average is below par, but that is to be expected from such a young team as the state champions are.

Pirates 7, Reds 2

PITTSBURGH, April 26—(AP)—The Pirates hit Edwards and Jablonowski hard in the early innings while Carmen Hill held the Reds in check and Pittsburgh won 7 to 2 today from Cincinnati.

Hill showing no effects of recent injuries and illness, kept the Red Legs' seven hits well scattered to win his first victory of the campaign. Grantham Pirate first baseman hit his third home run of the season in the third inning.

Mays went to the mound and spiked the Buccaneer guns after the fourth, but the game already had been won and lost. Score:

PAUL WANER FURNISHES DAY'S FEATURE IN "BIG SIX"

By the Associated Press

With Rogers Hornsby out of the game with a touch of 'flu, Paul Waner displaced Ty Cobb from second place in the major action of the "Big Six" yesterday. Waner got three hits out of four attempts against Cincinnati pitchers yesterday as the Pirates downed the Reds, 7 to 2. Waner's average mounted to .373 as Cobb's fell to .359.

Both Babe Ruth and Harry Heilmann went hitless, and Kiki Cuyler was kept out of action by cold weather in Chicago. The relative standing of the three trailers remained the same.

The standing to date:

Hornsby	7	28	8	11	.393
P. Waner	12	52	10	19	.373
Cobb	9	39	5	14	.359

FRANKLIN FIELD IN SHAPE FOR PENN. CARNIVAL TODAY

PHILADELPHIA, April 26—(AP)—Franklin Field, for the next two days mecca for the star athletes of the east and some other parts of the country, was in prime condition for the 34th annual competition in the University of Pennsylvania's carnival of relay races and other track and field sports.

The track was pronounced by Lawson Robertson, Pennsylvania and Olympic team coach, as in perfect condition. The field with its new steeplechase course was also pronounced fit.

Despite the hundreds of athletes entered in the two days program of 102 events, there were few practising on the field today. No one was allowed on the track, and those who came to the field worked out on the grass.

GAVUZZI FIRST INTO HILLSIDE VIEW POST

HILLSIDE, VIEW, Mo., April 26—(AP)—Peter Gavuzzi of England, leader in C. C. Pyle's transcontinental foot race, finished first today by covering the 45.6 miles from Sullivan in 6:11:11. His elapsed time for 2,057.8 miles from Los Angeles to the fifty-fourth control here is 343:20:06.

Gavuzzi now leads Andrew Payne of Claremore, Okla., who finished fourth today by 1:49:35.

Phillip Granville of Hamilton, Ontario, who led the pack for three fourths of the lap, finished second in 6:22:11. John Salo, Passaic N. J., finished third in 7:07:41. Ed Gardner of Seattle and Payne tied for fourth in 7:27:55.

CENTRAL CONN. LEAGUE SEC'Y ARRESTED FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

MERIDEN, April 26—(AP)—Arthur J. Reilly, 37, editor of the Wallingford Times and secretary in 1927 of the Central Connecticut Baseball league, was arrested tonight on a charge of embezzling amounts totaling $440.30 from Dr. J. E. Stoddard, president of the league; and Managers Tobin of the Corbin Red Sox, New Britain; Coutts, of the Insilco team, Meriden; Martin, of the Pextos, Southington, and Eddy, of the Collinsville team. He was released under $500 bonds.

Reilly, it is charged, failed to return forfeits posted with him at the opening of the 1927 season by the team managers and Dr. Stoddard.

LINDER HURLS DEEP RIVER TO WIN OVER HARDING HIGH

(Special to The Bulletin)

BRIDGEPORT, April 26—Walter Linder, 17 year old pitcher, hurled little Deep River high to a 4 to 2 victory over Warren Harding high here today at Harding field. He was in fine form, keeping the Presidents' six hits fairly well scattered while his mates fell on the locals in the fifth and sixth for two runs each to overcome a one-run lead that had been established in the first inning.

MIKE ESPOSITO BEATS JOE CURRY AT NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, April 26—A card of seven professional bouts was presented at the Arena here tonight. For the most part, the bouts were colorless. "Doc" Sloman's action in giving Tommy Jarrett the decision over Mike Sarkis in a 137 pound bout, did not meet with the approval of the crowd and his decision in the feature bout between Mike Esposito and Joe Curry, was also questioned. He awarded Esposito the bout.

The summaries:

ST. PATRICK'S TAKES THIRD VICTORY, BEATING ST. MARY'S

The St. Patrick's school nine scored its third victory in as many starts this season Thursday afternoon at Mohegan park, easily disposing of the St. Mary's nine by a score of 16 to 4. Billy Connell pitched a fine game, setting down the Greeneville team with ease.

The winners were in fine form and the outcome was really never in doubt once things got started. John Cox starred in the field for the winners while the infield play of St. Patrick's proved a stumbling block to the aspirations of their opponents.

The winners lined up with Mathews, c, Connell, p, Caron, 1b, Couture, 2b, O'Neil and Hamil, 3b, H. Mathews, ss, Hamil, lf, Cox, cf and Penore, rf.

Previously St. Patrick's had scored two shutouts over Elizabeth street. Next Tuesday a second game will be played with St. Mary's.

YALE BURIES CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY BY 27 TO 0

NEW HAVEN, April 26—(AP)—Yale defeated Catholic university at baseball here this afternoon by the one sided score of 27 to 0 by a slugging attack that drove out a total of 20 hits, including one home run, one triple and three doubles. The winning Elis scored fourteen runs in the sixth inning to put the game on the ice although they led from the first inning when they scored five runs. Caldwell hit a home run in the sixth inning with one on base. The hit went into the left field bleachers, the first time such a hit has been made since the opening of the new stands. Loud and Thompson on the mound for Yale, had the situation well in hand at all times, holding the visitors to a total of six hits. Besides Caldwell, Garvey and Aldrich batted best for Yale. The Elis made but one error, while Catholic U. made seven.

Wesleyan Frosh Play Five Games

MIDDLETOWN, April 26—(AP)—Five games have been arranged for the Wesleyan university freshman baseball team, Assistant Manager Howard announced today. This is the first year that a freshman nine at Wesleyan will play outside games, inasmuch as prior to this year, first-year men were ineligible for the varsity.

The schedule is as follows: May 1, Middletown high at Middletown; May 12, New Haven high at Middletown; May 19, Weaver high at Middletown; May 26, Westminster school at Simsbury; May 30, Loomis prep at Windsor.

Interscholastic Sports

Walter Linder is sure getting a lot of publicity about the state but it is noticeable that his game here with the Academy is not being mentioned much.

Well, the Academy goes out of town for the first time tomorrow and for its second league game, with Chapman Tech at Morgan park, New London.

This will be Tech's second game of the season, she having been idle since losing to Deep River, 10 to 0, April 7 in the first game in eastern Connecticut.

The track meet this afternoon between Tech and N. F. A. ought to be closely contested. It is also at New London.

ROUTIS IS WINNER OVER FERNANDEZ IN 12-ROUNDER

CLEVELAND, April 26—(AP)—Andre Routis won the decision over Ignacio Fernandez here tonight in a 12-round bout.

Referee Kid McPartlin gave Routis six rounds—Fernandez four, and called two even. Routis weighed 126 pounds and Fernandez 123 1-4.

By winning Routis qualified to meet Sammy Dorfma in Madison Square Garde May 4. The New York boxing commission has named him Canzoneri's leading challenger and suspended the champion until he shall meet Routis. A recently scheduled bout between the two fell through when Canzoneri pleaded illness.

The bout was a bruising, boring battle all the way, Routis wading constantly in with his forearms to his foe and forcing Fernandez to hold on or retreat by his greater strength and weight. He wore down his opponent with his ceaseless attack and rocked the Filipino with hard lefts to the head.

HAGEN WORKS OUT TODAY FOR COMPSTON MATCH

LONDON, April 26—(AP)—Walter Hagen practices today for his 72 hole match with Archie Compston tomorrow and Saturday over the Moor Park course and although he has played little golf of late, he did not seem to be seriously off his game.

Arrangements have been made to care for a gallery of 1,500. Thirty-six holes will be played tomorrow and another 36 Saturday if so many should be necessary. A record price will be charged the spectators, 10 shillings a day or two days for 15 shillings.

Compston has been practicing for weeks and declared himself much pleased with his form.

Hagen was doubtful as to the soundness of his game as he has given more attention this year to making a motion picture than he has to perfecting his golf shots. However, today his approaching was deadly and if he can put the ball up to the pin in competition tomorrow as he did in practice, Compston will not find him a set-up.

HOPPE ACQUIRES BIG LEAD OVER LAYTON

CHICAGO, April 26—(AP)—Willie Hoppe of New York, took a big lead in his 600-point three-cushion billiard match with Johnny Layton of St. Louis, the national champion, by winning the seventh and eighth blocks today. He has clicked off 400 points as compared with Layton's 328 in 401 innings.

Hoppe gave Layton one of the worst defeats in his career by winning this afternoon's block, 50 to 17, running out in 20 innings with numerous clusters of threes and fours. He won tonight's block handily, 50 to 31, in 48 innings. His high run tonight was 10, in the 41st inning. Layton's best run was five.

Four more blocks of 50 points each remain to be played. Hoppe seems certain of victory with his 72-point lead.

Elkins Not to Compete

There was one bit of news that was regretfully received and that was that Fait V Elkins would not compete in the decathlon events, which will be the official tryout for the American Olympic team which will compete at Amsterdam this summer. Elkins who won the national decathlon championship last year is not in condition.

BOXING NOTES

Danielson takes the fistic limelight tonight.

And there seems to be quite a likely looking card arranged up there.

SUN FIRE WINS HIGHLAND CLAIMING STAKE AT JAMAICA

NEW YORK, April 26—(AP)—Breaking last in a field of 13 Sun Fire, owned by R. T. Wilson, president of the Saratoga Racing association, galloped past his dozen opponents to capture the Highland Claiming stake, feature at Jamaica today.

The Olambala-Suburst colt, ridden by Chubby Leonard, uncovered a dazzling burst of speed to win by two lengths. Poeticule was second and Balai D'or third. Sun Fire covered the six furlongs in 1:15. His victory enriched his owner $3,550.

Sold in the paddock today to J. H. Nicholson for $12,900, Prickly Heat, five-year-old chestnut gelding, rewarded his new master by winning the Tannerytown purse, feature at Havre de Grace. Geo De Mar closed fast to take second money, Fly Hawk was third. The mile and one-sixteenth was covered in 1:46 1-5.

At Beulah Park, Bonsky, five year old gelding, rewarded his backers at $275.60 for a $2 mutuels ticket, when he won the opening race.

VIC DARR WINS AT WATERBURY AMATEURS

WATERBURY, April 26—(AP)—Paddy Jones, of this city, knocked out Pat Shea, also of Waterbury in the main bout on the independent boxing show at Buckingham hall. Summary:

Harry Hooper, Norwich, beat Billy Prince, Waterbury.

WALTER JOHNSON TAKES CHARGE OF NEWARK BEARS

NEWARK, N. J., April 26—(AP)—A bit drawn from his long siege of illness, but declaring he felt fit, Walter Johnson, former pitcher of the Washington Senators, arrived here today to take charge of the Newark club of the International league.

More than 300 fans gave him a rousing reception. Mrs. Johnson wept as the crowd surged about her husband. "In all our years together, I have seen no finer tribute to Walter," she said.

Johnson's illness followed an attack of influenza last February.

COLUMBIA TO ENLARGE ITS ATHLETIC FIELD

NEW YORK, April 26—(AP)—Baker field, home grounds of Columbia's athletic teams, will be enlarged to seat 40,000 spectators, the university announced today. The new stadium, to take the form of a horseshoe and replace present seating accommodations of less than 30,000, will be completed by Sept. 29, when the football season opens with Vermont.

Delaney Has Short Rest

BRIDGEPORT, April 26—(AP)—Jack Delaney enjoyed a brief respite from boxing today in preparation for his bout with Jack Sharkey next Monday. Thomas E. Donohue, president of the National Boxing association and commissioner for Connecticut, watched the Bridgeport boxer go through five fast rounds of rope-skipping and bag punching.

Delaney will resume boxing again tomorrow, he announced after today's workout.

Frank Wilson Dies

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 26—(AP)—Frank "Zeke" Wilson, 58, for many years a pitcher for Cleveland in the old National league, died here today.

Wilson won fame when he pitched Cleveland to victory over Boston in the famous Temple cup series.

N. F. A. TRACK TEAM OPENS SEASON TODAY

This afternoon at Morgan park, New London, the Academy and Chapman Tech open the eastern Connecticut track season. Much interest is attached to this meet as it ought to give a definite line on the possibilities of those contending for work later on in the season.

The meet today is rated as about an even bet. The Academy seems well fortified in the sprints and in a goodly number of the field events while Chapman is said to be very strong in the longer runs and in a few of the events off the track.

Last year the Wildcats beat Tech here at the campus for their first dual meet win in about six years. Coach Matthew Sheridan has a hard-working group of candidates under his wing and they can be depended upon to give plenty of competition to the more experienced team down in the Whaling city.

Jim Kelly, basketball captain the past season, Johnny Greene, baseball star, Clint Robinson, Lyons, Prokop, Stasiak, Billy Tirrell, another baseball player and many other equally as capable are ready for the gun for the locals and needless to say, plenty of action should result. The event is slated for 3 o'clock.

Opponents in Finals Also Going

The following men, who met the champions in the final bouts, were also named to sail to the Olympics with the American boxing team: Gene Bianco, Boston, 112 pounds; Peter Mazio, Cleveland, 118 pounds; Edward Kaufman, Cleveland, 126 pounds; George Russo, Boston, 135 pounds; Carmen Tuzzollio, Los Angeles, 147 pounds; Allyn Stillman, St. Louis, 160 pounds; David Maier, Milwaukee, 175 pounds; and Royal Elliott, Alhambra, Calif., heavyweight.

At the suggestion of "Spike" Webb, of the Naval academy, the Olympic boxing coach, the committee took under advisement a proposal that Tommy Lown of New York, who won the national welterweight title for the second time early this morning and who took the 135 pound honors in 1926, be named captain of the Olympic boxing team.

If this suggestion is approved, it will be a signal honor for the New York boxer, as, according to Chairman Stumpf, no American athlete has been named as captain of an Olympic team since 1912 when Roy Mercier led the track and field team.

It was generally agreed during the tournament and meeting today that Lown, the outstanding amateur boxer in the country and a thorough sportsman, deserved an Olympic captaincy. Coach Webb has predicted that Lown would be the outstanding boxer in the Amsterdam games.

Not Official Yet

The newly created boxing team, however will not be really official until the American Olympic committee has placed its stamp of approval on the selections of Stumpf's committeemen. This approval is expected regardless of two protests which have been filed with General Douglas MacArthur, of Baltimore, the Olympic chairman. Los Angeles protested the decision victory which John Daley, won from Martin Zuniga in the second round 118 pound bout and the New England section of the A. A. U. was displeased with the foul decision which disqualified Frank Flynn, Boston, in his third round bout last night with Robert Gurnsey, of Gary, Ind., in the 160 pound division.

BETTER THAN 1920 OR 1924—SAYS SPIKE WEBB, COACH

By "SPIKE" WEBB

United States Olympic Boxing Coach

BOSTON, April 26—(AP)—After watching each of the 165 bouts which were run off in the three days A. A. U. national amateur boxing championship tournament and sizing up each of the boxers, it was evident to me that the United States would have a better Olympic boxing team than in 1920 or 1924.

The excellent material which the tournament uncovered makes the American Olympic boxing chances look brighter than they ever have been in the past. I was especially impressed by the growing number of college boxers who participated, representing institutions in all sections of the country and the service academies, as well as the generally high type non-college boxers who took part.

It was a wonderful tournament and the Boston officials of the amateur athletic association, who staged it, deserve much credit for their efforts. I was deeply impressed by the unfaltering interest of the public. Twenty thousand spectators viewed the bouts on each of the three nights and after all the expenses were met, there was a surplus of $29,000 for the American Olympic fund. The gate receipts, I understand, broke all financial records for such an event.

Most of the youthful boxers proved themselves "smart fighters" and what pleased me even more, they appeared to have been schooled more along the lines of Olympic boxing. That is they had a greater inclination to clean, open fighting, instead of the clinching and holding style.

The Olympic boxing committee has named each of the eight champions and their runners-up,

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

The outlook for a spring and summer of extensive building activity is very bright and local contractors are anticipating a very prosperous year. There is every indication at the present time that local building activities are due for a boom. With the property to be revalued those who have been contemplating building feel that they will only pay a small rate as compared to the present high rate of taxation. New buildings have been assessed at top figures and with the high rate of taxation this means quite an outlay.

In the town outside the city limits there is a very noticeable increase in the amount of building going on especially in the Norwich Town section where a number of new houses are being erected. The homes for Dr. J. J. Donohue and James E Roantree are nearly complete. A number of other houses in this section are well along. On Carroll avenue two houses are under construction, one being for W. S. Spencer, local contractor and the other for Alfred Allen. On Huntington Place two houses have been practically completed, one for Lyle Fillmore.

The largest building project in sight for the summer is the building of the new Masonic temple which will start as soon as the contract is awarded which will be later this week. An addition to the Rosenberg garage on the West Side is also planned, Mr. Rosenberg having recently purchased the adjoining property of the bottling company.

At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton during the past week a number of building permits were issued but they were mostly for the smaller types of buildings.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were 9 sales of real estate in Norwich as compared to 10 sales for the corresponding week in 1927. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $61,190 and $27,255.

In New London during the past week there were 9 sales of real estate, a decrease of three sales from the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $45,000 and $50,450.

NEW LONDON

Further indications that a typical spring building boom is now under full sway were shown this week when the council issued a total of 32 more building permits. Of these no less than seven are for new dwellings representing an outlay of more than $50,000 one is for the extensive alterations of a former mansion in Ocean avenue into an apartment, and 11 are for new garages of various dimensions. The others are for less important constructions and additions.

The seven new houses for which permits were issued this week will be located in various parts of the city. In Gardner avenue a one-family dwelling will be built for Jenson and Olsen of modern construction, 24 by 28 feet, from private plans by the day. In Graham place, Felix Niedzwecki is to build a dwelling 28 by 32 feet.

In Parkway a local contractor will erect a new house for George T. Shepard. The new house will be 36 by 33 feet of frame construction and will be built from private plans. In Colman street, a one-family house will be built from private plans. It will be built for Joseph Mondeiel. It will be 24 by 30 feet, of frame construction, and work will be done by the day from private plans.

Building Applications.

Lucius A. Parsons, frame shop, 13 Manwaring Hill (rear) $2,600.

F. Zuccardy, addition, 62 West Coit street, $450.

M. Merims, veranda, 52 Crystal avenue, $800.

Gertrude M. Crane, garage, 32 Ashcraft road, $600.

Alfretta H. Taylor, dwelling, 12 Berkeley avenue, $8,000.

NOANK.

A New London architect is preparing plans for alterations to the Old Tavern hotel in Noank, for Abafe Bros. & Co. The changes will consist of the removal of two entire floors and the reinforcement of the building with steel columns and trusses. The plans will call for new floors and walls, new plumbing and heating, etc. The work will be done by day labor.

MYSTIC.

An architect of New London is preparing plans for a two-story brick and steel structure to be erected on Main street, Mystic, for R. Nigrelli of Mystic. The building will be 48x55 feet, and will have three stores on the ground floor and three offices and lodge rooms on the second floor. The estimated cost is $14,000.

WESTERLY

For the third week in April Westerly Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi and Westerly Building Inspector Thomas Wills have issued the following zoning and building permits:

April 16.—J. Hobart Chapman, Avondale. New floor and doors to present garage at Avondale and alterations.

April 16.—Anniello Matarese, 9 Pleasant street. Two-car garage, 20 feet by 20 feet at rear of 9 Pleasant street, hollow interlocking tile and asbestos roof.

April 17.—Mrs. Jane Dowling, 10 Hobart street. Reshingle roof at 10 Hobart street with slate coated shingles.

April 18.—Miss Mabel Todd and Miss Priscilla White. Summer home, 40 feet by 38 feet, with basement and garage, at Shelter Harbor.

April 18.—Oscar Neidel, 51 Beach street. Reshingle side of house at 51 Beach street with wooden shingles.

April 18.—John A. Mackay, 27-28 Main street, White Rock. Garage, 18 feet by 20 feet at rear of house, slate-coated shingle roof and novelty siding.

April 20.—E. B. Langworthy, Rockhaven Hotel, Weekapaug. Addition, 16 feet by 16 feet to present garage, slate-coated shingle roof and board sides.

Plans for alterations and for the erection of a substantial addition to the residence of Sidney B. Alling of Westerly have been prepared. The house will be entirely remodeled. There will be new floors, fireplaces, new plumbing, heating, and electric wiring, and four baths. A garage 18 by 23 feet, will also be erected. The plans are now being figured.

POPULAR ENTERTAINMENT FOR CONG. FLOWER FUND

An entertainment given in the Congregational vestry Thursday evening was composed of a musical program and a play. It opened with the musical numbers. An orchestra, Charles Perkins, violin; Earl Robinson, saxophone and Mrs. Irene Benjamin, piano, played Lonesome, On a Rainy Day and In the Sing Song Sycamore Tree. Their encores were Song of Hawaii, Mary Ann and She is the Sweetheart of Sigma Chi. Mrs. F. D. Ballou and Mrs. L. G. Buckingham sang Schubert's Serenade as a duet, with The Wanderer's Night Song for an encore. Mrs. Benjamin accompanied them. Lucille Tomlinson played the piano solo Orsa Grand Polka, by L. M. Gottschalk; The Eskimo, a musical recitation, was given by Mrs. E. H. Hiscox. During intermission, home made candy was sold by Ellen Faust and Loretta Alley. The play kept the audience in continuous laughter. Not only were the situations ludicrous, but the costumes were a scream, gotten up in combinations that were a sight. The title of the play was A Tempest in a Hat Shop and the scene was in the show room of the Elite Hat Shop. The characters were: Mrs. Gilchrist, proprietor of the hat shop, Isabel Marshall; Miss Buehl, the efficient senior saleslady, Irene Benjamin; Miss Hattie Dyer, the inefficient junior saleslady, Bessie Thompson; Mrs. Luke Blackburn, widow of Ezra Blackburn Minnie Hiscox; Mrs. Myra Blackburn Kounts, daughter of the late Ezra Blackburn, Ethel Fiske; Birdie Kountz eleven year old spoiled child of Mrs Kountz, Estelle Parkhurst; Mrs. Fogle, Mrs. Blackburn's bosom friend, Margaret Kelly; Miss Clara Elder, Mrs oKunts's friend and confidante, Ruth Benjamin; Mrs. Jarrup, the terrible town gossip, Sadie Thompson; The Strange Customer, Mabel Wilcox; The Undecided Customer, Christine Wardell; The Diplomatic Customer, Eleanor Stetson. The girls interpreted their parts splendidly and entered into the spirit of the funny situations with much zest. Miss M. A. Burdick was in charge of the entertainment, the girls ably assisting her in the arrangements Mrs. E. H. Hiscox was in charge of the musical program. The proceeds are to be used for church floral decorations.

All the churches in town will conduct their services next Sunday on daylight saving time. This includes Pachaug, Bethel and the Voluntown Baptist and Methodist churches. The evening services at the three Protestant churches will commence at 7.30 instead of 7.

Sunday morning at the Methodist church, Deaconess Marion Hope from Fall River will address the congregation. In the afternoon she will be at Voluntown and Bethel churches.

THE WHY OF UNSUCCESSFUL FARMERS.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

Continuing along the line of suggestions touched on in last week's "Talk," there is much more to be said that seems to me worth saying.

There will always be unsuccessful farmers, just as there will always be unsuccessful storekeepers and unsuccessful lawyers and unsuccessful ministers.

Also, there will always be successful farmers, just as there will always be successful men in other vocations.

Why?

Well, largely and in most cases because some men haven't the qualifications for success in them, and others have.

Of course, it won't do to be too dogmatic about this. Few are the rules which have no exceptions and rare the laws which work exactly alike in all cases. But the truth seems to be indicated by both observation and experience that some men have in themselves the capacity to compel success even in face of apparently insurmountable difficulties, while others enter any vocation with a handicap which from the start delays their progress. These handicaps are less likely to be physical than mental. They are less often due to weak legs or arms than to thick heads.

Go into any city and you'll commonly find a number of stores selling the same general run of goods. Almost always one or two of these will be pre-eminently successful, constantly growing and enlarging. Many of the others will just be struggling along, barely able to make both ends meet.

Almost every daily paper I pick up has the obituary notice of some merchant who has grown wealthy by store-keeping. The same papers will, usually, have notices of other merchants who have gone into bankruptcy.

Or consider the roster of lawyers. That city will show you some who are making substantial incomes and are busy practically all the time. It will also show you others who are sitting despondently in rarely-visited offices, waiting vainly for the clients who do not come.

You will also find mechanics busy at their lathes or benches, and never worrying over any danger of losing their jobs. You will find others tramping from shop to shop, looking for work which they can't seem to find.

Then go out for a long drive about the country. You will find here and there a farmer who is making good. You will find others who are not, who are just living "from hand to mouth," with the mouth not always certain of what the hand will supply.

It isn't the store or the goods that makes the one merchant successful. It isn't the office that makes one lawyer "the dean" of his local bar. It isn't the shop or the lathe which makes one mechanic always in demand at high wages. It isn't, usually, the farm which makes its own success.

It's the man at the head of the store; the man in the lawyer's chair; the man handling the mechanic's tools; the man running the farm. At least, it is so in nine cases out of ten.

It's simply another example of the work of my old friends "grit and gumption." Some men have 'em both; and some men seem to have neither.

What I can't see, however, is why the farmer should blame farming for his failure and not blame merchandising, law and artisanship for those who fail in them. Surely, what's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

In olden times when big families were the rule throughout New England, the eldest son was destined for the ministry, the next for the law, another for medicine, and so on, while the "fool of the family" was expected to stay on the farm. Those days have gone. The average New England farmer isn't today the fool of the family—nor anybody else's fool. He has usually gone into farming with his eyes open. He is quite as amenable to reason as the next man, whatever that next man's vocation.

Now, to carry the argument one step further, if you'll study up the cause of one merchant's or one lawyer's or one mechanic's success, you'll usually find that they started out by doing something new and different or by doing some old stunt in a better or at least a different way. They blazed a new trail of some sort. They didn't follow blindly any old rut, but proceeded to make their own. They studied with pernickety care the conditions, adverse and helpful, which they saw, and laid a new course which promised the best sailing. But always it was a more or less different course from that which others were taking. They unquestionably held to many old customs of proven excellence. But they added to them—added something in they way of convenience or adaptation which attracted the public they wanted to win. They kept on adding new features from time to time, trying out and discarding many, without doubt, but always eager to adopt any which should draw new customers or fasten more securely the loyalty of old ones.

And it's right here, seems to me, that more farmers slip up than in any other one direction. Many of us are so wedded to the old ways that we can't or won't try out the new. We've always grown such and such crops in such and such ways. So we keep on growing them, ignoring or defying the changing currents of popular demand.

And then we blame farming for what is really our own fault. We say that farming doesn't pay any more. As regards the old farming, this is undeniably true. The crops which were profitable a generation ago can now be grown only at a loss. The crops may be and usually are just as good. But market conditions have changed. The tastes of the consumer public have changed. Farming must change with them, if it is to bring success to the farmer.

As I related, last week, some Georgia farmers who used to grow cotton, cotton, cotton, and then more cotton, and sell it for anything they could happen to get, which wasn't usually enough to pay up their grocers' back bills, discovered that certain Levantine immigrants in the big cities were crying vainly for kids. So they stopped growing cotton, which took hard work and brought no profit, and began breeding Easter kids, with very little work and very big profits.

Isn't the one just as practical farming as the other? And why should they stick to the old ways, working for nothing and boarding themselves, as the slang phrase has it, when the new way meant better living and surer success?

Suppose the Georgia farmer had said: "No, indeed; father always raised cotton; I've always raised cotton; no goats and kids for me!" He simply wouldn't have had the new radio set and the growing bank account which the kids have warranted.

Now, I don't profess to know what the markets of Norwich and New London and Willimantic and Putnam and Danielson and other places are "shy" of; what there is which somebody in them wants, and wants badly, but can't get handily. But I'd be willing to bet a good apple against a bad egg that there are people in those cities who want something some nearby farmer could raise, and are willing to pay well for it, if he would only produce it and offer it.

It is right along that line that some farmer will be able to make a success off his old farm—if he only has the gumption to find the line and follow it.

When he does, and when he attains success, it is quite likely that a lot of his grouchy neighbors will still maintain that "farmin' don't pay no more," but that he has had a "streak of luck."

The country merchant used to stock up his store with an array of scythes and snaths, of butternut-dyed homespuns and kip boots, of brown sugar and "stick candy," etc., etc. He'd do a deuce of a business trying to sell such things now. Instead he puts in a line of mowing-machine sections, of denim overalls, of domino sugar and Huyler's chocolates, and the other goods which an utterly unlike rural demand calls for. That merchant doesn't stock up with the goods that used to be wanted but aren't any more. He puts in such things as his experience has shown him his customers are going to call for. And he's doing pretty well, thank you, at least in my neighborhood. Anyway, he usually has more money and drives a better car than most of his farmer customers. And one big reason for it is that he sells what his customers want, while too many of the farmers around him seem to expect customers to buy what they have raised, regardless of such customers' different hankerings.

This is a direct reversal of the natural order. And the farmer who first grasps that fact and trims his sails according to the prevailing winds will be apt to make port soonest and surest.

I've repeatedly said that farming is something more than a business, it is a life. But that life must be raised on a business basis. The mind is more important than the body. But we have to feed the body and keep it up to scratch or the mind pays out. Farming must rest on a sound business basis and it must be conducted along right business lines to attain success and become the life which is its ultimate aim.

In every other business the man who sets out for his share of the public's money attains success only as he rightly gauges that public's wants and offers the goods to meet them.

This is just as true in farming as in store-keeping.

When farmers come to appreciate it more keenly there will be more to succeed at the noble old calling.

But it is still as foolish as it was 1,900 years ago to put new wine into old bottles.

THE FARMER.

SPRING HILL

The Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church at its annual meeting heard reports which showed a very prosperous year. After expenditures of nearly $600, the society has a balance in the treasury of $235. Among the disbursements of the organization were $200 for the church, $115 for a stove for the church kitchen, $69.54 for fuel, $127 for building a woodshed, $25 for the Mississippi flood relief, $25 to the pastor's wife during her illness, $10 to a family whose home was burned and $6 for repairs on the organ. The officers elected are: President, Mrs. Dorothy Gardiner; vice president, Mrs. Parker Wildes; secretary, Miss E. Freeman; treasurer, Mrs. Edga Storrs, solicitor, Mrs. W. D. Gifford; housekeeper, Mrs. C. C. Davis.

The Sunday school of the church at Spring Hill will celebrate its 100th anniversary in June. The church voted at the annual meeting to repaint the exterior trim of the church, paint the exterior woodwork, varnish the floor, erect a bulletin board and install a furnace. It was also voted to build a line fence. Most of these improvements, it is expected, will be completed before the celebration in June.

Following the Fashion

The corn-fed lass, as she looks in the glass,
Sees a maiden fair and plump,
With the form girls prized when they realized
How they made men's hearts thump.
But she says, with a sigh: "Can that be I?
Do I really look like that?
Is there no escape from this barrel shape?
I declare, I am getting fat!"

So she tries not to eat things starchy or sweet,
Though she quits them with regret;
But it's hard to fight with your appetite,
And she isn't slender yet!
And the corn-fed lass, as she looks in the glass,
Murmurs sadly: "What's the use!
I am getting fat! There's no doubt of that!
And I really must reduce!"

—Somerville Journal.

CHAPLIN

The postponed Easter concert given by the Center and South Chaplin Sunday schools was given in the Congregational church Sunday under the direction of Mrs. Chas. Gallup, superintendent of the primary department. The program included new Easter songs, readings and exercises given by the children in a very pleasing way. Mrs. Katherine Crane and Alice Sugrue sang. Mrs. Cora Trowbridge gave a reading and Mrs. Elsworth Weeks read a poem. The interesting exercises closed with the C. E. benediction.

Dr. and Mrs. Howard Bowen of Hartford were week end visitors with Mr. and Mrs. George E. Snow.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Bradford of Velmont, Mass., and Mrs. John Gallup of Plainfield called on their aunt, Mrs. W. B. Gallup, Friday.

John! You Old Scout! You're Growing As Thin As a Rail

He used to be such a manly looking fellow with good features and a fine figure, but now his meagre flesh hardly covers his bones—He is absolutely skinny.

Pretty tough on John to have his friends talking about him that way, but the health resorts and the Mountains are populated with just such John's who kept getting thinner and thinner without trying to help themselves.

Helps Women To Do Their Work

"I don't see how you can do all your own housework, sew for three children and find time for so much church and lodge work. I should be a nervous wreck."

"So should I without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken it for years whenever I feel nervous, fretty, or all tired out."

"Don't Get So Tired"

Mr. Carmel, Pa.—"After my second baby was born I had to work too hard and be on my feet too soon because my husband was ill. After his death I was in such a weakened and run-down condition that nothing seemed to help me. I am starting the fourth bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and feel a great deal better. I am much stronger and don't get so tired out when I wash or work hard. I do housekeeping and dressmaking and I highly recommend the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Gertrude Butts, 414 S. Market St., Mt. Carmel, Pa.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Old Mr. Toad Appears

Hold not the humble up to scorn;
Perchance you are no better born.
—Old Mother Nature.

Reddy Fox, finding it was no use to try to get Peter Rabbit, because of Prickly Porky the Porcupine, finally went off about his business. By this time, Scrapper the Kingbird had gone to his nest in another part of the Old Orchard. He had heard Mrs. Scrapper calling him and had not dared remain away any longer. So Peter knew that Jungle stories were at an end for the present. He sat trying to make up his mind just where to go next, and then there suddenly appeared right in front of him Old Mr. Toad.

Peter was startled. He hadn't seen Old Mr. Toad approach. Yet there was Old Mr. Toad sitting right in front of him. "Where'd you come from?" demanded Peter bluntly.

"It is no business of yours where I came from," replied Old Mr. Toad pleasantly, "but just to satisfy your curiosity I'll tell you that I came right out of the ground."

Then, for the first time, Peter noticed that Mr. Toad seemed to be sitting half buried. "Do you mean," said Peter, "that you came right out of the ground where you are now sitting?"

"Of course," said Old Mr. Toad. "Why not?"

"But I didn't see any hole there," cried Peter, looking very much surprised.

"Of course you didn't. There wasn't one there," replied Old Mr. Toad. "I've just dug out. Pleasant, isn't it?"

"Very pleasant, indeed," replied Peter. "But I don't understand about that hole."

"There's nothing to understand that I can see," said Old Mr. Toad. "I was down in here and now I've come out. That's all there is to it."

"Do you mean that you were buried down in the ground?" inquired Peter.

"That's it, Peter, that's it," said Old Mr. Toad. "How did you guess it? I slept a little longer this spring than I meant to. I'm afraid I'm late. Yes, sir, I'm afraid I'm late."

"Late for what?" interrupted Bobby Coon.

"Late for the grand chorus in the Smiling Pool," replied Old Mr. Toad. "If you'll excuse me, I think I'll start along right away. I should be down there singing now."

"Oh!" said Peter, remembering how important Old Mr. Toad thinks his part is in the Smiling Pool chorus. "It's a long way to the Smiling Pool from here, Mr. Toad. Aren't you going to get your dinner first?"

Old Mr. Toad opened and shut his mouth two or three times, as if he were trying to get his jaws limbered up. "I don't want any dinner for a month yet," said he.

"You'll excuse me if I leave you?"

"A month?" cried Peter, as if very much in doubt as to what he had heard.

"That's what I said," replied Old Mr. Toad testily. "Eating isn't at all important just now. The important thing for me just now is to get down to the Smiling Pool and sing. No one wants to eat when he can sing. If I don't get down there right quick, Mrs. Toad will think something has happened to me. She's probably down there listening for my voice this very minute. You'll excuse me if I leave you, won't you?"

COLUMBIA

DEATH OF ERWIN COLLINS AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Erwin Collins, 48, died Monday at 9 p. m. after two weeks' illness. He was born in Columbia March 25, 1880, the oldest son of Warren A. and Ella J. Collins. He was a member of the First Congregational church in East Hartford, of Orient lodge, No. 62, A. F. and A. M., of East Hartford, and Columbia grange, P. of H., being assistant steward of that organization at the time of his death. He was registrar of voters in Columbia and had served on the local board of assessors for many years. He leaves four sisters, Miss Eva M. Collins, Miss Myrtle M. Collins, Mrs. Raymond Lyman of Columbia and Miss Lura B. Collins of East Hartford, and three brothers, G. Cleveland Collins and Ernest W. Collins of East Hartford and Herbert C. Collins of Willimantic. The funeral services were held at his residence on Columbia Green Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial was in Columbia cemetery. The loss of Mr. Collins will be keenly felt by the people of Columbia. His willingness to help, his genial disposition, and his participation in the many activities of the community made for him a multitude of friends who are saddened by his untimely death.

The annual and speaking and spelling contest of the town schools was held at the hall Friday afternoon. Those taking part were the winners of the six schools in town. Those in the speaking contest were Westcott Rice of the Center, Mary Wilke of Hop River, Celia Zenowitz of Chestnut Hill, Leonard German of West street, Frederick Macht of Old Hop River, Marie Fisher of Pine street. The judges were Mrs. Welch and Mrs. Mitchell of Columbia, and Miss White of Andover. They decided that Westcott Rice who recited "The Wind and the Moon" had won first place, and Leonard German of West street, who spoke "I Am an American," won second place. The spellers were Jasper Woodward of Center, Annis Chowenac of Old Hop River, Celia Zenowitz of Chestnut Hill, Wilhelmina German of West street, Jack Rubenstein of Pine street and Jennie Johnson of Hop River Village. Celia Zenowitz of Chestnut Hill and Annie Chowenac of Old Hop River won first and second places respectively.

Miss Sergio of Forestville is again substituting at the Pine street school in the illness of the teacher, Mrs. Cummings.

The meeting of the Columbia Improvement society will be held Saturday evening next.

COLCHESTER

Making his rounds Saturday morning about 2 o'clock, Peter Friez, night watchman for the Clarence H. Norton paper mill in North Westchester, noticed flames in the store room. They had gained such headway that he could not check them. To get help he went to the engine room and sounded an alarm on the whistle. People in the place responded and formed a bucket brigade and worked with a vim to try to check the flames; but the fire had too strong a hold on the wooden building and swept through to complete its destruction. Calls for aid were sent out to the fire departments in East Hampton and Colchester. East Hampton responded with the chemical engine and Colchester sent over the pumper and chemical. But there was nothing the companies could do except to keep the fire from spreading to neighboring houses. The cause of the fire is believed to be spontaneous combustion. The mill had shipped away most all the finished product, but a large part of the raw material was destroyed. The Norton mill was built about 40 years ago and was used in the manufacture of paper board. It had employed about 20 hands, who will b idle a short while but Mr. Norton expects to start to rebuild as soon as he can. The drying room and part of the stock room were saved. The Colchester Fire Co. and the large pump in the mill threw four streams on the fire. Saturday afternoon the pumper went over again and filled up the boiler. It is understood that Mr. Norton carried some insurance. It is quite a blow to the little hamlet, as most of the residents worked in the mill.

There were two accidents Sunday on the Norwich turnpike. An Essex coach tipped over near the poor farm; the other accident happened about one and a half miles from the village. No one was badly injured.

George B. A. Baker and family of Meriden were guests of Mr. Baker's parents Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Strong motored Saturday to Manchester, where they were guests of relatives.

Closer than a tattooed anchor

P.A. and I are like that. Closer than the paper on the wall. P.A. is so companionable, so genuinely friendly. When you open the tidy red tin, you get a fragrant notice of how friendly it's going to be in a pipe. Then you tamp in a load and apply the match.

Man, that taste! Cool as an Eskimo's front porch. Refreshing as arctic sunshine. Mellow and mild and long-burning, with a full, rich tobacco-body that puts you next to a new kind of pipe-joy. Here's a smoke that you can write home about. It's got everything!

They tell me more P.A. is smoked than any other brand. I believe it, and I think I know why. If you don't know the deep-down satisfaction of a jimmy-pipe and Prince Albert, you've been missing the best bet in the whole tobacco-line. I'm giving it to you straight, Men.

There are TWO full ounces of smoke-contentment in every tidy red tin.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

There was really nothing outstanding in the way of news value that occurred in Norwich or vicinity 75 years ago. The death of Vice President King, however, occurred at his home in Alabama, and caused great sympathy throughout the country. The following items are taken from the files of the Norwich Evening Courier:

Tuesday, April 19, 1853—Mr. Samuel Gager of Bozrah, in making his annual call upon us, on Saturday last, for the renewal of his subscription to the Weekly Courier, stated that he commenced taking the paper when he was 22 years of age—that now he was 78 and consequently had been a regular subscriber for the term of 56 years—that is to say, a little more than one year longer than the Courier has been known by its present name. At the time he became a subscriber it was published under the title of the Norwich Packet.

The old gentleman, we are happy to add, though he stands on the verge of four score years, is as bright and active physically and mentally, as most men at 65, and bids fair to rival in longevity, as well as cheerful vivacity of spirit and equanimity of temper, our venerable friend and fellow citizen, Capt. Erastus Perkins, of this city.

A treaty for the mutual extradition of criminals is announced between Prussia and the United States.

At a meeting of the court of common council of the city held on Monday evening the matter of the proposed erection of a building upon one of the highways of the city, leading from Commerce street to the wharf, was brought before the board and thereupon a select committee was appointed consisting of Messrs. George Perkins, Franklin Nichols and D. Moore, with full power and authority to take all necessary steps to protect the public highway and streets of the city from encroachments and to prosecute all persons who shall render themselves liable to prosecution by such encroachments.

Thursday, April 21, 1853—The Boston Post says that counterfeit five dollar notes on the Winsed (Conn.) bank are in circulation. They look well but bear no resemblance to the genuine.

William R. King, vice president of the United States, reached his home in Dallas county, Alabama, on Sunday morning, the 17th inst., breathed his last on Monday evening following, and was buried yesterday morning at 11 o'clock at his plantation of the Pine Hallas, six miles east of Cahawba.

The average sales of horses in New York city are about 300 per week and the average price, of late, has been $200.

Saturday, April 23, 1853—Senator Borland has declined the governorship of New Mexico.

Jonathan Phillips of Boston has donated $10,000 to the aid of the public library of that city.

The W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. E. V. Whiting Wednesday afternoon. After a short business session the following program was given: As I See It, Mrs. W. L. Rollinson; America's Leadership, Mrs. Martha Stinson; Christian Principles Applied in Government, Mrs. C. E. Newbury; Mothers and Teachers Speak Up, Mrs. G. C. Allyn; Why Not Join the Speak Ups, Mrs. E. D. Lathrop; Boston Women Speak Up, Mrs. E. V. Whiting; We Are Still At It, Mrs. W. H. Lamb.

LEBANON

The Ramblers, a club formed by the girls of the Congregational church and led by Mrs. Vey, held its first scheduled meeting Saturday, April 21, at the home of Mrs. Vey. A few weeks previous these officers were elected: Florence Pulz, president; Thurley Cummings, vice president; Shirley Cummings, secretary and treasurer. The meetings are scheduled for every other Saturday, two members having charge of the meeting, one for the refreshments, the other for the program. The aim of the club is to form athletic teams, sewing contests and hiking teams. Last Saturday Florence Campbell and Julia Standish planned a happy afternoon which was spent in hiking, during which time they visited Mrs. Hallem's home. Upon their return a lunch of sandwiches, cake, tea-cakes and lemonade was served Florence Pults and Shirley Cummings were chosen to be responsible for the next meeting.

At the Baptist church Sunday morning Rev. A. G. Littlefield took as his text 1st Corinthians 2:15. The C. E. meeting was led by the pastor.

Mrs. Austin Wade of Hartford spent several days this week with her daughter, Mrs. E. P. Abel.

Mrs. Arthur Bruce has been entertaining her mother, Mrs. Maynard, also her nephew from East Lyme.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Carpenter and son, of Hartford, spent Sunday with Mr. Carpenter's father, B. F. Carpenter.

Rev. A. G. Littlefield, Thomas Fowler and C. S. Goodwin were in New London Saturday to attend the launching of the Peruvian submarine R-3.

William Harvey and son, Leroy, of New London were at their home in Lebanon Saturday.

WINDHAM

The Congregational church was closed Sunday on account of the 100th anniversary exercises of the daughter church in Willimantic. A number attended the services Sunday and many more went over to the pageant Monday evening, Harry Moseley running his bus and a seven-passenger car, which were filled with those who had no other way of going. The second episode in the pageant was given by eighteen Windham people and represented a scene in the ministry of Rev. Samuel Whiting, first pastor of the church. Rev. Mr. Whiting was impersonated by H. C. Lathrop, Mrs. Whiting by Mrs. Guy Richmond. Their thirteen children were represented by various young people of the town, and others having a part were Mr. and Mrs. Eden Cook and Carl Josephson, who was the tithing man.

At the meeting of the Connecticut 4-H clubs in Hartford Friday and Saturday Katharine Mara is one of those who will tell "What 4-H club work has meant to me."

Uphill—Extra power!

for safer, more delightful travel

The illustrations of the Nash Advanced Six and Special Six Sedans, shown above, point out two very great advantages which belong to everyone who drives the Nash.

For climbing hills, going around other cars, getting away in front at a traffic start, Nash has extra power and greater flexibility, produced by the highly perfected, precision balanced, Nash 7-bearing motor, and the equally famous Nash straight line drive.

Coming down hills, driving in traffic, meeting a sudden emergency—Nash 2-way 4-wheel brakes surround Nash owners with exceptional safety. And they also require the minimum of attention and adjustment, because of their 2-way and fully equalized design.

The extra power and extra safety of Nash travel cost you nothing, as you will discover if you compare Nash prices to the prices asked for other cars. Nash leads the world in motor car value!

CITIZENS WANT AERIAL TRUCK—SPECIAL MEETING TO DECIDE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 26—A special meeting of the Westerly Fire District has been called for Wednesday evening, May 9, for the purpose of appropriating a sufficient sum of money to purchase a motor truck. The recent fire showed the need of such additional apparatus for the use of the fire department and the petitioners therefor pray that a special meeting of the Fire District be called for the purpose of voting on the question: Shall the Westerly Fire District appropriate a sum not to exceed $13,000 for the purpose of purchasing an aerial truck, and authorize the treasurer of this district to borrow such sum or sums of money as may be necessary to meet the cost of said truck.

The petitioners are: "Max Novogrodt, H. H. Coleman, O. C. Stott, Robert H. Farnham, Anthony F. Stave, Thomas P. Patton, H. M. Clarke, Thomas H. Morrison, Farquhar Smith, Walter S. Price, Arthur N. Nash, John R. Oppy, Edward Little, John H. Farnsworth, Charles Rulel, John Smith, William D. Wells, Clarence A. Vars, Raymond C. Vars and Edwin R. Lewis."

JURY FINDS WILCOX GUILTY ON DRUNKEN DRIVING CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, April 26—In the superior court at Kingston the trial was begun of the case of Richard Wilcox, charged with the operation of an automobile on Granite street, Feb. 18th, while under the influence of liquor. Third Assistant Attorney General Louis V. Jackvony is representing the state. The state's witnesses were Medical Examiner Dr. Michael H. Scanlon of Westerly, Police Lieutenant George H. Champlin, Patrolman LeRoy H. Norman, Patrolman Michael Curtin and Cyrus H. Brown. Wilcox denied that he was present at the time when his automobile became involved in an accident on the night of February 16. He asserted that the car was taken from his garage without his knowledge that evening.

Further witnesses called for the defense prior to the noon recess were Lawrence Wilcox, brother of the defendant, Mrs. Marian Wilcox Brown, sister, and William Wilcox, his father.

After being out about half an hour, the jury returned a verdict of guilty against Wilcox. Sentence will be deferred five days. A similar case against Cyrus H. Brown, Wilcox's companion was nolled.

Civil cases are scheduled to occupy the court's time Monday next.

ELKS BEARERS AT FUNERAL OF WILLIAM M. FISHWICK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, April 26—Funeral services for William M. Fishwick, who died at Norwich, were held this morning at 8:30 o'clock from his home, 29 Moss street. A solemn Mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock at St. Michael's church by Rev. J. F. Quinn, with Rev. Leo C. Weston, deacon, and Rev. J. F. Vincent, S. M., sub-deacon. Following the Mass, Martin H. Spellman, sang "Beautiful Land on High" and "Jesus, Lover of My Soul." Burial was at St. Michael's old cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Fr. Quinn. The bearers were six members of Westerly lodge, No. 678, B. P. O. E. Elks, Charles H Cushman, George P. Chapman, A. T. L. Ledwidge, C. Leo Higgins, William Donovan and G. P. Toscano.

A verdict of not guilty was returned in Washington county superior court, late Wednesday, at Kingston by the jury which had considered the case against Henry N. Girard, charged with the burning of a house owned by him on the Allenton road in North Kingston. The jury panel was Albert B. Stedman (foreman), Edmund E. Nye and Hugh J. Fitzpatrick, South Kingston; Edward Ferrare, Edwin G. King, Malcolm D. Perry and George H. Spargo, Westerly; Henry E. Jencks and Everett M. Kenney, Hopkinton; Joseph M. Malloy, Richmond; Willis B. Kenyon, Exeter; Benjamin A. Kinnecom, Narragansett. This trial opened Wednesday morning, April 18, and continued through four court days, Judge Charles A. Walsh was on the bench.

The following transfer has been recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk: April 25. Leroy F. Cox and Clara A. Cox to Morris Okoon, Inc., a Florida corporation, land bounded northerly partly by Margin street and lands of Edwin Kenyon, easterly by a private right of way of the Town of Westerly, southerly by lands of the Town of Westerly and westerly by the Pawcatuck river together with all buildings and improvements.

The one hundred and ninth anniversary of Oddfellowship was observed at the special meeting Thursday night by Narragansett lodge, No. 7, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Archibald M. Sanders, noble grand. April 26th was the anniversary date of the founding of Oddfellowship, and a committee of which William Hill was chairman had charge of the anniversary observance. This began at 8 o'clock with an entertainment and was followed by roll call and refreshments.

Russell Hemphill, master of Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, A. F. and A. M. of Pawcatuck, presided Thursday evening in the Masonic hall, High street, when members of Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M. of Westerly were guests, together with the women friends of the lodge members An illustrated lecture on the George Washington National Masonic memorial, Alexandria, Va., was given by Past Grand Master of Masons of Connecticut Arthur N. Nash, a member of the Connecticut Grand lodge on the building committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Maxon of Montreal, arrived at their summer home, 128 Main street, Wednesday evening, having made the trip by automobile. They reported a snow storm progress when they left Montreal.

Judge William A. Wilcox was in Jamestown, R. I., Tuesday.

Dr. Thomas E. Robinson left Wednesday morning on a business trip to Amherst, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon H. Corey, of Wakefield, R. I., were visitors in Pawcatuck on Tuesday.

Fayette F. Freeman left Wednesday for Boston.

Mrs. John M. O'Connell and Miss Vera Galli were in Providence Wednesday afternoon.

Frank A. Sullivan was a business visitor in Boston Wednesday.

Westerly Square and Compass club, No. 176, Francis G. Haswell, president, Wednesday evening at its club rooms held its April social. Two professional entertainers from Hartford presented an hour's program. Sandwiches and coffee were served and a social time with card and pool games followed.

Joseph Stedman left Wednesday to attend the Advertisers' Convention in New York.

Fire alarm No. 215 about 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning called out three pieces of apparatus of the Westerly department. A Buick automobile owned by parties from Wakefield, R. I., was reported to have skidded on the wet surface of Franklin street and turned over, striking a telephone pole, which was broken. Fearing the blaze which might result from leaking gas the fire alarm was rung in. The number being mistaken for the first two figures caused the apparatus to go by the way of that Granite street and Newton avenue box number.

April 24. John J. Dunn and William D. Dolan to Josephine Costanza, lots Nos. 151, 157 and 163, Weekapaug Terrace tract.

UNION

A meeting of the Home Economics club was held at the town hall Wednesday evening of last week. Miss Edith Mason gave instruction and practical help in the second of a series of three meetings devoted to home furnishings. Among the topics discussed were sheets, pillow slips, towels, cushions, curtains and various draperies. Miss Mason displayed samples of materials for draperies, etc. It is expected that the third meeting of the series will be held in May, the date being announced later.

Miss Anna Szych, a senior in Stafford High school, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Szych.

Mrs. Lottie E. Ladd of Norwich, who was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Alva Sands, for nearly a week, has returned home.

Leroy Eaton, his sons, Wayne and Melville, accompanied by a high school class mate of Wayne, all of Watertown, Mass., spent Sunday at the Eaton farm at Mashapaug.

Miss Mary E. Agard, a student in the New Haven Normal school, who was at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Agard, for a vacation of a few days, returned to New Haven Sunday.

Lester Collard of Springfield, Mass. recently spent a day as the guest of his brother-in-law, Alva Sands.

The schools of Union were closed Friday, April 20, to enable the teachers to attend the exhibition held by the Eastern Arts association in the state armory at Hartford.

Mrs. Sarah Ballou returned Thursday from a visit of three weeks with Staffordville relatives.

Monday evening Mrs. Howard G. Barber returned from a visit of a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Water Turning, and family in Hartford.

Mrs. George Thayer, who has been seriously ill for many weeks, is continuing to gain strength.

The preliminary speaking and spelling contests were held in the schools last week, Tuesday evening at Miss Ellen Rollins' school at the Center; Thursday afternoon at Miss Viola Hasting's school in the East district; Thursday evening at Miss Grace Robinson's school at Rock Meadow, and at Miss Kathleen McGourty's school in the Red school district. Attractive programs were presented in each school and a good number of parents and friends were in attendance. The town contest is to be held at the hall Monday evening, April 30, at 7.30 (standard time).

Last Sunday morning the ground was covered with snow which had fallen during the night; notwithstanding the rain of Sunday, there were some patches of snow remaining in sheltered nooks until nearly noon the following day, April 22. Snow fell again for two hours on the morning of April 24. This time it melted as fast as it came.

NOANK

LEGIONNAIRES' BIG TIME AT HARTFORD MEETING

Several Legionnaires of post 55 left in a sedan for Hartford Wednesday evening and attended the reception given Mrs. Irene McIntyre Wallridge, national president American Legion auxiliary, at the Hotel Garde. In the dining room where over 500 gathered for dinner, the fifth district table was in charge of Mrs. Town Sears, who saw that everyone had all the good things to eat. Eddie Smith's singing orchestra gave lively music during the dinner. After the feast of roast chicken, Old Lyme sponge cake and ice cream the toastmaster, Mrs. Ruth Pfenning, state president presented Lieut.-Governor Brainard of Connecticut who gave a short address telling how good it was to see the Legion so far ahead in membership. Mayor Stevens was out of town so Samuel Welles said a few words in compliment to the ladies' auxiliary. Then State Commander Earl Richards made a speech, telling the good the Legion and auxiliary did during 1927. He got a big hand when he finished. Mrs. Alice Wagner sang America: then National President Mrs. Wallridge gave a talk that lasted for a hour. She served in the World war with the Salvation Army, bringing cheer to the service men. She was under enemy fire 265 days and twice was cited in army orders for courage and devotion. Under high explosive fire and gas she worked with the 26th Division. She has traveled 120,000 miles, all over the United States, speaking on the war and the Legion auxiliary. For three months she was on the trip. While in Washington she went to a hospital to see the disabled soldiers and some of the ex-service men had ben with her, coming from good old New England. When she had finished her talk Mrs. Wallridge received a regular ovation, which lasted for ten minutes. As souvenirs a fancy box of soap was given every lady from the Williams Co. and the men received shaving sets. Dancing followed. Stretch Morrison will tell the Postmail about it at the next meeting night. The sedan reached the fishing village when the birds were singing "Good morning Legionnaires!"

William Franklin is spending a few days in East Hartford.

H. Sweet has shipped on the boat Mayflower as mate and has left for a fishing trip to Newport.

Mike Pazzi, while building a garage at his home missed the nail and hit his hand with a heavy blow that broke a bone. The injured hand was dressed by a doctor. It will be several days before he will be able to finish his garage.

The fishermen have found the fishes' hiding place at the grounds near Block Island. The finny fellows are thick as rain drops on a tin roof. The fish are fat, too. Capt. George Grant thinks it is the wind that is driving them in toward shore, in bigger schools than at any time this year. About 300 barrels of flat fish a day this week, were forwarded from the village by trucks to Fulton market. The truck drivers were singing "Fish to the right of us, fish to the left of us!" Nobody could pass with all the barrels on the packing house dock.

Boy Scout troop No. 19 held a meeting in their rooms Main street, with Scout Master Clifford Phelps in the chair and 20 young soldiers present. The different committees made their reports. A Scouts' baseball team is in the field again, with Walter Buddington manager. It looks as though the Scouts are to have a first class team this season. Scout Master Phelps told the young soldiers about his time with the 192nd band, where a New England supper was served and Lieut.-Col. H. Hull made the bandmen a fine speech, saying that some day the 192nd band will be the best in the state among the national guard. A short drill was held. The scout master said to his troops that he hoped to see a band some day among the Scouts to help with the parade on Memorial day. The boys were given a lunch of hot dogs and coffee.

The sun dog noticed around the sun last week may have had something to do with the weather. It has rained for five days this week. One ex-service man, Jerry McCarthy, said it is like the days in France during the war. He saw it rain with the moon and stars out. In Noank Wednesday, rain, hail, snow and a 65-mile gale gave plenty of variety.

ADVANCE IN RAILROAD SHARES WAS CHECKED BY HEAVY PROFIT-TAKING

NEW YORK, April 26—(AP)—Another sweeping advance in the railroad shares on the New York stock exchange today was checked just before the close by heavy profit-taking. Early gains of 1 to 8 points in the active issues were substantially reduced, and in a few cases cancelled and converted into small losses, but the average of 20 leading rails, compiled by the Associated Press, closed at a new high record for all time. Industrials moved irregularly higher with some striking gains in the high priced specialties.

Total sales fell just short of 4,000,000 shares.

Some uneasiness was still apparent over the credit situation but the anticipated increase in the New York federal reserve rediscount rate failed to materialize, the rate being continued at 4 per cent. Five other federal reserve institutions have increased the rate from 4 to 4 1-2 per cent. The weekly report of brokers' loans, issued after the close of the market, showed an increase of $15,385,000, bringing the total to a new high record at $4,144,586,000.

Sale of the Delaware & Hudson's holdings of the Wabash and Lehigh Valley roads to the Pennsylvania for a consideration of approximately $63,000,000 was announced after the close of the market.

Delaware & Hudson attained a new 1928 high at 226 and then fell back to 223 for a net loss of 1 point. Lehigh Valley slumped from a high of 116 to 102, also off 1 point net. Wabash touched a new top at 92 7-8 and then dropped to 88, or 1-4 of a point below yesterday's final price.

Wheeling & Lake Erie common soared 23 points to a new top at 90 on total sales of less than 1,000 shares. New peak prices for the year, or longer, were registered in the early trading but nearly a score other rails including New York Central, Union Pacific, Pennsylvania, Chicago & Northwestern, St. Paul common and preferred, Southern Railway, Boston & Maine, and "big four."

New York & Harlem, which soared 277 points on odd lot trading yesterday, showed a net loss of 20 points to 450 after having attained a new peak at 475.

Organized buying was again apparent in a number of specialties in which important developments are believed to be pending. Adams Express was an outstanding individual feature, soaring 40 points to a new high record at 364, as against a low of 195 earlier in the year. American Express advanced 7 points to 192. Consolidated Gas, which is expected to be the nucleus of a merger of New York public utility properties, jumped 9 points to a new high record at 159 1-2.

Savage Arms ran up nearly 5 points to a new high at 75 in response to the publication of an excellent report for the first quarter, usually the poorest of the year, and predictions of record-breaking second quarter business. Sharp gains also were recorded by Abitibi Power, Brooklyn Edison, Case Threshing, Curtiss Aeroplane, Wright Aeronautical, Fidelity-Phenix Insurance, Indian Motorcycle, and Southern Dairies A, all up 4 to nearly 12 points.

Brisk accumulation also was noted in the oil group. Atlantic Refined, Pierce Issues, Richfield Oil of California and Standard Oil of New York all moved into new high ground, and Sinclair advanced to within a fraction of the year's high on heavy trading.

Leading foreign exchanges moved within narrow and irregular limits. Sterling cables ruled steady around $4.85. Portuguese escudos recovered their 10 point drop of yesterday, being quoted around 4.15 cents.

Call money held steady all day at 5 per cent. Time money was slightly firmer, being quoted on a flat 5 per cent. basis as compared with 4 7-8 to 5 previously.

Commodity markets were mixed. All grain futures moved to new high levels for the year, but the gains were wiped out by profit taking and final quotations were fractionally lower. Cotton advanced about $1.50 a bale on report of continued bad weather. Coffee prices which were reactionary yesterday, rallied 5 to 14 points and sugar quotations held steady.

city expenses from May 16th until the city meeting acts on the appropriations.

The city treasurer's office has estimated that in order to take care of the expenses of the city from May 16th until the city meeting acts on the appropriation that there will be required for the fire department, $9,422; for the police department, $9,000; for the public works department, $16,500; for note, $10,500; for bond interest $7,596 and $2,310.42 and for council salaries city salaries, etc., $1,564.15. It is necessary to borrow this money. The Norwich Savings society has requested a vote at the city meeting on this matter.

Authorized to Borrow $60,000

As a ballot vote was required on this resolution Mr. Shields announced that if there was no objection, he would cast one vote in favor of the resolution. He did so and the resolution was declared adopted.

A resolution authorizing the borrowing by the city of the money mentioned in the previous resolution, was then introduced by Mr. Shields, who, as there was no objection, cast one ballot in favor.

Vote $6,000 For Pollution Study.

The pollution problem came next on the list. The call for the meeting included an item calling for an appropriation not to exceed $6,000 to provide for an investigation and study of the question of the disposal of the city's sewage in view of the laws and policy of the state concerning the pollution of waterways.

Resolved, That the court of common council of the city of Norwich, be and they are hereby authorized to appropriate a sum of money not to exceed $6,000 for the purpose of an investigation and study of the question of the disposal of the city's sewage in view of the laws and policy of the state concerning pollution of water-ways.

Mr. Shields moved that the resolution be adopted and asked the permission of the meeting to allow Engineer Copeland of the state water commission to speak on the resolution. There was no objection and Engineer Copeland was presented by Mayor Waters.

Mr. Copeland told of the state water commission being authorized in 1925 by the state legislature to carry on the work of protecting the waters of the state from pollution. All of you use water every day, he said, and you want that water pure. Certain streams in the state are so pure that they are being used for water supplies. There are streams where there is pollution which can be eliminated. The purpose of the water commission is to undertake to protect the people of the state and to provide for them, and their children an adequate supply of water. In the future it is necessary and desirable to have pollution removed. It is desired to first find out what your problem is and what it will cost to remedy it.

In the opinion of our commission it is necessary for the city of Norwich to proceed with this matter. Our experience in the state has been that where those cities have undertaken to determine what is the proper procedure it has been possible to save those cities many thousands of dollars. In the opinion of the state water commission the $6,000 will provide for a thorough survey of your problem.

No one else wished to talk on the resolution and it was called for vote. Mr. Shields announced that if there was no objection he would cast one vote in favor of the resolution and started to do so. "No, No," shouted someone well back in the audience. "Let the clerk cast the vote," shouted someone else. Mr. Shields did not proceed to vote, in view of the minority opposition.

Judge Barnes asked Mr. Copeland if it were not true that the state water commission could force the city to make the survey.

Mr. Copeland said that it was not the intention of the state water commission to use a big club on the heads of the intelligent people of the state.

77 People Voted.

Although there 300 or more people in the hall only 77 votes were cast. The result of the vote follows:

Total votes cast	77
Necessary for choice	39
Yes	61
No	16

The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Shields next presented a resolution authorizing the city to borrow the $8,000 appropriated in the above resolution. After the resolution had been seconded Mr. Shields cast one ballot in its favor. A half dozen others in the audience also voted on the resolution with the following result:

Total votes cast	7
Necessary for choice	4
Yes	4
No	3

The resolution was declared adopted by Mayor Waters.

Speaks For New Charter.

After the meeting had disposed of the sewage appropriation, Judge Barnes introduced a resolution having for its object the enactment of a new city charter by the next general assembly. The resolution follows:

Resolved, That the city of Norwich take all necessary legal steps for the enactment of a new charter for said city by the next general assembly of this state.

Resolved, That the mayor, senior alderman, and corporation counsel of the city, ex-officio and their successors in said offices shall within a period of 90 days from the date hereof appoint four other electors of the city, not more than two of whom shall be of the same political party, which seven electors shall, upon due notice, hold public hearings on the provisions to be embedded in a new charter for this city and present the same, observing the legal requirements as to public notice, to the next general assembly of this state for its consideration and enactment.

Judge Barnes moved the adoption of the resolution and then spoke in its favor. Judging by what outsiders think of use we are "dead and don't know it", said Judge Barnes. On the contrary we are very much alive, he quickly added. Going back 30 years in the history of Norwich Judge Barnes told how, in 1897, a petition was introduced in the legislature by the Norwich gas and electric company (before the city owned it) asking permission to issue $400,000 bonds. An expert at the legislature hearing offered to put up a bond that the company would put up a new plant for $250,000. After a fight they put it through the house by 27 votes said Judge Barnes. There wasn't $200,000 that went into that plant, he said. When your city started to take over that plant you had to assume $400,000 bonds.

If you had had an up to date chamber of commerce then and they had gone to Hartford that bill would never have gone through. After Judge Barnes had discoursed at some length on opposition to the Norwich-Montville trolley line, years ago, by local businessmen who were afraid that the line would take trade from Norwich to New London stores, Mayor Waters interrupted the speaker.

I am afraid I will have to ask you to stick closer to the subject, said the mayor.

I am coming to that, answered Judge Barnes. This is referring to the charter. You will see it is in a moment.

There are some things on which you've got to pull together, he said continuing his discourse. This city should have a proper charter. The charter we have was printed 40 or 50 years ago. If you want to find the amendments you've got to look all through the council journals. It is a disgrace for a city of this size not to have a proper charter.

Judge Barnes started to talk about an electrical and building code but Mayor Waters ruled him out of order.

All right, I'll stick to the charter said Judge Barnes. The remainder of his talk was largely devoted to the telling of a humorous story that brought forth a hearty burst of laughter. When the resolution was put to vote it was unanimously adopted.

For Building and Plumbing Code

Next on the call was item 7 calling for action on a building and plumbing code and ordinances governing electric wiring of the buildings of the city. A resolution calling on the court of common council to enact a building and plumbing code and ordinances governing electric wiring was introduced, and its adoption moved. No one spoke either for or against the resolution and resolution went to vote. As there was some doubt over the result of the vote which the mayor announced he adopted the resolution, it was put to vote again. There was no question over the result then. The resolution was declared adopted.

Question of Consolidation

The final matter on which any action was taken at the meeting was as to whether or not the city should petition the next general assembly for the annexation to the city of a part or all of the town so as to make the city lines co-extensive with the town lines with an equitable and fair adjustment of taxation by the creation of tax districts or otherwise with due and proper credits for all public utilities and public improvements owned by private corporations within the town.

Attorney E. W. Perkins introduced a resolution to the effect that the meeting take no action on the matter. His resolution read as follows:

Resolved, That this meeting take no action on the matters contained in the eighth paragraph of the warning and that the city take no action whatsoever in relation to the annexation of that part of the town of Norwich which is outside the limits of the city or any portion of said part of the town outside the city limits, until such time as the town in town meeting or a majority of the inhabitants of any such portion of the town shall by vote request such annexation to the city, it being the sense of this meeting that it is unjust, unwise and unfair that the city should agitate or seek the annexation of any territory outside its limits until the persons to be affected thereby have expressed their desire for such annexation, such an annexation being of greater importance to the people within the territory that would be annexed, who have no voice in this meeting or any city meeting, than it is to the electors of this city.

When the annexation matter was laid before the meeting, Attorney Perkins and Rev. Alexander H. Abbott pastor of the United Congregational church, both started to lay in resolutions. Mayor Waters ruled that Attorney Perkins had the floor and he introduced the above resolution.

Speaks Against Annexation

Speaking for his resolutions Mr Perkins said: It is against public policy for the city to take the first action on annexation. The question should come from the town and the town only. I offer no arguments for or against annexation. The question of annexation has been raised before. The town was sensitive about it and there was strong opposition. I believe there is opposition today.

For the last decade the town and city tax has been about the same. We can safely assume the privileges in the city cost twice as much as those we get in the town. If we are going to take any part of the town into the city we've got to give them value received. Until the town asks for these facilities you can't blame them for being sensitive The most important factor is that if we start the first action it will certainly look to the town like a move to get around that old doctrine, taxation without representation, is unfair. A townsman cannot act on this resolution.

Introduces Substitute Resolution

After Mr. Perkins had concluded his remarks, Rev. Mr. Abbott introduced the following resolution, as a substitute resolution:

Resolved: That the mayor, senior alderman, corporation counsel, president of the board of water commissioners, chief of the fire department and president of the gas and electric commission all ex officio with seven other electors of the city to be forthwith chosen by the plurality vote of the foregoing shall constitute a commission to devise, consider and report to a special city meeting to be called and held not later than October 15, 1928 its conclusions, advice, suggestions and recommendations as to the wisdom, justice, propriety and equity of the annexation of any part of the town of Norwich to the city of Norwich or the annexation of the entire town to the city making the city boundary lines coextensive with the town lines.

Said commission is further empowered and directed to recommend to said special city meeting the terms and conditions of any annexation advised by said commission and if the annexation of any part of the town by the city be approved by said commission then it shall report its recommendations as to a referendum on said question also on the matter of the creation of taxing districts or other provisions and conditions which may to it seem fair and equitable together with a plan whereby any private corporations within the town and operating public utilities may be fairly compensated for such utilities upon the finding, appraisal and award of a judge of the superior court or otherwise.

Do I understand that this is an amendment, asked Henry H. Pettis.

Mayor Waters said that it had been introduced as a substitute resolution.

My impression is that it would have to be an amendment, said Mr. Pettis.

After more or less discussion on the matter Mr. Perkins accepted the resolution as an amendment to his resolution.

Urges Calm Consideration

Rev. Mr. Abbott said that there are individuals in the town and city who feel that consolidation is advisable But we would like to know if we are right or wrong, he said. How are we going to find out if we are right or wrong unless we consider the matter. I live in the city and own property in Norwich Town and I am of the conviction that consolidation is a wise thing. The speaker went on to explain the provisions of his substitute resolution which provides that a committee of 13 shall sit from now until October to hear what the individuals of the city and town have to say about consolidation. All ought to have the same opportunity to exert influence for or against it, he said.

He went on to say that the city would not have to accept the recommendations of the committee. All this substitute resolution does is not to postpone action permanently. Mr. Perkins wishes to place the matter in the hands of the town. We are here as citizens of the town. We have just as much right to go to the town as to wait for the town to come and say, don't do anything until we ask you. (Applause). We ask merely for the privilege of looking our community problems in the face. Almost four-fifths of the population of the town of Norwich is within the city limits. There is not in the substitute resolution any single injustice to Taftville or any single injustice to Norwich Town.

I agree with Mr. Perkins that we don't want to do any injustice. The substitute resolution was adopted.

The final matter on the call was a provision providing for a discussion of any subject matter or thing touching the city government, the health of the citizens the administration of city affairs, the preparation of the annual city budget and the general welfare of the city. As no one present had anything to say on these matters the meeting was adjourned, adjournment being taken at 10 o'clock.

HENS AT STORRS GO SLOWER IN 25TH WEEK

There was a slight decline in production during the 25th week of the Storrs laying contest and it now appears that the mark of 67.9 per cent made a couple of weeks ago will stand as the high point of the present competition. The 1,400 contest pullets have eased off slightly in their egg laying during the last two weeks, and it is unlikely that they will rally enough to lay 68 per cent. Broodiness in the heavier varieties will tend to check production somewhat with the coming of warmer weather.

The score for the week was 7,462 eggs, a lay of 65.9 per cent. This is 143 eggs less than the output for last week but 157 eggs more than the score for the corresponding week a year ago. Total production up to last Monday night was 129,492 eggs, which gives an average of 924 eggs for each of the 140 competing entries or better than 92 eggs per bird. In 25 weeks the present competition has gained 11,138 over last year's trial.

Reds Show the Way.

Rhode Island Reds entered by the Globus Poultry Farm from Attleboro, Mass., headed the week's honor roll with a score of 63 eggs to their credit. And incidentally, this came very close to be an All-Red Week, for of the nine entries on the honor roll, they are, with one exception, Rhode Island Reds. Three representatives of the breed tied for second place with scores of 61 eggs each. They include the pens owned by Clarence E. Lee of Auburn, N. Y., Harold G. Colt of West Hartford, Conn., and Nasacock Farm of Tyngsboro, Mass. Then a White Wyandotte pen entered by The Locusts of West Cornwall, Conn., and another Red team owned by F. E. Freeman of Middletown, Ohio, tied for third position with 59-egg scores. Three more Red teams were deadlocked in fourth position, each with a score of 53 eggs. They include the entries of F. S. Chapin of Longmeadow, Mass.; Fabry Brothers of E. McKeesport, Pa., and Homestead Farm of Newtown, Conn.

George Lowry's White Leghorns from West Willington, Conn., continue to lead all contestants and with the splendid score of 1,390 eggs in 25 weeks. Rhode Island Reds owned by Charlescote Farm from Sherborn, Mass., and White Leghorns entered by Broadview Farm of Winsted, Conn., follow second and third with score of 1,368 and 1,362 eggs respectively. The latter two entries are staging a tight race for the second position among all competitors, and with the Reds holding a slight advantage of 6 eggs.

There was only one change among the leaders during the week and that was in the Red division where the entry of West Neck Farm from Huntington, N. Y., passed the Massachusetts Agricultural college entry from Amherst to take fourth place.

National Egg Week.

The management of the contest invites your attention to National Egg week, the first week in May. This is the time designated by the National Poultry council for extolling the virtues of the hen and reflecting on the merits of her product. Poultrymen may well take this occasion to do a little missionary work by emphasizing to their city cousins the fact that in the matter of cookery eggs are well-nigh indispensable, that they are worthwhile for their mineral content alone, and that they are especially prized for their vitamin value.

The hatching season has passed its zenith, the supply of eggs is bountiful, prices are right, and thus the consumer is at the helm. Every factor is favorable for the liberal use of this splendid food that is both palatable and nutritious. The American hen is a great national asset because she promotes happiness and healthful living. It seems altogether fitting that we pay our respects and even make homage to the hen instead of obliging her to carry on, year after year, unwept, unhonored, and unsung.

"More Turkey Talk" will be the subject of the poultry dialogue to be broadcast from WCAC next Wednesday, May 2, beginning at 7.15 p. m. This will be given Prof. William F. Kirkpatrick and Wallace S. Moreland.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Observance of the birthday anniversary of General U. S. Grant, born at Point Pleasant, O., April 27, 1822.

In an effort to impress the members of both major political parties of their strength and determination, Maryland sympathizers with the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act will hold a state rally in Baltimore today.

Today will see the opening of two of the most important college athletic fixtures of the year—the annual relay carnival at the University of Pennsylvania and the Drake relays at Des Moines.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

McEnelly's Orchestra

When Edward J. McEnelly's Victor Recording orchestra appears in State armory Monday, April 30, it will present to the dance lovers of Norwich not only one of the best known musical organizations in America, but also a combination of individual artists that represents a countrywide selection of talent.

Mr. McEnelly, violinist and director of the organization that bears his name is one of the best known musicians of the east. He has been appearing before dancers for 20 years, and throughout this period has been associated with W. J. Cook, manager of the McEnelly orchestra.

Frank Marks, assistant director, joined Mr. McEnelly two years ago. He plays all reed instruments, is an arranger of ability, and prior to adding his talents to the McEnelly organization played with Sousa, Alex Hyde, Whiteman groups and other orchestras equally famous. Kenneth Farnsworth another member of the saxophone section also plays the several reed instruments and was associated with Leo Reisman for several years. Allen Powers of Brockton, a recent addition to the orchestra, completes the saxophone and reed section. He is also an expert with the English horn, is an arranger, has played with many New York orchestras and left the Arcadia Ballroom orchestra in Providence to join Mr. McEnelly.

John Egan, trumpet, is a McEnelly fixture, and like other members of the orchestra had wide experience before coming to Springfield. He played with Lopez, Paul Specht, Whiteman's Collegians, Barney Rapp and others. Ernest Ray, another trumpet player, was eight years in New York where he appeared with Lopez, Elkins, Specht, Ben Birnie, Ernie Golden and filled engagements as a staff artist with Victor, Columbia and Brunswick recording orchestras.

Firestone Leading Factor in Developing Passenger Bus Tires

By The Goldbergh Rubber Tire Co., local Firestone service dealer.

With the same foresight that has been so pronounced throughout his entire business career, Harvey S. Firestone realized long before most men that the day would come when passenger buses would become a vital factor in transportation. Mr. Firestone knew that the building of good roads would prove a great impetus to the establishment of bus routes. He knew, too, that such transportation would prove popular because of the inaccessibility of many small towns by rail.

The result was that the Firestone Tire and Rubber company became the pioneer of the specialized tire in the bus field. It has kept pace with the growth of this new field of transportation and today the great majority of buses use Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires.

For passenger buses, Firestone has developed a highly specialized line of big pneumatics designed for continuous speed under full loads. Eight plies of gum-dipped cords, extra layers of rubber between plies, tapered toe beads, double cord breaker strip and a special cushion of rubber between the carcass and tread, form a tire unsurpassed for extraordinary service.

The operator of the bus knows that in Firestone he has a tire he can depend upon for reliability and long life, and the passenger appreciates the safety featured for which Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires are famous.

If you have but one horse this Harrow is what you need.

NEW LONDON AT LAST TO HEAR REPORT FROM THE $12,000 ZONING EXPERT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 26—A special meeting of the city council will be held tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock its especial purpose the assigning of a date for a public hearing in connection with the proposed plan to zone the city. Other matters to be considered will be the arranging for the asking for bids for building material and the approval of a large number of building applications. About a year ago the city retained the services of Herbert G. Swahn, New York zoning expert, at a salary of $12,000. Mr. Swahn's work was concluded last February, although he had been in New London but once or twice since he contracted to lay out the plan of the city's highways, but he had had some of his assistants prepare data for him. There has never been a hearing on the matter, but with a date fixed to hold an open meeting there is every probability that citizens will turn out to listen to what the expert recommends should be done to have the streets uniformly constructed and laid out, together with ascertaining what streets are recommended not to be used for commercial purposes.

AUCTIONEER'S CASE NOLLED IN CITY COURT THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 26—Joseph M Gordan, one of the auctioneer's conducting a close-out sale at the store of Wm. M. Jones, jewelry on State street, arrested a week ago on a charge of fraud and disturbance of the peace was completely exonerated this morning when his case came up in the police court. Gordon's trouble began last Thursday when George Dyson, president of the Connecticut Retail Jewelers association, challenged a statement the former made concerning an article up for sale. An argument resulted in Dyson being ordered from the store. Dyson immediately made a complaint and the auctioneer was placed under arrest, but was released on a bond of $300. Upon the recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney Cronin the case was nolled this morning.

John W. Perry, formerly a police officer of this city, and said to be wanted in Providence on a charge of perjury relating to his testimony in the investigation of the activities of the Ku Klux Klan in that state, was in New London last night. Perry was at Union station to catch a train that leaves for Boston at 8-16. Friends of the man are understood to have talked with him, the police however being ignored. He is Great Titan of the Klan in Rhode Island.

Daniel J. Reidy, arrested yesterday when police raided the restaurant at 21 Atlantic street, was tried in the police court this morning on a charge of violating the liquor law. He was fined $200 and costs being unable to pay he was sent to jail. When the place was raided yesterday Reidy attempted to dispose of a pitcher of whiskey, but was prevented from doing so. A bottle of whiskey was also found in the toilet of the place. Rocco Gentifella, owner of the place, was arrested on a similar charge a few weeks ago and was fined.

James Sherwood, of the Submarine base, was tried on a charge of violation of the state motor vehicle law and was fined $10. Sherwood was arrested Tuesday by Patrolman John Sullivan after it was discovered that he was driving a car without either a license or a registration certificate.

A loss of $1,000 was caused shortly after noon today by two fires that came in rapid succession. The first was a shed at Truman and Bank streets owned by Augustino Nanni, located near his residence at 66 Belden street. Upon the arrival of the firemen a lively blaze was in progress and damage to the extent of $300 was suffered before the flames could be gotten under control.

The second fire was in the house at 81 Coleman street, occupied by Henry R. Delaney owned by Frank Namey. The blaze was discovered in the cellar and was so intense that it almost broke through the first floor in spite of the efforts of the firemen. By using chemicals it was finally controlled. Two streams of water were directed upon the flames. The damage sustained amounted to about $700.

Employes at the city hall gave City Treasurer Herbert G Huntley a surprise as he was leaving his office yesterday afternoon, in the form of purse of five dollar gold pieces. The gift was made in honor of his wedding which took place this morning. The purse was presented by City Manager Holt.

Twenty six tables of whist were in play at a party given last night by the Fraternal Order of Eagles in their hall at 38 Main street. An old fashioned dance formed a portion of the entertainment for the evening.

A skating party was enjoyed by a group of young people at the rink last night. Miss Mary Brennan, of Summer street and Miss Florence Kennedy of Bank street, were hostesses. Follow the leader, march dancing and tag games were enjoyed.

Sixty five members of St. Joseph's Women's social club had the first banquet ever held by that organization last night at the bungalow of Mrs Forrester, Ocean Beach. Rev. William C. Fitzsimons, pastor of St. Joseph's church was the guest of honor and the chief speaker of the evening. Mrs. Sarah Doyle was toastmistress. After the banquet she was presented a beautiful leather handbag by Mrs. Catherine May, on behalf of her associate members.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cruise, of Bank St. janitress at the municipal building will resign Saturday because of an injury Mrs. Cruise suffered to her hip by a fall several months ago. Mrs Cruise has been employed by the city since the erection of the municipal building.

Patients dismissed from Lawrence Memorial hospital today were Mrs Merle Chandler and son, 54 Thames street; and Mrs. Harry Durgin of 9 Alger street.

The New London Kennel club will hold its fourth annual dog show in July at the Captain Thomas Scott estate, Montauk avenue. The committee in charge of securing entries hopes to be able to exhibit over 500 blue bloods. Charles E. Townsend of Boston will have complete charge of the show.

Two hundred dog licenses have been issued by City Clerk Julian D. Morah. There are about 800 licensed dogs in the city and as it is only five days from the time all must have new tags a great last minute rush is expected.

The congregation of the Methodist church will listen next Sunday morning to Dr. Albert Levitt of New York a noted soldier, author, lecturer and lawyer. His talk is to be on constitutional government and prohibition.

There is speculation as to the ultimate disposal of more than 3,000,000 feet of lumber which is on the British steamer Ellaston, now at the state pier awaiting repairs. It is believed, however, that the cargo will eventually be taken to Boston by Captain William Morgan, commander of the ship. The boat has been at the pier for 16 days, after going aground on the rocks off Watch Hill last month. When she crashed, the vessel suffered a bad gash in her forward hold. As a result, compartments in this section were filled with water. Temporary repairs have been made here; but the underwriters are undecided as to the advisability of unloading her cargo here or permitting the vessel to proceed to Boston with her damaged prow.

BABY LOSES TWO FINGERS CRUSHED IN ELECTRIC WASHER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 26—Howard Stevens, year and a half old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Stevens, suffered a painful injury this morning, as a result of which the child had two fingers of the left hand amputated. The child was playing about the kitchen of the Stevens home, 40 Mountain avenue, while Mrs. Stevens was washing. An electric washing machine was in operation and the child thrust his hand into the mechanism, which resulted in two fingers being badly lacerated. The boy was rushed to Lawrence Memorial hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate the crushed members. The child will be a patient at the institution but a few days.

Over 100 members of the local I. O. O. Announcement was made today of the marriage of William P. Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Sullivan, of 33 Alger place, nephew of Police Lieutenant James C. Sullivan, and Miss Mary L. Neafsey, of Weehawken, N. J., by Rev. J. Gilbert Neafsey, brother of the bride. The groom is well known in New London. He is a graduate of Bulkeley high school, of the Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, and of Fordham, N. Y., Law school. Many friends and relatives attended the ceremony.

Mrs. Abbie Anna Churchill, for many years a resident of this city, was married last Saturday at St. Petersburg, Fla., to William Albert Doak, of Derry, Pa. The bride received many gifts from this city and from the home of the groom.

In the police court this morning, Laura Fulford was brought to trial to answer a charge of intoxication, for which she was arrested last Saturday when in a street fight with Joseph Curtis, of Englewood, Ill. Both are colored and when the Fulford woman testified she stated that though she would have loved a drink on the day when she was arrested, this city was so dry that try as she would she could not locate a single place where illicit whiskey could be procured. Curtis pleaded guilty to the charge against him and paid a fine of $10. The woman, however, asked for a continuance until this morning, and when her testimony regarding the scarcity of booze here was doubted, Judge S. Victor Prince considered it only equitable to impose a fine of $10 on her also.

Strand Theatre.

Due to huge public demand William Fox has re-issued "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," the greatest comedy ever produced, which will be shown at the Strand tonight and Saturday. This picture was the best of Mark Twain's satires, and has been called the greatest in the history of literature. There are many innovations to bring the story up to date, telephones, flivvers, etc. The principal character, the Yankee, is played by Harry Myers, who is Martin Cavendish, a man of today. Although engaged to a wealthy aristocrat, he is in love with her secretary.

In "Riding for Life," Bob Reeves as Bob Williams went looking for trouble and his search was rewarded beyond his fondest expectation. He found himself accused of the theft of $30,000 and in order to prove his innocence he had to round up the real culprits, who had kidnaped his young brother with the intention of placing the blame on him. He surprised the desperadoes in their rendezvous and heroically faced them all single-handed. See this zippy story of the western plains at the Strand

Palace Theatre

Incontestably proving herself once again the greatest tragic actress on the screen today, Pola Negri showed to a capacity audience at the Palace theatre last night in her latest starring picture for Paramount, "Three Sinners."

Suiting her personality and artistry to perfection, "Three Sinners," is a screen creation by this gifted actress which will live long in the memory of those who see this remarkable classic directed by Rowland V. Lee.

Pola Negri is at her best in the portrayal of such characters as the Countess Gerda Wallentin, a woman who passes from respected society leader to painted adventuress in a swift moving story which grips from start to finish.

Opening in her home in Dresden where she is happy in her love for husband and child, rushing events carry her to supposed death, renunciation of her home and child, depths of horror and glittering sin in a Paris gambling palace and eventually to genuine love.

Tullio Carminati, as the lover, and Paul Lukas, as the husband, give remarkably fine performances. Olga Baclanova, that colorful Russian actress, proves a splendid foil for dark Pola. The story is adapted to the screen from a successful European play, "Her Second Life."

The vaudeville bill was well received and each act was awarded round after round of applause. Smalls Debutantes is a very pleasing offering, there are some exceedingly attractive girls who perform some very pretty dances and their songs are very well indeed. Wheeler and Porter took down the house with their comedy oddity, "Once But Not Twice." Henry and Farnsworth are another pair of laugh getters with their "Hokeology With Dressing." Tyler and St. Clair are xylophonists of great ability, their act is novel and pleasing and Jack Ryan exhibits the latest styles in dance steps and at the same time keeps the audience in roars of laughter with his jokes.

A New Yorker opened a new restaurant in West Firty-fourth St. but not many persons were aware of the fact. So he bought the largest goldfish bowl he could find, filled it with water and placed it in his window with this placard over it: "Invisible fish from Rio de Janeiro." The police have frequently had to drive away the pedestrians who gathered before the window in an endeavor to see the invisible fish. One man tapped on the glass and shook his hat in an attempt to bring the fish out where he could get a better view.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

No more daring stunt flying ever has been filmed than the aerial views which form an important part of "The Great Mail Robbery," the thrilling picture of domestic service of the U. S. marine corps, to be shown at the Breed theatre starting today for a run of two days. The action of the picture calls for an aerial chase of mail bandits making their getaway in automobiles, the pursuing force of marines being carried in a squadron of airplanes.

Two well known stunt flyers, Eddie Bellande and Fred Hoyt, were secured to pilot two planes. The aviators, veterans in the art of flying, were called upon to execute some of the most daring flying at their command. The pursuit of the cars took the planes above winding mountain roads, where air currents were treacherous, and where in several instances it was necessary to fly far below the hilltops. One almost fatal slip occurred when Bellande's plane headed for the earth only a short distance above the ground, having struck a strong current. Only the ability resulting from 14 years of flying averted a crash. In another instance, Bellande flew so close over an automobile that only a sharp "zoom" upward kept his landing gear from striking the occupants of the car.

The high point of "The Great Mail Robbery" is reached in an attempted holdup of a mail train containing a fortune of gold, and guarded by U. S. marines. The resulting fight and chase forms what is said to be the most thrilling series of events ever filmed.

The great but thankless service performed by the "leathernecks" in protecting the mails is wonderfully portrayed in a real tribute to the marines. The love of a beautiful girl for the man of mystery who finally reveals himself provides the romantic interest.

Andrew Nichols of Waterford is the plaintiff in a suit for $5,000 damages brought in the superior court against Jacob Kopp of New London in whose automobile he was riding on March 17, 1927. He claims that Kopp's machine was in collision with another on the state highway bridge between Groton and New London and that he sustained injuries about the head, body, hands and back which occasioned him to lose his weekly wages of $50 for a considerable period of time.

The suit is returnable in May.

NORWICH-NEW YORK SOCIETY ELECTS J. OLIN HOWE PRESIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW YORK, April 26—The semi-annual meeting of the Norwich Society of New York was held on Monday evening, April 23, at the New York Athletic club with 66 members and their guests present. For an hour previous to the dinner a reception was held and at 8 o'clock the meeting adjourned to the boxing room where an excellent dinner was served.

An interesting and pleasing innovation at the dinner this year was the arrangement of the tables, each one representing a section of Norwich, as Big Plain, Little Plain, Broadway and Washington streets, Laurel Hill, West Side and East Great Plain, Greeneville, Norwich Town, Yantic and Falls, and Preston and the East Side. This innovation, with the Norwich society badges and names attached, did a good deal to make the evening a great success. The dinner was enlivened by songs rendered by the gathering, with Jack Powelson at the piano.

At the close of the dinner, President James H. Albertson called for the reports of the treasurer and secretary, which were read and accepted. Mr. Albertson then called upon the nominating committee for the list of officers for the next year. The officers, as follows, were elected by a unanimous vote: President, J. Olin Howe; vice-president, Charles N. Hulbert; treasurer, William T. McNamara; secretary, Charles H. Tirrell; membership committee, Louis M. Alofsin, M. D., M. W. Alling, Charles Delaney, Charles R. Nichols, Sr., Joseph E. Shea; nominating committee, Edward J. Crawford, Frank L. Chapman, Francis P. Bent; executive committee, Howard C. Russ, Raymond E. Stefferson, J. R. Powelson, Frank A. Lester, Warren K. Dowe, C. Leroy Storms, Harold H. Thresher, James H. Albertson.

President Albertson then spoke of a member of the society who has passed away since the last meeting in December, Fred Lewis, whom Mr. Albertson described as one of the most ardent workers for the Norwich society, and the meeting stood in silent prayer for one minute in memory of Mr. Lewis.

In retiring from the office of president of the society, Mr. Albertson said that he wished to suggest a purpose for the Norwich club—and that purpose is service—Norwich men for Norwich boys.

President-elect J. Olin Howe then told of his boyhood days in Norwich and introduced Hamilton Wright, a big-game fisherman and a native son of Connecticut, who was born in New Haven. Mr. Wright told of some very interesting and exciting experiences while fishing for sharks, turtles and baracuda, in Florida, the Gulf of Mexico and in other places.

Mr. Howe then introduced the speaker of the evening, Captain Simon Lake, the father of the present-day submarine. Captain Lake said that as a boy he read "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" by Jules Verne and from that time on he has been building and designing submarines. At the age of 16 he built his first submarine, which was 14 feet long and in which he and his cousin submerged to a depth of 15 feet. Over 30 years ago he invented the diving compartment by means of which he could leave and enter his submarine while it was submerged.

He then spoke in general terms of the two disasters at Provincetown and New London and said that his company built the S-51. Captain Lake spoke of the use of submarines in the past war and then spoke of the commercial use of submarines. He said that there were very great possibilities for the commercial use of the ships. First, in opening up the very rich territory of northern Russia and Siberia; second, in underwater engineering work such as docks, foundations, etc.; third, in opening up underwater gold mines and drilling underwater oil wells, and fourth, for mapping underwater. Cargo-carrying submarines traveling from Liverpool to Hongkong would cut their trip right in half by sailing north of Russia and Siberia, traveling partly on the surface and some of the way traveling submerged along under the ice.

Captain Lake's talk was one of the most interesting speeches that the society has enjoyed in recent years.

The meeting adjourned at 11:30 p. m.

The members present and the guests were Frank A. Lester, Raymond E. Stefferson, Charles H. Tirrell, Hamilton M. Wright, J. H. Albertson, Simon Lake, J. Olin Howe, W. T. McNamara, Harold Thresher, John R. Powelson, Frank W. Hamilton, James A. Somers, M. D., Charles F. Noyes, Louis J. Chamansky, E. J. Crawford, C. A. Beach, William F. Converse, O. LESSONS ON SERVICE IN BIBLE STUDY

At the men's Bible study class Wednesday evening at the local Y. M. C. A., the topic was "Unselfish Service." The scripture used was Mark 6:31-44.

In the discussion the following points were brought out: There is such a thing as selfish service; it is found where a person serves with the idea of getting something tangible in return. We have a right to expect a professing Christian to be courteous and thoughful at all times. The disciples had returned from a service trip and were very tired, and Jesus noticed this and suggested that they go to a quiet place to rest away from the crowds. They started but the crowds "beat them to it"; they reached the place before Jesus and his disciples. As night drew near the disciples urged the Master to send the crowds away that they might get supper, but Jesus said, "no, we will feed them here."

Jesus was the essence of thoughtfulness. There are some men who realize that they are their brother's keeper, and there are others who act on the principle, "every man for himself, and the devil take the hindmost." The crowds had pursued uninvited; they had invaded his privacy; but Jesus treated the crowd as guests. Jesus demonstrated the beautiful scripture passage, "Love beareth all things." Every true mother exemplifies this spirit. Lincoln did also, and so did McKinley.

When Jesus said that the crowd could be fed right on the spot, the disciples thought it absolutely impossible, but the thing was accomplished. The lesson is, start with what you have and more will be added. Make a start and the results will surprise you. The big business man never neglects the little things; he pays much attention to detail. It is a fact that great and good accomplishments come from small beginnings, and it is also true that much havoc is wrought and terrible consequences result from small beginnings in wrong doings. Sin usually begins in a small way. No man starts out to become a drunkard, and no man deliberately decides to live a low life.

LICENSING DOGS IS VERY SLOW THIS YEAR

Only about 750 of the more than 1,500 dogs which are annually licensed in Norwich had been licensed up to Thursday at the office of Town Clerk Harold S. Burt. This promises a rush to finish up the list in the few days remaining in this month and on that account the town clerk's office is to be open until 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon to accommodate the dog owners.

In New London 200 dog licenses had been issued up to Thursday, leaving 800 yet to be licensed.

GROTON MAN SUES FOR DAMAGE TO AUTOMOBILE

For damage alleged to have been done to his automobile, Joseph Workman of Groton has brought suit in the superior court against Margaret McNerney of New Haven on a claim for $1,000. The accident happened on George street in New Haven on Feb. 15, 1928 when machines owned by the plaintiff and defendant were in collision.

ONLY NINE NEW CASES FOR CRIMINAL SUPERIOR COURT

The May term of the criminal superior court for this county which opens next Tuesday in New London promises to be a short session. There are only nine new cases on the docket. Judge Dickenson will preside.

Trolleys On Daylight Time

The trolley lines will move their schedules forward an hour Sunday morning to accommodate their time to the beginning of daylight saving for the summer season.

SEEK MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE ON ABANDONED FARM

Benjamin P. Hewitt of Stonington seeks foreclosure of a mortgage for $17,000 in a suit he has brought in the superior court against J. Alfred Whipple, formerly of that town, but now of parts unknown. The suit is returnable in May.

It is alleged that on September 1, 1926, Whipple owned the plaintiff $17,000 on a demand note secured by a mortgage on the Pequotsepos farm in the town of Stonington. It is further alleged that Whipple abandoned possession of the premises and the same will greatly depreciate in value unless the plaintiff is placed in possession thereof, immediately. According to the complaint, there is still due on the mortgage the sum of $16,884.04.

GIRLS OF COUNTY WILL ATTEND CONFERENCE HERE

Arrangements are being made for the annual conference for girls of New London county, which is to be held here under the auspices of the Council of Religious Education, on Saturday, May 5, at the Community house on Church street.

The morning session will open at 10:15. A worship service will be led by Dr. David A. Pitt, of the Central Baptist church. Leaders, who will speak in the morning and conduct conferences on Vocations, will be Miss Faith C. Lee, of Willimantic Normal school training department; Miss Lisbeth Macdonald, home nursing specialist, Connecticut Agricultural college, and Mrs. George H. Prior, of Jewett City, who is well known to many in this section as a speaker of unusual interest. A banquet will be served at noon by the entertaining church. In the afternoon the worship service will be led by the girls of the Norwich Town Congregational church. Miss Una Ritchie will sing some Kentucky ballads as a special musical feature of the program. Miss Ella C. Hoxie, of Sholapur, India, will speak on India. Those who have heard Miss Hoxie speak know that she is very much worth hearing. The recreation is in charge of the girls of the entertaining church and will come at 3 o'clock when the conference will adjourn. The registration fee of $1 is to be paid when the girls arrive at the church. Every church is expected to send in the number expecting to attend to Mrs. D. C. Stone, Hanover, by April 30.

COUNTY DELEGATES GOING TO 4-H CLUB ROUND-UP

This county will send 29 4-H club boys and girls and 15 4-H club leaders to the state 4-H club round-up in Hartford today (Friday). Nearly every club in the county will send a delegate and many of the club leaders will go.

The state 4-H club round-up is made possible by the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, Connecticut State Grange and the agricultural committee of the Connecticut Manufacturers association co-operating to bring rural boys and girls together and furnish a banquet and lunch for them.

The program starts with a banquet at the Hotel Garde at 6:30, following which there will be addresses by prominent business men, club leaders and club members. The delegates will stay at the Hotel Garde for the evening. Breakfast will be served at the Hotel Garde, after which sectional meetings for club presidents, secretaries, song leaders, club reporters and local leaders will be held. Following these meetings tours will be conducted to the following places of interest: State library, state capitol, Pearl street fire house, Swift & Co. packing house, Morgan Memorial and the Hartford Times Publishing Co.

Lunch will be served at the Hotel Bond ball room at 12. Following lunch addresses will be given by club members, leaders, and interested business men.

Miss Julia Rodman, of the Franklin Thimble Wearers, will address the evening meeting, telling what club work has meant to her and the community.

Donald Chappell, of the Red and White Poultry club of Stonington, will address the Saturday luncheon group; he will talk on his experiences in 4-H club work. The following are the delegates from New London county:

Bernice Percival and Rose Norcross, Gales Ferry; Alice Rathbun, Mrs. G. K. Brush, Edna Lamb, Miss Florence Rockwood, Marion Robinson, Miss Julia Rodman, all of Franklin; Louis Garceau, Bozrah; Miss F. McIntosh and Mrs. F. B. HEBRON BOY SAYS HE ESCAPED FROM KIDNAPPERS

A 13-year-old Hebron schoolboy reached his home Wednesday night exhausted with a big bump on his head and a story of being dared to drive a car by the two occupants who knocked him unconscious and drove him about for several hours until he recovered consciousness and escaped from the car, in some unfamiliar place, near the New London turnpike.

Hyman Frankel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Frankel of Hebron, was coming home from Windham high school Wednesday afternoon where he is a freshman when he saw two men in the road beside a Studebaker sedan with a green license plate—he did not note the number—he told his parents. As he came up to them they stopped an argument and dared him to drive the car. He accepted the challenge and the minute he was at the wheel they jumped in with him and forced him to go where they wished. He drove from Hebron to Marlborough, then on the New London road until he was directed to make several unfamiliar turns. Finally, he said, one of the men hit him over the head and he lost consciousness.

Some time later he recovered consciousness, he said. When his captors were not noticing him he jumped out of the car and hid in the darkness until they had disappeared. Then he started with no idea of which direction he should go, until at last he reached familiar territory. From there he made his way home safely.

THRONGS GREETED CREW OF THE BREMEN IN NEW YORK; BURIAL OF FLOYD BENNETT

The German-Irish Transatlantic Fliers Arrived at Curtiss Field Just Before 2 P. M. Yesterday—When It Became Known That the Fliers Were to Continue to Washington By Train the Rotunda, Corridors, Passages, Stairways and Waiting Rooms of the Pennsylvania Station Were Jammed—Police Reserves Were Called and Pushed an Opening For the Fliers—Today in Washington They Will Pay Honor to the Memory of Floyd Bennett—Funeral of Floyd Bennett Graphically Described.

CREW OF BREMEN TO OFFICIALLY ENTER NEW YORK THIS P. M.

NEW YORK, April 27—(AP)—Mayor Walker today issued a proclamation announcing that the crew of the Transatlantic plane Bremen will make their official entry into this city tomorrow afternoon. The fliers were expected to reach Mitchel Field from Washington at about 3 P. M.

Baron Von Huenefeld, Captain Koehl and Commandant Fitzmaurice paid a flying visit to the city today, hurrying through on the way to Washington to pay tribute to the memory of Floyd Bennett, who was buried today at Arlington cemetery.

NEW YORK, April 27—(AP)—After a tumultuous three hours which reached a climax with a friendly assault by thousands of admirers, the German-Irish trans-Atlantic fliers sought refuge on a train for Washington.

In that city they will pay honor to the memory of Floyd Bennett, North Pole flier who died while on a mission to aid them and who was buried in Arlington cemetery this afternoon.

On the way to Washington from Quebec, where Bennett died last Wednesday, the funeral party paused here while New York paid tribute to the memory of its own air hero.

Thousands filed reverently through the 71st Regiment armory where Bennett's body lay in state for three hours before the journey to Washington was resumed. There were no funeral services here, only the mute tribute of bowed heads. Radio stations broadcast memorial programs, and the flag-draped caisson which bore the body from the armory to the railroad station passed along streets lined with silent spectators.

The relief plane from Greenly Island landed at Curtiss field with the ocean fliers just before 2 o'clock and because the landing was unannounced the crowd there was of proportions easily handled by police. But the crowd here was another matter.

As soon as the announcement was made that the fliers, because of bad weather, would continue to Washington by train, throngs began to gather in the Pennsylvania station. The main rotunda, the corridors and passages, the stairways and waiting rooms filled until there was no room to move.

Police reserves were called from all the nearby stations and, unlimbering their clubs, prodded and pushed an opening for the fliers to make their way to the station master's office. It was a short journey, but a stormy one.

Major Fitzmaurice was cut off from his German comrades. Miss Herta Junkers was completely lost for a time, all were lostled and pushed and pulled, slapped on the back and cheered. At last all were locked safe in the station master's office, breathless, pale, disheveled, but smiling. And the baron's monocle was still in his eye, which seemed to please him immensely.

The crowd besieged the office and the fliers waved and smiled through the windows. Then a way was opened through the crowd and the fliers were escorted to the train platform, which was barred to all but their party, and boarded a special car.

At 5:01 the train pulled out, the fliers waving from the rear platform and the crowd cheering hysterically.

GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION OF FUNERAL OF FLOYD BENNETT

Honors reserved for those who achieve Honors reserved for thosew ho achieve high place in service under the flag were bestowed in the name of the American people today on Floyd Bennett, naval machinist, who shared with Byrd the first air flight to the north pole.

First American to die of that gallant fellowship of adventurers of the skies who have written their names in world history during the swift years just over, Bennett was laid to his long sleep deep in a rain-drenched, steep-sloping hillside of Arlington National cemetery that looks out toward the north and the icy barriers that guard the pole.

Just a week ago he set out to carry relief to German and Irish comrades of the air fraternity, stranded with a crippled ship after they had succeeded in spanning the Atlantic from east to west. Death came to him through exposure on that rescue trip.

For this young knight of the new chivalry of the air, although humble his rank, full military honors were accorded. A battalion of blue jacket comrades were his escort; three rippling rifle volleys, crackling through the rain and cold wind that swept the hillside, paid him a sailorly salute and the soft call of a bugle sent him to rest with "Taps," lights-out for soldiers or sailors on ship or shore.

Despite a downpour that grew heavier as time passed, the roped enclosure about the waiting grave was banked about with men and women for hours before the solemn strains of the navy band told that the aviator was coming to the end of his long last journey from Quebec. Above the grave itself, a brown tent fly had been stretched by army comrades and along the sides were banked row on row wreaths and clusters of bright flowers. The first to be set in place was that from president and Mrs. Coolidge.

When the train pulled in, a motor hearse awaited, as the military funeral was to start only at the gate of the old cemetery itself. High officials of the navy and other government departments had gathered in honor of this humble sailor-aviator however, and it was the hands of comrade petty officers in the navy that lifted the casket down and bore it out to the hearse.

A swift trip across the city followed, few of those on the rainswept sidewalks noting its significance. But at the old gateway through which so many whose names stand high in American history have passed to their place of last honor in Arlington, the drenched column, the band and a little group of commissioned fliers who were once fellow students with Bennett and who flew from Hampton Roads to Washington to pay him a comradely farewell, waited to take over the final rites for the dead.

The half mile march to the graveside was made with the rain beating down and a cold wind tugging at the dripping colors. Over the casket, as it was transferred from hearse to an army gun caisson with army comrades checking the cold, restless six horse team, a sodden flag was spread. Behind came the cars that bore Admiral Hughes, chief of naval operations, Assistant Secretary Warner representing Secretary Wilbur, diplomats and government dignitaries. Just before that, Secretary Hoover made his way to stand near the grave throughout the brief ceremony and the air attaches of the British and Spanish embassies also defied the storm to pay their respects.

At the grave, simple rites for the dead were pronounced by Rev. L. E. Smith of Norfolk, Va., pastor of the church of which the dead aviator was a member. With him was Senior Chaplain Dickins of the navy.

There was little room under the dripping khaki tent fly for even the nearest kin of the dead or the high officials who had come. Many stood outside in the fast increasing downpour, hats off under the deluge, throughout the ceremony. The voices of the clergy were audible hardly ten feet away.

The escort of bluejackets, with water dripping from their round flat caps, had moved around to line up on the hillside below the grave under trees that are just breaking out in green. Over the grave itself a single tree spread its branches almost reaching to the nearby monument that covers Admiral Robert E. Peary, first to win his way to the north pole.

Behind the clerxymen stood the widow, leaning on the arm of a naval officer as the low voiced service was completed. Over the casket the great flag that had draped it was still hiding the coffin itself to the last, held widespread in the hands of the eight petty officers who had borne the heavy weight to its place.

Back with the mourners stood one man who was saying goodbye to a comrade into whose hands many a time he had trusted his life and all his hopes. It was Commander Byrd, air conqueror of the pole. He had counted on Bennett in the new venture to the antarctic he is preparing and dropped everything to rush to Quebec when word reached him that his companion in the northern dash had been stricken.

A muttered command down the hillside brought rifles of the escort to "present" when the last prayer was said. A moment later breechlocks rattled, then the sharp blast of the rifles rang out. Three times they barked beneath the dripping trees, then the bugle lifted the slow notes of the old soldier and sailor lullaby and Floyd Bennett, sailor, air explorer, loyal comrade and ranked with the bravest of the brave was left alone amid the company of admirals and generals who sleep close about this humbly placed hero of peace.

At the last and as the shivering, drenched hundreds who had clung to their places to the end were straggling away to waiting cars, the widow bent forward to lay her own tribute of flowers on the grave. Then she turned and, tottered on the arm of her officer escort, made her way to the machine that bore her swiftly away.

BREMEN CREW ARRIVED IN WASHINGTON LAST NIGHT

WASHINGTON, April 27—(AP)—The crew of the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen arrived in Washington tonight by train from New York. They thus completed the journey begun by airplane at Lake St. Agnes, Quebec, early today, in an unsuccessful effort to reach this city in time for the funeral of Floyd Bennett.

Nearly a thousand persons cheered the fliers as they left the train. There were no ceremonies. German embassy and Irish Free State legations officials having arranged that the visit should be as informal as possible.

Officials of the embassy and legation met the aviators, along with Assistant Secretaries Davison of the war department and Warner of the navy.

GERMANY REPLIES TO THE ANTI-WAR PROPOSAL

BERLIN, April 27—(AP)—Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the foreign minister, handed to Jacob Gould Schurman, the American ambassador, tonight the German reply to Secretary Kellogg's anti-war proposal.

The German reply was also brought to the notice of the ambassadors of the other powers to whom the American proposal was submitted.

Neither the foreign office nor the American embassy is yet willing to divulge the contents of the German note, which it is learned will be published simultaneously on Tuesday next in the interested capitols.

TESTIMONY BY ATTORNEY GENERAL A. K. READING

BOSTON, April 27—(AP)—Attorney General Arthur K. Reading today told the special legislative committee investigating his conduct in office that Hugo B. Monjar, former president of the Decimo Club, Inc., of New York, attempted to disfranchise delegates to the national convention of the club in October, 1927. He said Monjar's motive was retention of control of the club by himself and his picked board of governors.

Reading said Monjar changed the constitution which Reading had revised so it would be impossible for the delegates to elect a new president and board of governors. Monjar failed in his aims and he and the old board were not re-elected.

Reading today told of the work he did for the club. He took up two hours telling of the investigation of laws he made before revising the constitution and by-laws. He denied threatening Monjar and said Monjar had agreed to repay the club $99,000 and to submit his contract to the members for approval.

The check used in paying Reading $25,000 was introduced as evidence. Reading explained that as the check was made out to Herbert L. Barrett, Boston lawyer whom Reading had engaged to appear in his place should the Decimo club become engaged in any litigation, he asked Barrett to sign a letter which he had dictated relative to revision of the Decimo constitution. It was this letter that Joseph D. Webster told the committee two weeks ago was received and filed at the Decimo club as having come from Reading.

The hearing adjourned until Monday when Reading will again take the stand.

PROPOSITION TO TEXTILE STRIKERS IN NEW BEDFORD

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., April 27.—(AP)—A definite proposition to the textile strikers was made by President Thomas F. McMahon, of the United Textile Workers of America, who with John L. Compos, and F. J. Gorman, of the same body, met the executive board of the New Bedford textile council this afternoon in conference. The proposition was that the U. T. W. invite the organized textile workers of New Bedford identified with the textile council to file application for affiliation with the U. T. W., with the understanding that there will be no financial obligations to the U. T. W. by the unions here until a reasonable time after the settlement of the present strike. President McMahon said that matters of policy are to be left to be decided by the September convention of the U. T. W. The purpose of the conference was to discover a basis upon which support of the A. F. of L. unions could be secured for the New Bedford strikers.

The executive board agreed to submit the proposition to the full council meeting. President McMahon giving his pledge on behalf of the U. T. W. that if favorable action was taken on his proposition that the door would be open to A. F. of L. organizations throughout the country to raise a fund for financing the present strike here.

PREMIER BRIAND SHOWS SATISFACTORY IMPROVEMENT

PARIS, April 27—(AP)—M. Briand, who has been obliged in the past two weeks to forego affairs of state on account of a serious and apparently baffling illness, is beginning to show what the attending physicians describe as "satisfactory improvement."

For a time no official diagnosis of his ailment was made public, but yesterday it was described as influenza. He was already beginning to show signs of improved condition, and this, today's official communique stated, continues. No mention is made of the probable date of the return of the foreign minister to his duties.

WEATHER BUREAU WARNS OF NORTHEAST STORM

"Advisory northeast storm warnings extending north of Atlantic City to Boston 4 p. m. Disturbance over South Carolina moving northeastward with increasing intensity, will cause strong north winds, probably reaching gale force and shifting to northwest Saturday morning."

Devastating Storms in Southern States

Many Buildings in Florida Wrecked by Tornado Forces

ATLANTA, Ga., April 27—(AP)—Wind storms, torrential rains and floods continued their ravages in the south today from Arkansas eastward to Florida.

A general storm with winds of tornado force blew across the central portion of Florida, wrecking buildings at Inverness, 70 miles north of Tampa, disrupting communication and isolating more than a dozen towns and villages. Meagre reports did not establish whether there were any casualties. Gainesville and Ocala were among the isolated towns.

A small tornado wrecked several buildings on the outskirts of Waycross, while other Georgia towns reported high winds and heavy rains.

Rivers of southern Georgia, already out of their banks with last Sunday's torrential rainfall, received new volumes of water and many places reported record stages.

Serious flood conditions were forecast along the Apalachicola and Choctawatchee rivers in northwestern Florida because of new floods piling upon the crest of the deluge which already has caused tremendous damage to the upper valleys. Hard rains fell throughout the flooded territory and communications were down.

The inhabitants of West Bainbridge, Ga., on the Flint river, were prepared to evacuate their homes with the river seven feet above flood stage and rising steadily.

The highest flood stage ever known was rushing down the Withlacoochee river on the border of Georgia and Florida. The stream was endangering a stretch of the Atlantic Coast Line railway as well as numerous highway bridges.

Cooler weather came to many sections, the thermometer rapidly falling from Atlanta northwestward.

Snow fell in eastern Kentucky, melting rapidly in most places, but here and there reaching a depth of four or five inches. Indications pointed to more snow and fruit crops were imperiled.

OOM, THE OMNIPOTENT, SEEKS ANNULMENT OF MARRIAGE

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—On the ground that his wife is insane, Winfield Jesse Nicholls, once assistant chief in the Nyack colony of Pierre Arnold Bernard, also known as Oom the Omnipotent, is seeking annulment of his marriage to the former Barbara Rutherford Hatch, daughter of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt.

The suit was disclosed today when Supreme Court Justice Levy signed an order permitting Nicholls to serve his suit on his wife by publication. Nicholls said he did not know the whereabouts of his wife, except that she is "somewhere in France in a sanitarium."

They were married secretely at New City, Rockland county, on August 11, 1924, shortly after she joined Bernard's so-called love cult, the headquarters of which were at the Clarkstown Country club where she met Nicholls. They separated after one year. Nicholls said in his complaint. Three years before the marriage Mrs. Nicholls had been divorced in Paris from Cirll Hatch whom she married when she was 21 years old.

Nicholls, who described himself as an artist and writer, said in order to marry him she fraudulently represented herself to be "in all respects normal, mentally and physically," while in fact at the time of the ceromnny she "was then or had theretofore been a lunatic and was or had theretofore been in other respects abnormal, mentally and physically." Nicholls said he would not have married her had he known of the abnormalities he alleges.

Coolidge Finds Flood Bill Not Acceptable

Hopes Conferees Will Agree Upon a Measure to Which He Will Give His Approval.

WASHINGTON, April 27—(AP)—President Coolidge regards the flood control bill passed by the house as no improvement upon the similar senate bill. His hope at present is that the conferees of the two houses will agree upon a measure to which he will be able to give his approval.

This is the last of the major pieces of legislation still on the congressional calendar and the full speed ahead signal has been given by leaders for this bill. However, a long period of conflict seems in sight when the house and senate seek to reconcile their tax views.

If the senate adopts the rate program voted into the bill by the republican majority of the finance committee, there will be a reduction difference of $80,000,000 between the two bills, the house having voted for $290,000,000. The main point of difference, however, with the house on corporation tax, which it voted to cut to 11 1-2 per cent, while the senate republicans decided on a drop from 13 1-2 per cent to only 12 1-2 per cent. Work was completed on the bill today by the finance committee after consultation with E. C. Alford, special assistant to the secretary of the treasury, and Middleton Beaman, chief of the executive council of congress, who have drafted many of the technical administrative provisions.

A final report on the bill, however, was postponed until Monday to permit the committee to read the revised print of the measure.

What Advertising Has Done.

Grandmother was a wonderful housekeeper in her day and generation. Women of today have modern conveniences which make it possible for them to be better housekeepers. They have learned, through advertising, of the many utensils that make housework lighter and do it better. They have learned, through advertising, of better foods and how to prepare and serve them more attractively. They have bought, because of advertising, the many time and labor saving devices that we have come to regard as every-day necessities.

Because of advertising, women have more time for relaxation and the social amenities. They look younger. They are younger—by years—than grandmother at the same age. Advertising has made that possible.

COMMUNIST BELA KUN ARRESTED IN VIENNA

VIENNA, April 27.—(AP)—After six years of quiescence in Russia, where he was alleged to be employed by the communist international in preparing revolutionary plans to be put into effect in foreign countries, Bela Kun, notorious Hungarian communist, was arrested in Vienna today in dramatic circumstances.

Although only formally charged with entering Austria under a false German passport, which is punishable by three months imprisonment, Bela Kun's real intention, the police declare, was to renew his efforts to stir up a revolution in Hungary and inaugurate a red regime under the tutelage of Moscow. He may possibly later be charged with criminal conspiracy.

The arrest of the agitator caused a great sensation in Vienna and Budapest. Large quantities of communist propaganda were seized in his offices, ering of widespread subversive organsale drug concern.

The discovery of the presence of Bela Kun here was due to clever detective work and has led to the uncovto reach Vienna, cleverly choosing this lation, the police allege, with ramificaftions throughout the Balkan states. Bela Kun used five different passports.

In political circles it is believed that city as his headquarters because he was aware of the swift and terrible punishment that had been inflicted on his communist colleagues in Hungary. As he is a Hungarian citizen, Hungary could demand his extradition, but it is believed that the Hungarians will not care to have such a dangerous insurrectionist within their borders. They remember the havoc he caused during the sanguinary four months regime in 1919, when 1,000 or more of those hostile to him were put to death.

In political circles it is believed that Austria will insist upon retaining the pcustody of the fiery revolutionist, so that he may be either imprisoned or officially deported.

TO REPRESS COMMUNIST MANIFESTATION IN PARIS

PARIS, April 27—(AP)—Any attempt at a communist manifestation within the limits of the city of Paris on May day will be pitilessly repressed, it was announced today by Prefect of Police Chiappe.

The announcement was made after a conference with minister of the interior Sarraut, General Simon, chief of staff, General Gouraud, the military-governor of Paris, the colonels of the republican guard and other high police officials.

It was decided that in addition to the usual police forces of the city, the republican guard and important military effectives will be concentrated in various sectors of Paris "ready for action should circumstances warrant."

Interference with workers desirous of earning their day's pay will be summarily dealt with by instant arrest, Prefect Chiappe said, and foreigners found participating in manifestations will be expelled from the country.

TRUE BILL FOUND AGAINST ALLEGED SLAYERS OF STATE POLICEMAN NELSON

WILLIMANTIC, April 27—(AP)—A true bill charging Roland G. Lalone and Albert G. Raymond with murder in connection with the shooting of State Policeman Irving H. Nelson at Pomfret, April 6, last, was returned today by the grand jury empanelled by Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin in superior court.

Following the report of Sabin S. Russell, of Killingly, foreman of the jury, Judge Marvin issued a bench warrant for the men on the application of State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford.

The two men, who were arrested in Worcester and are now held in Springfield charged with various crimes, face a life sentence there if convicted. If turned over to this state by the Massachusetts' authorities they will be charged with murder in the first degree, carrying the death penalty if convicted.

DEATH OF MARTIN B. MADDEN, A G. O. P. LEADER IN CONGRESS

Veteran Congressman Was Stricken With Heart Disease and Died at His Desk in His Capitol Office—Was Talking With a Colleague When Stricken—Mr. Madden Was 73 Years of Age and Was Serving His Twelfth Consecutive Term as a Representative From the First Chicago Congressional District—Was a Strong Supporter of the Administration.

WASHINGTON, April 27—(AP)—Martin B. Madden, of Illinois, one of the republican leaders in congress and a power in the house of representatives was stricken with an acute heart attack today and died a few minutes later.

The end came as he sat his desk in his capitol office, talking with a colleague, he suddenly placed his hand over his heart and sank down in his chair. He was removed to a couch in the room and despite efforts to revive him he passed away without regaining consciousness. Representative Sproul, an Illinois colleague, with whom he had been talking, and a few other friends were with Madden when he died.

Up to the moment of his death Mr. Madden had been in a cheery mood. He had received a number of callers, including Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the house republican leader, who brought him some souveniers of a banquet they had recently attended together.

Word of Mr. Madden's death spread rapidly about the house and within a few minutes the house, in whose stormy legislative battles he had participated for twenty-three years, adjourned out of respect for the "chief," as he was called by many of his friends.

There was silence in the chamber as the announcement was made and members seemed stunned at the news that the white haired chairman of the house appropriations committee, for whom all had deep admiration and respect, had passed from their ranks.

Mr. Madden was 73 years of age and was serving his twelfth continuous term as a representative from the first Chicago congressional district. He is survived by his widow and one daughter, Mrs. Paul Henderson, wife of a former assistant postmaster general.

Mr. Madden's body was taken to his Washington home where it will remain until Sunday. Then it will be brought back to the capitol to lie in state between the hours of noon and two p. m., in the chamber of the house. It will be placed on a train for Chicago where on Monday afternoon funeral services will be held at his home at Hinsdale, a Chicago suburb.

As chairman of the appropriations committee, Mr. Madden was a power both in the work of the house and in the administration of the fiscal affairs of the nation. Each year it is the duty of that committee to pass upon the annual expenditures of the federal government, totaling more than four billion dollars.

All ten of the annual supply bills had passed through the house stage of their legislative journey and five have become law. The other five remain in conference but their financial outlines were clearly established, they, in common with the others, bearing in every line the signs of the unfaltering devotion to duty that marked Madden's service.

A gladiator of the first rank, the veteran chairman recently had taken an active part in affairs of the house. It was to him that the administration entrusted leadership in the struggle to reshape in the house the senate's flood control bill opposed by President Coolidge.

That was Madden's last great effort, even as as he fought it out on the floor the shadow of death hovered above him, and it seemed to those who looked down on the struggle that his voice was not so ringing, that his dynamic energy in debate and his swift answer to challenge in argument were a little shaded by physical weakness. But the spirit that drove him was unfaltering, even when it led him back to renounce, in the face of certain defeat, the program he had championed night and day for the preceding week.

At that time, however, some of his colleagues commented on the apparent good health of the chairman, and the almost boyish enthusiasm he displayed in the legislative battle.

Several times during consideration of the flood bill Madden was called to the white house for conferences with Mr. Coolidge and he was regarded as spokesman for the president.

It was thought by his colleagues today that this work, coupled with the strain of a recent primary fight for renomination in his district, which he won by a large majority had sapped his strength which only about two weeks ago had been further taxed by a slight heart attack.

For several years, however, Mr. Madden has suffered with heart trouble and two years ago suffered an attack somewhat similar to that of today while sitting in his office. At that time he was taken to his home in an ambulance.

During the long congress recess last summer, Mr. Madden spent most of his time at a health resort on the southern coast of England, and when he returned to Washington in the fall was believed to be in the best health he had enjoyed in years.

CHICAGO SHOCKED BY DEATH OF REP. MADDEN

CHICAGO, April 27—(AP)—Official Chicago was shocked today by the unexpected news of the death of the state's most powerful representative in congress, Martin B. Madden, chairman of the appropriations committee.

The city council, over which he once presided, adopted appropriate resolutions, and, out of respect to Mr. Madden, adjourned until Monday.

The city hall will be closed on the day of his funeral at Hinsdale, a suburb, and the entire council and city department heads will attend. Flags on all municipal buildings were at half mast.

Among the many echoes of the April 10 primary with which Chicago still resounds is that of Mr. Madden's strenuous contest with William H. Dawson, Negro, for renomination in the first district. The district is composed of the first, second and third wards, and its population is predominantly Negro.

Negro leaders demanded a Negro congressman to represent them and Mr. Madden did not wage a personally active campaign. However, Mayor William Hale Thompson and other leaders invaded the ward with advice that the district could be represented to better advantage by a white man and especially Mr. Madden.

Madden won hands down and, since the district normally is republican, the aged congressional leader virtually was assured another term, which would have been his thirteenth.

The vacancy on the republican ticket caused by Madden's death will be filled by selection by the republican committeemen from the three wards of the district sometime before November. Homer Galpin, chairman of the county central committee, said after he was informed of the death of the veteran legislator.

The committeemen charged with the selection under the Galpin plan are Daniel M. Jackson and Oscar De Priest, Negroes, and Daniel Serritelo.

On the other hand some politicians said that since Mr. Madden had not been given a certificate of nomination it could not be issued in his name, and, following a recently established precedent, necessarily would go to the Negro Dawson.

COOLIDGE WOULD APPROVE SENATE $203,000,000 TAX CUT

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP)—Although the senate finance committee's $203,000,000 tax reduction bill ignores the administration's demand for retention of the automobile tax, President Coolidge is ready to approve it.

Opposition of the president to the proposal of the committee as well as of the house to wipe out the three per cent. automobile levy developed again today but it was made clear that Mr. Coolidge realizes it is the province of congress to determine how the revenue should be raised.

For that reason, the president is not going to turn against the senate bill on account of the automobile tax repeal alone. His only concern is that congress should make sure that sufficient revenue will be raised to meet government expenses and he feels that the $203,000,000 measure will not go beyond the means of the treasury.

Approval by the finance committee of the house provision for repeal of the automobile tax virtually ends the fight for this action which has been waged for several years by the automobile industry against the wishes of Secretary Mellon and President Coolidge. Democrats are practically a unit for this step and republican approval of it settled the issue.

President Coolidge believes the automobile tax should be employed to raise sufficient funds at least to support the federal road building enterprises. National road expenditures approximate $75,000,000 annually and it was estmated the automobile tax yielded $66,000,000.

PREDICTS ACTION ON TAX REDUCTION NEXT WEEK

WASHINGTON, April 27—(AP)—Promising to get the new $203,000,000 tax reduction bill before the senate by next Thursday, Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee predicted today it would be disposed of there and sent to conference with the house within a week or ten days.

GREAT IMPROVEMENT IN INDUSTRIES OF THE STATE

HARTFORD, April 27—(AP)—Industrial trends in the state were indicated today when the Connecticut chamber of commerce in a summary showed that employment in March was seven per cent. greater than in February and that pay rolls in totals were 1.3 per cent. more.

The five year curve line has shown that employment is on the upgrade in March and the increase this year was greater than in two years preceding.

EARTHQUAKE RECORDED AT FORDHAM UNIVERSITY

NEW YORK, April 27—(AP)—An earthquake, described by Fordham university officials as a violent shock, was recorded on the seismograph at the university today. The disturbance started at 3.47 p. m., and reached its maximum at 4.08 p. m.

LALONE AND RAYMOND INDICTED FOR MURDER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 27—A true bill of murder was returned here this afternoon after a 15 minute deliberation by a Windham county grand jury called to consider the cases of Roland H. Lalone, 21 and Albert J. Raymond, 20, of South Worcester, Mass., alleged "ice box bandits" charged with being fugitives from justice in connection with the death of State Policeman Irvin H. Nelson of the Danielson barracks. Nelson was shot down while attempting to halt a bandit car in the town of Pomfret on the night of Friday, April 6. The jury listened to evidence from 23 witnesses, 14 from Massachusetts and eight from Connecticut, including two from this city, two from Pomfret, two from Danielson and one each from Stafford Springs and Putnam.

The authorities will now direct their activities to bringing Lalone and Raymond from Massachusetts, where they are now being held in Springfield, into this state to stand trial for murder in the first degree. Hope was expressed that the case might be scheduled for the present term.

All of the 18 members of the grand jury, who had been summoned by Sheriff Charles A. Gates, were present when Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin of Hartford convened court at 11:05 o'clock. State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford of Putnam explained the nature of the complaint. This was followed by the roll call of the jury by Assistant Clerk Miss Marjorie Bradford. The following answered: Walter B. Brown, farmer, Ashford; Oscar T. Atwood, town clerk, Brooklyn; Clinton E. Frink, merchant, Canterbury; George A. Reed, retired, Chaplin; Archa S. Walker, merchant Eastford, Harry L. Hecker, contractor, Hampton; Sabin S. Russell, attorney, Killingly; Henry W. Fontaine, merchant, Plainfield; J. Fred Ash, county game warden, Pomfret; Aldermar A. Brodeur, merchant, Putnam; William Pechie, retired, Putnam; Clarence H. Perry, farmer, Scotland; Irving E. Paink, merchant, Sterling; Alexander Maitland, farmer, Thompson; Frank M. Knight, retired, Thompson; Frank Fred M. Smith, physician, Windham; Frank M. Lincoln, insurance, Windham; and Charles M. Perrin, retired, Woodstock.

Judge Marvin then read the charge to the jury. In a 25 minute delivery Judge Marvin explained in detail the various phases of homicide and the penalties in the event that the accused are found guilty.

The jury was then ordered to the common council chamber to hear the evidence collected by the state. In organizing, the jury selected Attorney Sabin S. Russell as chairman. At 12:45 o'clock the grand jury was excused for lunch at the Nathan Hale hotel and deliberations were resumed at 1:45. Deputy Sheriffs Lester H. Blish of this city and Charles E. Ayer of Killingly acted as guards during the day, all the evidence being presented behind closed doors. Prominent authorities who were in the courtroom today included Commissioner Robert T. Hurley of the state police department, County Detective William E. Jackson of this city and Lieutenant Rose Urquehart of the Danielson state police barracks. Interested in such proceedings as were now held behind closed doors was a large number of spectators.

The jury returned to the court room at 4:20 o'clock and through Foreman Sabin S. Russell announced the finding of a true bill of first degree murder. Judge Marvin then ordered court adjourned without date.

Following the indictment for murder by the grand jury, State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford requested the court to issue bench warrants for the arrest of Lalone and Raymond on charges of first degree murder. Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin granted the request for warrants and they were issued to Sheriff Charles A. Gates. The warrants are to be used in the extradition of the murderers from Springfield, Mass., to Connecticut to stand trial.

During the deliberations of the grand jury at the session of the Windham county superior court today, Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin ordered the opening of court to take up criminal matters, these being confined to the dismissal of probationers whose names have been on the criminal docket list during the past two years. State's Attorney Bradford presented the following cases with explanations of the charges: Henry Jodoin, Irving Maddox, Fred Gardner, Ralph Hunt, Sherman Brothers, Gedeon F. Dumas, Lewis W. Perkins, Alphonse D. Parker, Ernest Deloque and Alphire Fournier. The court ordered these probationers discharged and their sentences indefinitely suspended.

Court was then reopened for the scheduled short calendar and assignment of cases. But one of the two cases on the short calendar was heard, that of the petition of Frank M. Lincoln, administrator, in the settlement of the estate of Bridge Casey, an estate of several years' standing. Judge Marvin took the papers in the case and reserved his decision.

The uncontested divorce case of Evelyn L. Taylor vs. John L. Taylor vs. John G. Taylor was heard, the petitioner alleging desertion. The plaintiff testified that she was married to the defendant on July 6, 1920, and that he had deserted her in September of the same year. This testimony was substantiated by witnesses. Judge Marvin then granted the divorce decree on the grounds of desertion.

The case of Herman Breitschneider vs. Charles P. Wilbur was claimed to be heard Tuesday of next week. Civil court was then adjourned until Tuesday of next week at 11 o'clock, in this city.

Complying with the patriotic traditions of Old Natchaug and with the wish of Governor John H. Trumbull, Arbor and Bird day was observed by the pupils and teachers of the Natchaug grammar school today. Fitting exercises were held in the assembly hall at two o'clock with parents and friends as guest of the sixth grade pupils. The program was planned for educational and entertaining qualities and was as follows: Grade six—Mrs. Sullivan. Governor's Proclamation, Valentine L. Murphy Jr., Arbor Day song, class. What the Trees Give, girls. Song of the Thrush, class. Forest Conservation, reading, John Sweeney. Trees (Joyce Kilmer,) recitation, class. The Birds' Singing School, class. The Boy Who Hated Trees, dramatization of a story, boys.

Grade VI—Miss Moriarty. The Nature Lover's Creed, class. The Gladness of Nature, Helen Woodward. America, the Beautiful, class. Facts about Birds and Trees, boys and girls. Woodman, Spare That Tree! Jennie Scheinman. James Learns About Arbor Day, boys and girls.

The funeral of Miss Mary J. Casey was held from the home of her brother, Edward F. Casey of 147 Church street this morning with a solemn high mass of requiem in St. Joseph's church at ten o'clock. Rev. Charles M. Kelly was celebrant, Rev. Paul J. Bartlewski, deacon and Rev. John Balaca, subdeacon. Mrs. Edmund R. Portelance presided at the organ and selections were rendered by a quartet composed of Miss E. Monica McKeon, Mrs. Henry Mathieu, John Fitzgerald and William A. Costello. Mis McKeon and Mrs. Mathieu were also heard in solos. Burial was in the family plot of St. Joseph's cemetery where a committal service was conducted by Rev. Father Kelly. The bearers were James F. Twomey, J. E. Sullivan, John Reilly, Joseph P. Cotter and John S. Sullivan of this city and William Casey of Hartford. Attending in a body were officers and members of the L. C. B. A., and relatives and friends present came from Philadelphia, Pa., Springfield, Holyoke, Plymouth and Lowell, Mass., Hartford, Baltic and this city.

Funeral services for Miss Catherine Dannhey were held at the late home, 64 South street, this morning with a requiem high mass in St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock. Rev. Paul J. Bartlewski was the celebrant and selections were rendered by a trio consisting of Mrs Mary Mathieu, William A. Costello and Walter J. Costello. William A. Costello sang the waiting hymn. The bearers were Jeremiah J. Sullivan, Arthur Meikle, John J. Sullivan and Thomas P. Foley. The committal service at the grave in St. Joseph's cemetery was read by Rev. Father Bartlewski. Arrangements were in charge of Killourey Brothers.

Edward J. Banfish, 17, was presented before Justice of the Peace Clarence H. Barlow of the Ashford town court early Thursday evening, charged with larceny and theft, to which he pleaded guilty. On separate occasions the youth took two suits and $30 in cash from his uncle, who is an Ashford resident. He was fined $26 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in Brooklyn jail. The case was prosecuted by Otto Hattin. The arrest was made by State Officer Frank A. Starkel, of the Stafford Springs barracks.

A barn containing considerable hay and several hens was destroyed with its contents by fire about 10 o'clock this morning. The barn is located on the old Burrill place, owned by John Susteck, about two miles north of Westford in Ashford. Loss is estimated at $1,500.

Notable progress is noted in the city construction jobs now underway in the laying of sewers for 600 feet on Mansfield avenue, north of Quarry street and of a six-inch water main for 1,300 feet on Tingley street. An eight-inch sewer pipe will also be laid on Tingley street from Main to Valley streets. Some 40 men, several of whom would otherwise be unemployed at this time, are provided with work in these civic improvements. With the completion of these jobs most of these men will be retained for the laying of sewers on Wilson street.

Miss Lucy Reddish of Missouri and Miss Gladys Greenman of Ohio, members of the normal school faculty left tonight for New York. Miss Reddish will go to Washington, D. C., to visit her brother.

Mrs. Darius K. Clark entertained at whist Thursday afternoon. Prizes were awarded to Miss Mabel I. Dimock, Mrs. E. S. Wyatt, Mrs. E. R. Smith and Mrs. Walter F. Grant.

DANIELSON

MEDICAL DETACHMENT AT LOCAL ARMORY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 27—Major E. L. Darbie of special troops of the 43d division said this afternoon that he has received authorization to form a medical detachment that is to have its headquarters at the Danielson state armory. The detachment is now being recruited and will enter the army service about June 1.

The detachment in all probability will be headed by Dr. Edward F. Perry of Putnam, who went overseas as a medical officer with the American forces during the World war. It is not unlikely that Dr. Perry will be commissioned as a captain. There also is to be a junior officer, likely another physician, and fifteen enlisted men, a few of these from Putnam, the others from Danielson.

The medical detachment will meet at the state armory here for weekly drills, as does the headquarters detachment of the special troops stationed here. Its members also will be required to take the annual 15 days of field training. The matter of forming the medical detachment has been under consideration for some time, but only recently has been authorized.

So much has been said about the matter that there remains little new to be said, other than to again stress the fact that Clean-up week for Danielson and vicinity opens next Monday morning. Everyone is familiar with the object of this activity. Everyone has been invited to have an active part in it. Danielson has a civic pride that can be served and enhanced by hundreds of its residents in this effort. Taking time by the forelock, many hustlers will begin the clean-up week this Saturday, but all of next week likely will be marked by special activity to be rid of all unsightly debris and refuse, and an effort to keep Danielson a spotless town the year through.

Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart and Officer Donald J. Geddes of the state officers at the Danielson barracks and Coroner Arthur G. Bill of this town were in Willimantic today in connection with the grand jury proceedings instituted incident to the murder of State Officer Irving H. Nelson three weeks ago tonight. Both state officers, who have been very active in investigation of the case ever since it developed, appeared as witnesses before the grand jury. Coroner Bill was in attendance to arrange for the appearance of witnesses that he had examined in the inquest in the case.

Due to the fact that an attachment has been placed on some of the road building machinery that has been in use on the job, work on the Danielson-Brooklyn highway is slowed up. Today only a few men were actively engaged, these being employed at the ledge where rock is being blasted out for the crusher and in building walls at another point on the route. Much of the rough grading on re-routed parts of the highway between Danielson and Brooklyn has been completed and a considerable amount of drainage work accomplished, but the great percentage of the work to be done before the job is completed remains unaccomplished. Charles Haggerty of Webster is the contractor.

Rev. John R. Pratt of the Brooklyn Congregational church will preach the sermon at the Six-church conference to be held at the Congregational church in Wauregan next Monday. The morning session is to open at 10:30. There is to be a basket lunch at noon, and the Afternoon session will begin at 1:30, with Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church delivering an address on The Place of Emotion in Religion. The Place of Intellect in Religion will be the subject of another address to be made by Rev. George Reese of Central Village.

His friends here learned with regret today of the critical illness of Lieut. E. V. Streaman, officer in charge of the Groton barracks of the state police department and stationed here for several years until last summer. Lieut. Streaman is understood to have undergone a surgical operation some days ago for a gland difficulty and septic poisoning developed.

Chief A. P. Woodward of the Danielson fire department made a hurried trip to Putnam this afternoon to watch the proceedings at the fire on School street in that city.

Workmen are engaged in further developing and improving the baseball ground known as Paco field, off Cottage street, where the games of the Twilight league will be played this season.

James Dielada has purchased a house lot from Mrs. Alfred Pluze of Carter street and work has started for the excavation of a cellar for a cottage to be built on the site.

A. Welsberg, who has announced that he is to retire from the local merchandising field, has been engaged in business in Danielson the past 49 years.

Parades of children of local schools, marching to stimulate general interest in Clean-up week, are scheduled for this Saturday morning in Danielson.

Big value at One Cent sale today: two hot water bottles for $2.01; two one-pound boxes of chocolates for $1.01. Mose, the Druggist.—Adv.

A crew of cablemen of the A. T. and T. company are at work in Brooklyn relocating the underground line at some points, a change made necessary by the plan to rebuild the state highway between that place and Danielson.

"King" George W. Jacques of East Killingly was in Danielson today, chipper and rarin' to go into the coming clambake season, despite his nearly 77 years of age. In the two score years he has been baking claims the king has fed scores of thousands of people in many sections of southern New England.

All of the masses at St. James' church the coming Sunday are to be on standard time, the parish officially changing to daylight saving time at noon on Sunday.

Up to late this afternoon no notices had been received at the Danielson postoffice relative to changes in the arrival of mails with the coming of daylight saving time on Sunday However, the office will be open an hour earlier on Sunday to conform with the fast time schedule.

A number from this town were at Oneco town hall this evening to attend a meeting of the Quinebaug Valley Circuit league.

Construction of the foundation walls for the Brooklyn Savings bank building will be started the first of the coming week. Excavation of the cellar is now for advanced.

Operations were started this morning for the construction of the stretch of sewer that the annual borough meeting recently authorized built through a part of Oak street.

Costume experts who pass on clothes that are to be worn in moving pictures look through a piece of blue glass to see how colors will photograph.

PUTNAM

KINNEY COAL YARDS ARE DESTROYED IN BAD FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 27—The Kinney coal and lumber yards, the Polish club and two frame buildings were destroyed this afternoon in a fire that had its origin in the lumber yard and fanned by a high wind spread rapidly The damage is estimated as well over $50,000 and is only partially covered by insurance.

The fire was discovered shortly after 2 p. m., by Joseph LaPre, an employe of the coal company, in the large coal sheds on School street. LaPre pulled in a general alarm from box 25 at the corner of School and Front streets and brought prompt response from the three companies of the Putnam fire department under the direction of Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston When the firemen reached the scene the buildings were completely enveloped in flames and all surrounding property was in danger.

Hose lines were in use from the hydrants on School and Front streets, the length of hose laid totaling over 2,000 feet. The aged coal sheds proved to be excellent fuel for the flames and only a short time elapsed before the entire neighborhood was a burning mass. The firemen were heavily handicapped by a strong northeast wind that carried sparks about the district and set surrounding buildings afire.

Polish Club Burns

The Polish club on School street, a brick building, was completely destroyed. It presented a spectacular touch with the falling brick walls and the crashing of the large plate glass windows.

Another house owned by the Kinney Coal company and occupied by Joseph LaPre, discovered of he blaze was completely demolished together with the entire house furnishings.

Firemen Are Trapped

Upon the arrival of the No. 2 fire company hose was laid in an alley and the firemen attempted to attack the flames from their starting point. While trying to counteract the blaze another building on the other side of the alley caught fire and trapped the noxziemen between the two fires. A daring rescue was made by other members of the company who succeeded in training a stream of water onto the sheds and sufficiently extinguishing the flames long enough to allow the firemen to escape the mercy of the flames. Another fireman, John Peters of the hook and ladder company was badly burned about the face and neck He was treated by Dr. E. F. Perry who was an onlooker.

Coal Sheds Fall

The climax of the fire came when the ancient towering coal sheds of the coal company crashed to the ground Fire records show that the Kinney coal fire today was one of the worst witnessed by Putnam in many years.

Another House Burns

A tenement, owned by the Buck and Harris estate on Franklin street broke out in flames today from sparks from the fire. The house on Franklin street is situated over 900 yards from the scene of the School street blaze. Members of the Putnam fire department were directed to the new blaze and succeded in extinguishing it only after the roof had been burned off. Another house nearby started to burn but was caught by the firemen before any damage resulted.

Telephone Service Suffers

The fire resulted in the cutting off of telephone service in the east side of the city. The scene of the fire is only five hundred yards from Putnam telephone exchange building and nearly all trunk lines come in on a cable a short distance from this point. The raging flames burned down wires of the Eastern Connecticut Power company that furnished power for residents in that district and completely put out of service over 1200 telephones

Members of the telephone and light and power line gangs braved the fury of the flames in an effort to restore service on a temporary line. The feat was accomplished by the electric light men, but the damage was so great to the telephone system that it will be hours before service can be restored. Both the light and power men and the telephone men are to be highly complimented on their effort while braving the flames in the fire district.

Cables Shipped from New Haven

As soon as the extent of damage to the telephone lines was known new cables from New Haven were shipped out on the company's trucks to Putnam to replace those that were put out of service at the fire here this afternoon, and four gangs of expert cable splicers were rushed to Putnam in an effort to restore service. A statement from Exchange Manager E. L. Beebe of the local office said that nearly 1200 telephones were put out of order in Putnam, North Grosvenordale and Thompson. All gangs from the telephone service were able to work by the lights that were installed by the Putnam branch of the Eastern Connecticut Power company through the courtesy of Superintendent R. E. Thurston.

Fire Dept. to be Praised

All members of he Putnam fire department are to be commended for their excellent and efficient work from Fire Chief Thurston down through the entire department. All members who were at their daily work quickly responded to the alarm. Although the loss was high the amount of property that was saved was made possible only through the untiring efforts of the firemen. The all out signal was sounded at 6.15 p. m. just four hours and fifteen minutes after the alarm was struck.

TWENTY FOUR CASES OF MEASLES AT NO. GROSVENORDAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 27—The epidemic of measles that broke out last week in North Grosvenordale was reported by the town health authorities as somewhat curbed today. A total of 24 cases of the disease have broken out since the epidemic started All homes where a case has been discovered have been quarantined and all other precautions to prevent further spread of the disease have been taken by the health officials.

It was thought that the sudden spread would necessitate the closing of the town schools but it was not acted upon by the town officials.

SUFFERS BADLY CUT EYE IN ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 27—A car owned by Peter Murphy, of Pomfret, a taxi driver, and driven by his brother, John Murphy, crashed into a rope that was intended to rope off the fire district near the Kinney property on School street at about 7 o'clock this evening. Miss Lillian Beaudreault of Woodstock avenue, Putnam, who was a passenger in the car, was severely injured, when a large piece of glass flew from the windshield and cut her above the right eye. Miss Beaudreault was rushed to the Day-Kimball hospital, where authorities thought she would suffer the loss of an eye. Later in the evening a report from the hospital showed that complications were not so serious as first thought. The young lady remains at the hospital and is said to be resting comfortably.

MANY FEATURES AT ANNUAL FIREMEN'S BALL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 27—The large Kinney block fire here today did not have any effect on the social end of a fireman's life tonight, as the 28th annual ball of Putnam Fire department went over a huge success from all angles. The ball was held at the Armory in Harris street.

The grand march that has been the feature event in former years was omitted and taking its place was an exhibition of how the fire alarm is received after the box is run. The exhibit was under the direction of Supt. Charles T. Thayer. The new boxes were in stalled in the Armory and properly wired to a large gong obtained by the fire department for the occasion. At a given time, two boys, G. Alward Thayer, son of the superintendent, and Silas M. Wheelock, Jr., struck the boxes at the same moment. Box 42 of the new non-interference type sounded first, having a slight advantage over Box 36. This novelty was instructive and well received by the audience. Another exclusive feature of the affair was the effect of the special lighting features on the pretty decorations, that were of a pink and white color. The attendance was estimated at over 700 and was one of the largest affairs ever held in the new building.

JEWETT CITY

JOE FABER MAKING GOOD AS SHORTSTOP WITH MONTREAL

Of interest to baseball fans in general and in particular to the many admirers of Joe Faber, now playing shortstop for the Montreal team of the International league, is the following record, which constitutes the figures of the games played to date by the circuit. Joe has played three games and in 13 official times at bat has made three hits, two of them doubles. His fielding has been of the highest order, with six putouts, 12 assists and one error. He figured in the starting in of one double play.

The funeral of Teofil Zawistowski was held from his home on Dime street Friday morning. Solemn requiem mass was celebrated at St. Mary's church by Rev. J. J. McCabe with Rev John Quinn deacon and Rev. Nicholas Caron, sub-deacon. The waiting hymn "When Evening Comes" was sung by Mrs. Noel Garand, with James Olson at the organ. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Lisbon. Rev. J. J. McCabe reading the committal prayers. The bearers were Boleslaw Czapski, John Arteski, John Smytki, Anthony Ambot, Joseph Jaskiewicz and Anthony Mioduszwski. There were beautiful floral remembrances. Friends were present from Portchester, N. Y., Hartford, Norwich, Boston and Wakefield, R. I. Hourigan Bros., were in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Clarence Mell of Lisbon is at the home of Mrs. John Perkins, assisting to care for her, as she still remains ill.

Two brush fires in Lisbon Friday morning caused much anxiety. One of the school children started a grass fire in the rear of the old schoolhouse in Newent. Although the brush had been cut a year or two ago, in the lot in the rear of the school and church, it has grown again and the fire spread rapidly. The fire warden, Albert Potter was not at home, no men were working at the new school house, so the teachers, children, Rev. W. J. Reynolds and Albert Bradlaw worked like Trojans and finally extinguished the blaze. It was hardly out when another grass fire started from rubbish being burned by Edward Corbett and spread over the lot in the rear of the parsonage barn It was conquered only by lively work on the part of the three men.

Mrs. Emma Cyra is very ill at her home on East Main street having had a cerebral hemorrhage.

WEEKAPAUG

Edward Everett McQuade, 52, died Saturday night at his home on the Post road after a year's illness. Surviving are his wife and two sons, Everett of New York city, and Arthur, who is at home. Mr. and Mrs. McQuade had just moved to their new house which was built during the winter. Funeral services were held at the home Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, of Westerly, conducted the service. Burial was at their former home, Marlboro, New Hampshire.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 27—With the adoption of daylight saving Sunday, train service on the New Haven railroad from Westerly station will be as follows, daylight saving time given:

East-bound trains, New Haven to New London and Providence—4:04 a. m. daily Night express; 6:41 daily Federal express; 7:22 except Sunday accommodation; 7:30 Sunday only accommodation; 7:45 daily New England express; 10:35 except Sunday accommodation; 12:00 daily Mayflower express; 1:28 p. m. daily Bay State express; 3:14 daily The Hub express; 4:32 Saturdays only accommodation; 4:39 daily The Shoreliner; 6:30 daily The Puritan express; 6:52 daily The Colonial express; 8:00 daily The Bostonian express; 8:35 daily The Gilt Edge express.

West-bound trains, Providence to New London and New Haven—12:55 a. m. daily The Quaker express; 7:46 Mondays only, beginning June 25, local express; 8:21 except Sundays accommodation; 10:33 daily The Mayflower express; 11:08 daily The Colonial express; 11:57 daily The Bay State express; 1:43 p. m. daily The New Yorker express; 2:22 Saturdays only accommodation; 3:10 daily The Shoreliner express; 5:02 daily The Puritan express; 5:35 daily except Saturdays and Sundays accommodation; 6:14 daily New York and Pittsburgh express; 6:24 Sundays only accommodation; 7:08 daily Gilt Edge express; 9:47 daily The Federal express.

The new timetables issued for the first time leave out reference to "East of New London and Willimantic," so long familiar to New Haven railroad timetable users, the simple word "Providence" appearing on the timetable cover.

NORWICH DRIVER'S CASE PUT OVER ANOTHER WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 27—A very short session of the Third district court was held this morning by Judge Oliver H. Williams; no criminal or civil cases came up for trial.

Two complaints, town of Westerly, Thomas E. Brown, chief of police, vs. George C. Moore, of Norwich, for infractions of Westerly police ordinances, on request of Town Solicitor John Ferguson were put over another week for trial.

In the civil case, Gavitt Furniture company vs. Agnes C. and Arthur E. Fraser, Attorney John J. Dunn announced his withdrawal from the case as counsel for the defendants at the request of his clients. Judge Williams declared it against court practice for counsel to be withdrawn on the eve of trial. Attorney Ferguson for the plaintiff asked for a week's continuance and then asked that the case be defaulted. Judge Williams declared the case defaulted and passed for one week, for proof of claim.

Civil Docket—Kelleher-Kohn company vs. Katherin P. Scott. Case was continued when Attorney Dunn announced that a happy disposition was being made gradually.

Antonio Turrisi vs. Sam Salestino, book account for $170. Defaulted and passed for proof of claim.

Several tax collection cases, brought by Collector James M. Pendleton, came before the court when Miss Mary Quinlan, deputy collector, took the witness stand. Miss Quinlan testified that Ada T. Gillman had paid and the case was marked settled.

Judgment was rendered against Raymond A. Nye for $21, taxes, interest and costs.

An alarm from Box No. 41, Main and School streets, was sounded Friday afternoon about 2 o'clock for a blaze which started in the basement of the dwelling, 151 Main street, occupied by William J. Kenyon. Three pieces of apparatus of the Westerly fire department responded and two hydrant streams were turned into the basement to extinguish the blaze, which was accomplished in a short time. It was reported that the fire was started by defective electric wiring and that the heat caused a gas meter to be melted to such an extent that some gas was liberated. When the fire was discovered, smoke was issuing in clouds from the basement windows of the dwelling owned by the George C. Moore Co., Westerly textile manufacturers.

April 26. Fannie A. Burdick to Henry A. Stahle, lot with buildings and improvements on the west side of Beach street.

The Chevrolet touring car of Erastus L. Strong cut capers on High street Friday morning. Headed in a northerly direction, the auto rolled down the grade from the High street railroad bridge and, crossing the sidewalk in front of the residence of George O. Johnson, No. 139, crashed through a picket fence so that the forward end was suspended over the offset wall. The forward right wheel was torn from the hub and thrown with the pieces of the fence to the lot below. The radiator was torn from the hood and some of the forward undergear was smashed. The mishap was reported caused by a broken steering gear which rendered the auto unmanageable.

Collection of Westerly Fire district taxes and dog taxes for the past two weeks has proceeded slowly in the office of Westerly town clerk. By Friday, about two-thirds of the total of the fire district tax assessments had been received, as about $20,000 of the total of $31,536.05 had been paid. Payments after April 30 will have interest at the rate of 12 per cent added.

Over 500 dogs are listed in the town of Westerly and up to Friday noon but 304 dog taxes had been paid the town clerk. By direction of the town council all dogs in the town were ordered muzzled or held on leash for a period of 30 days. Unclaimed dogs taken in by the police were killed.

Members of the World Wide Guild of the First Baptist church Sunday afternoon will hold a hike which will be followed by a vesper service. The members are to meet in front of the church at 3 o'clock and hike to the place where the vesper service will be held. The vesper service will consist of songs, speeches and devotions. Supper will be served by the committee. The destination of the hike is one not too far for anyone to walk.

Grovernor C. Stannard, 43, a former Westerly boy, in recent years residing at 2 Wellington street, Providence, died Friday morning at Wallum Lake, where he had been in ill health for about three weeks. He was the son of Eli and Estelle Stannard, born in Westerly. He attended the public schools of Westerly and left for Providence about 20 years ago. He has been employed as a repair man in the garage of the Narragansett Electric Lighting company in Providence. He is survived by his wife, three children, Lillian, Kenneth and Ruth, and a sister, Mrs. Hobart C. Saunders, of Westerly.

Funeral services for Miss Helen B. Healy, Providence teacher, were held Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock from her home, 5 Grove avenue. A solemn mass of requiem at 10 o'clock at the Church of the Immaculate Conception was celebrated by Rev. Father J. F. Vincent, S. M.; Rev. J. P. Cassagne, S. M., being deacon, and Rev. Henry Bruno, S. M., sub-deacon. A large number of relatives and friends attended the funeral.

Following the mass, Martin H. Spellman sang "Jesus Lover of My Soul."

Burial was in St. Michael's Old cemetery, where the committal service was by Father Vincent. The bearers were M. Walter Flynn, Jr., Charles Herdegen, James McNamara, Michael Healy, John Healy and Dr. H. F. Doyle.

Westerly high school Chorus and Glee club gave their annual concert Thursday evening in the high school auditorium, scoring a success. The first part of the program comprised miscellaneous vocal and instrumental numbers. Those participating were Miss Katherine O'Brien, soprano; Harold M. Nicholas, violinist; the Boys' Glee club and the Girls' Glee club. The second part was devoted to a condensed version of Wagner's "Lohengrin," sung by the chorus, with Miss O'Brien and Harry H. Coleman, tenor, singing the solo parts. Mrs. Frank G. Ahern and Miss Emilie Zangrani were at the piano.

Large audiences Thursday and Friday nights attended the production of "Ladies' Night at the Club," as presented by the Italian Welfare club at the Immaculate Conception school hall. The program included song and dance specialties, monologs and musical numbers. The dance numbers, prepared under direction of Miss Mary G Driscoll, were a feature. Miss Jessie Hughes was at the piano. George P. Chapman was in general charge of the production.

Howard M. Barber was in Boston Friday morning.

Mrs. Michael H. Scanlon left Friday morning for a visit in Providence.

The Westerly public schools closed Friday, until Monday, May 7, for the last week's vacation before the close of the school year, Wednesday, June 27.

A meeting of the members of the class of 1903, Westerly high school, the first class to be graduated, 25 years ago next June, from the high school building, corner of Broad and Granite streets, will be held next Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 at the office of the C. A. Morgan, Inc., Miss Jessie M. Surber, secretary. At that time the members of the class will determine whether an observance of the anniversary will be held.

One steamship company is offering its passengers a treatment for seasickness said to be effective in a large percentage of cases.

NOANK

The fire company pinochle team, under the watchful eyes of Capt. Jack Ellis left the fire station the other night for Mechanics hall to play the Mechanics pinochle stars. Capt. Jack Bentley was waiting for his rivals with open arms. This was the third match in the series. A crowd of 125 was present. The Mechanics wanted to win the third match but the smoke eaters said: "Don't let them pass!" At No. 1 table were Treasurer Fred Fitzpatrick and Billie Mustanic for the fire company and for the Mechanics Heavy Oil Beebe and Jolly Scaplan. The fire fighters knew a thing about the indoor game and had the lodgemen on the run. The score was Fitzpatrick-Mustanic 5,000 Beebe-Scaplan 3390. Then came table No. 2, a hard luck place for Bentley's crew, Big Shot R. Brocky and Billie Ballestrini were for the laddermen and on the left were Never Fail A. Fish and Keen Eye L. Brown for the Mechanics. The lodgemen were holding everything but 1,000 aces until the last two hands when Big Shot Brocky caught a punt on the 25-yard line, thrown by his pal Balestrini and it was a 400 hand that put the hooks into the sharps of the losing lodgemen. The score read R. Brocky-Balestrini 5,000, Brown-Fish 4,280. No. 3 table found the best players of Capt. Jack Ellis. Ladderman Blacksmith Deveau and Push 'Em Up Rollin Rathbun. The crowd was saying "come on Mechanics! Make it a real battle against those two players! Always think before you start! A man is down but never out! The hosemen had it easy all the way; if one did not have good cards his mate had them while 9-Spot Palmer and Cautious Hewitt could not get going. When the smoke cleared the firemen were ahead Rathbun-Deveau 5,000, Palmer-Hewitt 3,310. Table No. 4 was the last one on the list. It was not much use for the Mechanics to win, for the smoke eaters had too big a lead. But Sure Eddie Morgan and Capt. Jack Bentley for the Mechanics with Live Wire Schoonmaker and Blackfish A. Brocky for the fire fighters made this the best match of the evening, close all the way until the last hand. Bentley and Morgan were beaten. Score, Schoonmaker-A. Brocky 5,000, Morgan-Bentley 4,550. It was a sad story for the Mechanic players, final score for the third match, Firemen 20,000, Mechanics 15,800. The firemen won all three games and the Mechanics have not won a game. Coffee and sandwiches of ham and peanut butter were the lunch. A sword dance was done by Halstead Brown, the piano being played by Miss Nellie Dunn There will be another match next week at the fire house.

Dale Aldrich of Staten Island, is home for a short visit.

The largest crowd that has assembled in the Baptist church in several years was out Thursday night to hear Ex-Congressman William D. Upshaw of Georgia deliver an address on "America's Great Battle". For two hours he spoke about America. The Boy Scouts, Troop No. 19, had special seats There was a special orchestra. The different orders were represented Rev. E E. Weise made a short prayer to open the program.

Angus MacLeod, who died at his home on Prospect Hill Thursday morning was born at Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, but had lived in this village over 40 years. He was a ship carpenter by trade. About six months ago he fell 15 feet at the shipyard and broke his collarbone and several ribs. He seemed on the road to recovery when a bad turn came a few days ago Mr. McLeod was a quiet man, always with his family. He had seen many boats slide into the water at the shipyard, where he learned his trade. There are not many old ship carpenters left in the village; they are thinning out each year. Surviving Mr. McLeod is his wife, six daughters, Mrs John McNeil, New London, Mrs. Edward Pinkerman and Mrs. Fred Bannigan of Mystic, Mrs. Albert Hanlon of Medway, Mass., Mrs. E. J. Welch, Mystic, Mrs. Jerry Sullivan of Noank, and by three sons, John of New Haven, Hugh of Providence and Angus of New Haven. He leaves 25 grandchildren and three great grand children

BAD CRITICISMS

There who have read the criticisms by the premier and provincial secretary of Canada concerning the sending of serum to Canada in an effort to save the life of Floyd Bennett, and the employment of the services of Colonel Lindbergh to make the flight cannot fail to feel that they display an oversensitive spirit.

It is ridiculous to think that there was any thought in this country of trying to belittle Canada through any such mission. That time would certainly have warranted no resort to any such feeling even if it had been thought of. The Canadian authorities should give consideration to the fact that there was a life at stake, that there were those in this country who were willing to go to great lengths in order to assist Bennett, quite the same as Bennett had risked his own life in order to aid the crew of the Bremen, stranded on Greenly island.

The whole thought of those concerned in the carrying of the serum to Quebec was to see that everything possible was done that might save Bennett's life. If it was to be of any help it had to be gotten to Quebec at the earliest possible moment. Even then it was not sent without being requested by the specialist who was in charge of the very sick flier. That it was a serum that could easily have been obtained in adequate quantities in Canada, and that it was the kind which did not meet the requirements in that particular case doesn't overcome the fact that the specialist wanted the serum he sought and which he would have used had the type of pneumonia demanded it.

Certainly no one had any intention of trying to belittle Canadian hospitals, laboratories or doctors. With a man at the point of death it was no time for resorting to any publicity stunt. There was unlimited confidence that Lindbergh could make the flight and get through if anyone could. He was willing to go and he went. That was all there was to it. No one contemplated referring to the shortcomings of Canada, because under the circumstances it doesn't appear that there were any. Noo one in this country is going to criticize the doctor who asked to have the serum sent even though it wasn't used and didn't accomplish what it was hoped it might. There might have been ground for such had every effort, such as was made, not been attempted.

THE OSGOOD GIFTS

The people of this community have had an opportunity to note the same expression of public concern in the provisions of the will of Mrs. H. H. Osgood as prevailed during the lives of Mrs. Osgood and her husband.

In the distribution of many thousand dollars to organizations in which they were interested for a considerable period of time, provision has been made for the continuation of not only the yearly contributions which have been made but for the carrying on of these various activities in keeping with those plans and polices which have been viewed with approval.

The manner in which this large estate has been distributed shows a keen regard for the community in which it was amassed. Numerous were the benefactions received during the lifetime of the deceased. Some of these are going to stand as permanent memorials, but memorials which the people of the community have had opportunity to enjoy and use during many years of the lifetime of Mrs. Osgood, while the additional bequests provide not only for the maintenance and continuation of such institutions but include a substantial nucleus for the establishment of another—a permanent museum for the D. A. R., a matter in which Mrs. Osgood shows she was keenly interested.

The generosity of the public gifts, as well as the personal remembrances, reflect the character of those who have gone. They meant much to Norwich during their lives and their bequests will mean much in the carrying on of those things in which they were much concerned. It is a fine example of public giving.

THE HUMAN TOLL

At Conesville, O., this week five persons were killed and another may be fatally injured, as the result of their automobile being struck by an express train. It happened at Conesville on Thursday. It happened somewhere else the day before. It occurred elsewhere yesterday and some other place will experience such a waste of human life today.

This unnecessary killing of men women and children is a daily occurrence. There are thousands killed in the country every year and yet it doesn't seem to be possible to put a check upon it.

We throw up our hands in horror at the lives which are sacrificed on the battlefield, but we don't seem to pay very much attention to the gradual crushing out of the many lives on peaceful highways. That is, such attention as we do pay to it falls of accomplishment.

We cannot overlook the fact that one of the chief responsibilities for this state of affairs lies at the feet of those who are vitally concerned. In most of the cases where automobiles, or other vehicles, are struck at grade crossings such crashes might have been avoided. It can't be done by disregarding the known danger. It cannot be prevented by being careless. It cannot be avoided by leaving the entire responsibility to somebody else. Warnings galore are ignored in spite of the frightful price that is so often exacted.

Last year in this state there were 356 persons killed in automobile accidents and there were 26,832 accidents in which 11,979 persons were injured. These did not all occur at railroad crossings but the same element which entered into a great many of them was probably the same as that which characterizes crossing accidents. It is a deplorable fact in connection with these conditions, especially those at the crossings, that the means of avoiding them lie completely within the power of those who become the victims.

THE KILLING OF DR. SEYMOUR

With keen interest will there be watched the results of the investigations that are being made to determine the circumstances surrounding the killing of Dr. W. F. Seymour, the superintendent of the Presbyterian hospital in China, who was shot through the heart.

His death occurred in a district where the nationalist forces were advancing, but little known as to how and why it happened. Whether it will ever be possible in view of the prevailing upheaval, to get a true version of the affair is uncertain. That everything possible will be done can be taken for granted.

Because of the advance on Peking warning has been given to all Americans to get out of the localities which lie in the line of operations. While conditions may be none too good at the best, they are most certainly worse during such strife.

Missionaries have done much for China. Most of them got to the coast when the previous advance on Peking was undertaken, but went back as the struggle subsided. Renewal of the fighting has resulted in efforts to have them protect themselves by retirement at this time. Dr. Seymour could probably have done this but it is to be inferred that he preferred to remain at his post as a matter of duty, since the head of a hospital might be expected to be much needed under such conditions.

Whether his death was caused by a northerner or by one of the advancing force is as yet unknown. At such a time too little thought is apt to be given to such services as foreigners may be trying to render to China, and it is known that there are those who have nothing but ill feeling toward all foreigners. On the other hand there are those in the Chinese armies who have respect for nothing. They are out to kill and loot regardless of those involved.

Acts of violence against Americans call for as complete an understanding of the circumstances as possible. The hazards which surrounded his remaining at his post were probably thoroughly recognized by Dr. Seymour. His death appears to have been another illustration of the dog biting the hand that was trying to help him.

PREVENTING THE FLOODS

Only a few weeks ago Vermont was experiencing another period of high water. The spring floods always create excitement and uneasiness.

Down in the southern states of Alabama, Georgia and Florida much worse flood conditions have been prevailing. Large losses have been sustained and it will be a long time before the states can be gotten back to their previous conditon. It is not improbable that the southern situation may require assistance from outside their borders.

All of this, combined with flood conditions which have prevailed elsewhere and the great flood in the Mississippi valley last year, emphasizes the need that must be given to the controlling of floods even in sections where the problem is not as great as in the Mississippi valley.

Heavy rains and the resulting high water in the rivers is bound to raise havoc unless it can be controlled. Just what the method of control will be may depend to a large extent upon the conditions which prevail in the respective regions, but in view of what has been done with reservoirs and the protection which has been gained in localities where such basins have been established, it would seem as if such a method ought to get a due amount of consideration.

Such a method is of much importance for the purpose of holding back the heavy rainfall, and thus retarding the effect upon the different streams, but it is also of conspicuous value in connection with the storage of water for hydro-electric and other purposes. The demand for cheaper power makes it impossible to overlook the benefits from such a storage proposition.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: It is well to be thrifty with daylight as with other things.

Of course the trout figure it out that every cold rainy day means just that much added life insurance.

Bear in mind that it is tonight that you should set your clock ahead an hour for daylight saving which becomes effective Sunday morning.

Now that Miss Sears has walked from Newport to Boston in 17 hours are we to expect so many emulations that the autos will be crowded off the highways?

Thousands of Bulgarians have been rendered homeless by an earthquake. The same could have been done easily by war and somehow we harbor the opinion that the Bulgarians would have preferred war.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Too much cannot be said in regard to the daring conduct of some boys on the street, and the careless attitude of others. The terrible fact that the precious life of some little one is now and then taken does not seem to warn others. There are those whose conduct seems to invite disaster. There are others whose lives are sacrificed because of their indifference and listlessness. We are told that "self preservation is the first law of nature," but it does not seem to hold good as to the attitude of many boys toward the approaching automobile. Let it be admitted that there are many street accidents for which no one is directly responsible, but in the majority of cases somebody is. It is enough to make one's blood run cold to see how near some boys try to get to moving machines and just escape! The wonder is that more are not injured. The real danger hours are when the schools close.

There is much to be said in favor of Gov. Trumbull's proclamation for setting apart May the first as "Child Welfare day." While there is so much being done in these days for the child from the outside it is strange that the child is not doing more for himself. With the vast amount of attention that he now receives compared with what he received several decades ago, has there been a corresponding increase in self-reliance and general ability to look after himself? Too much cannot be said in giving to little children of unfortunate home environment such a favorable start in life that will be likely to develop better men and women. Let us thank God that the pictures Dickens gives us of poor little children of his day in England will not be thus treated by the public authorities anywhere in this country. We cannot do too much for these unfortunates.

The word "equalization" is much used in attempts to adjust inequalities in racial affairs, and in finance. Does it not also apply to weather conditions? We have passed through that period of time that is technically known as "winter." And it has been of that variety that justifies the term "mild." If any of our annual sojourners in Florida during the winter period questions this let them ask the icemen. But what have we had since the spring months began? How many people have let their furnaces out for the season? If so they have done everything in their power to invite pneumonia. There has been scarcely a morning since April came in when the mercury has been more than two degrees above freezing at six o'clock. Is not this a wise provision of nature to emphasize the importance of "equalization?" Do we realize the importance of holding these great elemental forces in equilibrium? Back of the weather even intelligence rules.

In one of the popular readers used in the public schools years ago was one selection entitled "Tact Versus Talent." It began in a very bold way: "Talent is something, Tact is everything." If one gives this matter a little thoughtful attention, he will be led to see that this statement is no exaggeration. What does talent in any direction really amount to if, back of it there is not good judgment that regulates its expression? What has kept so many of the world's real geniuses from reaching quite the summit of their careers? It has been in so many instances their utter tactlessness. How many a politician, not over stocked with mental capital, has risen to a high position of influence because he knew how to do and say the right thing at the right time and in the right place! Tact will help a man to wiggle out of quagmires where mere talent would leave him stuck in the mud.

There is nothing in this world so dumb that it cannot teach us some lesson. It would be hard to find any form of animal life more unintelligent than an oyster. Still from this low grade of animal life we may be taught how to act in the case of emergency. The oyster does not always exhibit much discretion in what it eats (and there are some human beings in Asia and Africa besides mollusks who are in the same boat). What does the oyster do when there is interior trouble? He does not have access to soda mints or lacto-pepsin. For instance, if a grain of sand irritates the tender mebrane of his stomach, the poor bivalve feels mean all over, and life looks dark and gloomy. Now the oyster does not wake up all the fish by howling with pain, but with eminent good sense begins to build a pearl around that grain of sand, and the pearl doesn't hurt him. What a world this would be if we should transform our little irritations into avenues of triumph, by building pearls around them!

At present it is beyond our wildest fancy how largely our knowledge of natural phenomena is to be increased by aviation. Soon after the railroad was established in this country, a man went from York, Penn., to Pittsburgh—and it took him a week, because connections were so poor, and some of the way had to be traveled by canal boat and stage coach. It was such a hazardous undertaking that he made his will before he started. Last week his grandson with wife and two children started from York, Penn., in a biplane and in seven hours they were in Atlanta, Ga. One interesting feature of the trip was seeing three sunrises the same morning. It was made possible in this way: by going up 6,000 feet he saw the first sunrise; then by dropping 4,000 feet he saw the second one, and coming very near the surface he saw the third.

Everynow and then a new person bobs up into print as a great social reformer. He looks at the present condition of things as headed straight to destruction. Upton Sinclair is one of them, and, at least, it has doubtless helped to sell his books. However bad this world may be—and there is no very loud call for it to be worse—still as a cold matter of fact this world is not going to be saved by pessimism. Let it be admitted that the social order is not all that is desirable, or what it ought to be, still it is better than it ever has been. It must be that Mr. Sinclair knows something of the condition of human society in Europe during the middle ages. There is no "jungle" today that can compare with that which reigned in the old world for ten centuries. It may be a good stroke of business to pat bolshevism on the back, and other social nightmares, because it makes a sale for sensational novels. The only panacea for human society was laid down in Judea 2,000 years ago.

Exactly 170 years ago today a man was born—perhaps not so illustrious as some others who have occupied the American presidency—but who has a law, or doctrine, named in his honor, whose moral influence has been unbounded. I refer, of course, to the Monroe doctrine. It may be in some instances that the policy of the United States government with Latin America has not been of the wisest, due to a lack of right racial understanding. But what would in all human probability be the status of the counties of Latin America if the United States had not held the greed of foreigners in check by the Monroe doctrine? It has been like a big brother protecting a smaller one from unjust attack. The exploitation of Asia and Africa by the stronger nations of Europe seems to justify this big stick of the United States.

DR. PENNIMAN'S HOBBIES ARE BOOKS, BASEBALL AND CATS.

In a recent interview with Dr. James H. Penniman of Philadelphia, a graduate of the Free Academy, Mary Dixon Thayer writes as follows in the Philadelphia Bulletin:

We were sitting in the "front parlor" of the house at 4236 Sansom St., which is the home of James Hosmer Penniman, Litt.D., brother of Josiah Penniman, provost of the University of Pennsylvania, and of the provost himself when he is not occupying his official mansion.

The Penniman brothers, who have never married, are the last of their clan which traces back to Sir William Pennyman Bart. of Ormesby, Yorkshire, a royalist upholder of King Charles, who furnished his sovereign two regiments with which to help suppress the "detestable rebellion."

Sir William at one time commanded Oxford, and his crest may still be seen upon the walls of Christ Church Cathedral there. The American branch of the family settled near Concord, Mass., and a large painting of their old farm house there hangs in the parlor of the Penniman house in Philadelphia.

Dr. James Penniman donated the Maria Hosmer Penniman Library of Education (25,000 volumes) to the University of Pennsylvania. He gave a library of the same size to Brown university, the alma mater of his great-great, and great-great-great-grandfather, and his largest donation, 80,000 volumes, to the Sterling library at Yale, of which he is himself a graduate.

One might suppose that the giver of such truly pricely gifts would be housed like a prince himself, but Dr. Penniman's modest home on Sansom street differs not a whit from the other houses in the row.

He opens the door himself, a medium sized, scholarly faced gentleman, with horn-rimmed spectacles and a solemn smile, and you are taken into the parlor, where the "Velvet Imp," Dr. Penniman's large black cat, is sleeping peacefully upon the most comfortable chair. The walls of this little room are lined with family portraits, and the top of the upright piano in the corner and the mantlepiece over the open fireplace are full of pictures of places and people.

For James Penniman is not the sort of "bookish person" who never strays from home. He has been to Europe 20 times, and visited every country in the world except Greece and Holland, bringing back with him from his travels knick-knacks, antiques, books and pictures which are scattered in profusion in every available corner of the house. But it is not the parlor which reveals the inner soul of this little dwelling.

Parlor Must Be Tidy

"You see," said Dr. Penniman with a smile, "when my brother is here he insists that the parlor, at least, be kept neat. I can't strew my books and papers around in the parlor until he goes to Europe. But when he goes off in the summer you should see the parlor then! Down in the cellar I have ten tons of coal and 5,000 books, and dozens of apple boxes filled with notes on George Washington.

"I have enough material for 50 books about George Washington" (Dr. Penniman possesses the largest private collection of Washington's "bibliothica" in existence, and is known as the foremost authority on Washington in the country), "and when my brother isn't here I bring up my apple boxes filled with data and dump them in the middle of the parlor floor.

"Do you know," said Dr. Penniman, "you are being extremely honored by the Velet Imp? He hasn't stirred since you came in, but when William Gillette who is a great lover of cats, comes to see me, the Imp always runs away.

"Cats," said Dr. Penniman, "are fascinating animals. They have a language, too. My housekeeper, Mary, can talk to the Velvet Imp and he understands every word she says. Anhow do you account for the homing instinct of cats unless they can talk to one another? Pigeons can get some perspective as they fly high in the air, but if you take a cat and carry him far from home and put him down, he will unerringly find his way back through back alleys.

"However," said Dr. Penniman, "I suppose you didn't come here to discuss cats? Let us go into the dining room and I will try to find for you some of my Incunabula."

It seems that Incunabula is a term known to all book collectors. It refers to the blue ribbon stock of the books of the world, volumes dating back to the 14th century or earlier, all books that are listed with the names of present and past owners. The dining room in this little house with the exception of the parlor which has to be kept 'neat', is crammed to overflowing with books. Books are piled between the legs of the dining room table, books are stuffed into the cupboards behind the chinaware, books ooze out of the walls and tumble into the pantry. Only the ceiling is devoid of books.

A Rare Old Tome

"This one," said Dr. Penniman, lovingly turning over the parchment pages "is a sermon of Saint Bernard of Clavoy, and was printed in 1841. It is the only copy of this edition in America. Look at that lettering! Isn't it beautiful? They made their color blue by grinding up real lapus-lazuli, you know.

"And this," he said, opening another huge tome, "was printed in 1494, two years after the discovery of America.

See how plain the type is! And do you observe that in old books such as these there is no title page? The date, name, and author's name always appears in a postscript at the end of the volume.

"But here, on the title page of this book, some old monk or scribe has written a few sentences in French. Translated, they read 'There are few books more rare than this. The author is an Englishman named Alexander, nick-named the Charcoal Man. It is a satire against abuses in the Clergy. Herein is found much that can be found in no other ancient work.'

"But for an Incunabula," said Dr. Penniman, "that isn't so very old. Here's an old Arabic book, which, like all Arabic works, must be read from the back forwards. I cannot read Arabic very well," confessed Dr. Penniman, who has attended more than 5,000 baseball games carrying in his pockets French, German, Latin and Greek volumes with which to regale himself between innings.

"The Arabs have 200 words which mean camel." Said Dr. Penniman, "so you can see it might be a hard language to learn. There is a fascinating subject!" cried Dr. Penniman. "Style! Literary style! I hope one day to write a book on that. Why is it that what one man writes is beautiful and what another man writes is trash? One cannot explain it by saying it is a matter of thought entirely. It is also, very largely, a matter of the choice of words. The right word to express the right thought. That is style. Clearness of thought and veracity of expression. It is a fascinating subject. Take Stevenson. I have everything he ever wrote. And even when what he describes is trivial, he describes it so well that it becomes important. Or Goldsmith. 'The cat,' he wrote, 'is a voluptuous animal.' How expressive! Nobody had ever said that before.

Room Jammed With Books

We went into a little room at the back of the house which is Dr. James Penniman's study. Books, more books. They were stacked knee deep along the walls and literally every chair as well as several tables were piled with them.

"The only trouble with this neighborhood," said Dr. Penniman, "is that it is very noisy and I never can work when there is noise. I am extremely fond of children but it is unfortunate that children always seem to be playing in the street when I am trying to write. Sometimes I give it up and ask them all into the house and we play games. I know a number of conundrums to which no one has ever guessed the answers and the children like to try. If they succeed, they get a book as a prize.

But there is a conundrum nobody has ever guessed and I have never told a living soul the answer and won't tell it either, till it is guessed correctly or a burning candle is held to the soles of my feet. Here it is:

"Twice nine of us are eight of us and six of us are three; and five of us are four of us, whatever can we be? If this is not enough of us and you should wish for more, then eight of us are five of us and nine of us are four.

"Think it over!" said Dr. Penniman. "Are you interested," he inquired, "in puzzles? Puzzles are one of my hobbies. I know the great Martinka in London, from whom you can buy, for $300, the can from which Houdini used to emerge so 'miraculously.' I've picked up all sorts of puzzles in various parts of the world."

"The only person I've ever met who could solve them all is Slim Harris," said Dr. Penniman, "the six-foot-six pitcher on the Red Sox team who was formerly with the Athletics. Remember his name. You'll hear a lot about him in 1928. He's going to be one of the greatest pitchers we ever had. Well, I never got a puzzle Slim couldn't do. He's done all of these.

"Are you interested," he said, "in hospitals? I make it a point to visit all the hospitals in Philadelphia from time to time and I have many friends among the patients. They like to do puzzles.

"The other day," said Dr. Penniman, "I went to see a friend of mine in a private room at a hospital but when I walked into the room it was crowded with little boys. Well, I like little boys, so I sat down and we did puzzles together for quite a while. Just as I was leaving I said, 'By the way, what's the matter with you boys?' and they all shouted together, 'Why, we've got measles!'

"Have you ever considered," he said, "that a different taste in jokes is a great cause of unhappiness? That remark was made by George Eliot, and it is very profound. Think of the relation between teacher and child. If the child does something he thinks funny, and the teacher doesn't think it funny, the consequences are very sad.

Washington's Secret

"Are you interested in George Washington?" said Dr. Penniman. "Have you any idea why no two pictures of him resemble one another? Take the Peale and the Stuart portraits. You wouldn't know them for the same man. And it's that way with all the hundreds of pictures of Washington. He was, you know, pock-marked, but only one picture shows him thus. It is a picture in the Masonic lodge in Alexandria, Va.

"Rupert Hughes claims Washington had a scar on one side of his face due to an ulcerated tooth. The scar was certainly there, but I'd like to know Rupert Hughes' authority for attributing it to a tooth. Only one Stuart portrait shows the left side of Washington's face, and in that the scar is very evident. I know certain things about Washington which shall never be known by anyone else," said Dr. Penniman. "One woman knew them, but she is dead now.

"There are advantages," he said, "in being a bachelor. One is never obliged to tell one's secrets. One can leave one's books and papers around without fear of their being tidied up, and one can rise, as I do, every morning at six, write until lunch, and go to a ball game or a book-market all afternoon. Good-day!"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Town and City Privileges

Mr. Editor: In reply to your devoted "City and Town Property Holder," who on April 24th was making a number of inquiries in regard to why the town taxpayers did not want to be annexed to the city, and that at the same time were glad to enjoy all the city privileges except sewers, I wish to state if he would take time to investigate the matter a little further he would find that quite a few privileges are missing such as collecting garbage, roads oiled—let alone being paved.

While in regard to laying a tax for city water and electric light, he will also find out that, town tax payers are now paying a two mill tax on all their water bills, and that the electric current that continues from the city line to Taftville, although it has not a tax attached to it is by no means a liability to the gas and electric department.

Furthermore in his inquiries was: Why do city property owners go out of the city limits to acquire new lands? Well the city of Norwich may need to get away from the hoop skirts and long dress days but they will also be obliged to reduce their prices in their property rents or may find that over estimated property and rents are within the reach of the upper class, but is no asset to any city.

I hope that this City and Town Property Owner in reversing his views, may find that Norwich is not so badly effected by the tax imposed on the surrounding towns and that many a property owner may also find that he is his own enemy by the amount of rent demanded.

Stories That Recall Others

Substitute Spelling

A second grade teacher was inspecting some sentences made by her pupils. On one boy's desk she read this sentence: "He took his hat offph."

Very much surprised at the novel spelling, she inquired of the boy how he happened to spell "off" in that way. "Well," was the reply, "I ran out of f's."

Fathers Fail as Cooks

Given: Forty-five average men each with a quarter pound of beef and two potatoes to cook over an open fire without utensils.

Result: Forty five quarter pounds of beef and 90 potatoes consigned to the garbage pile.

Conclusion: Father may be cleverer than his Boy Scout son, but he doesn't show it.

The men were trying to be as good Scouts as their sons and the cooking test is one of the requirements of a second class Scout.

YOUR HEALTH

A SANE VIEW OF THE INSANE.

By Alexander S. Hershfield, M. D., Chicago, Illinois State Psychopathic Institute.

That a mental disorder is still a "blot on the scutcheon" in the eyes of the laity is because ignorance of facts creates a deep prejudice which still regards mental disease as a stigma or something mysterious. This is one great factor that militates against the proper care of the mentally sick in the home.

The indifference to the value of mental hygiene and the only too willing desire to shift responsibility to the state institutions are more or less responsible for what people still believe about insanity. To believe that insanity is either a disgrace or a mysterious affliction that cannot be prevented or cured, or that insane asylums are dreadful places and that to go to one means never to come out is absurd.

Mental disease should command the same respect, sympathy, and understanding as pneumonia, heart disease, or any other physical illness. Insanity includes a group of the more severe types of mental disease. They need nearly medical treatment just as heart disease does, and no one need be ashamed of this sickness. There are many different kinds of mental disease; some mild, some serious. The symptoms also are different.

Mental disease develops gradually and displays many signs in advance. Danger signals of an approaching breakdown can usually be recognized, and if these are given prompt medical attention, the threatened mental disease can often be prevented.

Shocks or losses may precipitate a mental disorder, but in such cases the real possibilities of the illness have been present for some time, but unrecognized.

The problem of mental disease in the main is the problem of the human mind working under difficulties; working for the right adjustment. The great objective is to make the proper adjustment between the patient and himself and the patient and his environment. Education as to mental disease is one of the greatest aids to a better understanding of how to keep well mentally.

If an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, the prevention of mental disease by happy home life, pleasant surroundings, the right work, right play and, above all, a sound body is worth any number of state hospitals with all the excellent work being done there. Mental health is a matter of adjustment and a mind properly adjusted can avoid many ills that beset it. In a word the best guarantee of mental health is to find happiness in every day life.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

NORTHEASTERN DOORWAY

"Udine, Italy, and the surrounding region where severe earthquake shocks occurred recently, lies on the direct road between the Italian plains and Vienna, and has therefore been the scene of more than one important military conflict," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Udine lies north of the head of the Adriatic sea and just south of the Carnic Alps which now form the boundary between this portion of Italy and Austria. Fifty miles to the east lies the present boundary between Italy and Yugoslavia.

"A few miles north of Udine various torrents issue from the Carnic Alps through deep gorges. The flat beds of these streams are strewn with great boulders and smaller shingle, through which, in the dry season, tiny rills trickle. But the region is one of the wettest in Europe, and when the torrents are in flood the boulders and shingle and carried ever farther down stream, creating wide gravel-covered beds in the plains. It was in the deep valley of one of these torrents, the Tagliamento, that the earthquakes caused greatest loss, in the village of Tolmezzo.

"These mountain gorges have been shaken before, and resulting landslides have in some cases changed the courses of the streams.

"South of the mountains and gorges lie the plains of Friuli, a rich agricultural section in which Udine is situated. Many times these faithful lowlands have attracted invaders from the north.

"North and northeast of Udine are a number of easy passes through the Carnic Alps, physical features which have placed Udine on the road both of traders and armies. In the early days of the Christian era, Aquileia, on the Adriatic coast, to the south, was the port of entry for eastern goods. These moved to northern Europe through Udine and the Plocken Pass. When Venice replaced Aquileia, the main stream of goods moved farther west through the Brenner Pass; but the Udine route was still used as a secondary way. The Romans had used the route at an earlier date, and some of the old Roman paving still covers a part of the road leading to the Plocken.

"The strong Venetian influences which played about Udine are to be seen in its architecture. Some of the structures are copies of buildings erected in Venice, and throughout Udine exterior walls of dwellings and public buildings are covered with frescoes in the Venetian style. The sky line of Udine is dominated by the old palace of the Patriarchs of Aquileia, church dignitaries who maintained temporal rule over this part of Italy until Udine was taken by Venice in the fifteenth century. Napoleon occupied the old palace in 1807; and a few miles to the southwest, at Campo Formio, he signed the treaty giving Venice to Austria.

"Through Udine runs the main railway from Venice and northeastern Italy to Vienna. As soon as Italy entered the World war this region became the most active of the Austro-Italian war fronts. Trenches and the remains of fortifications can plainly be seen in the Felta Valley and on the mountain slopes east of Tolmezzo, where the railway climbs toward the watershed.

"General headquarters for the eastern Italian armies was maintained in Udine until the Austrians broke through in October, 1917. Udine and all the Friulian plains then fell into Austrian hands. A year later the fighting surged over Udine again when, in the operation known as the battle of Vittorio Veneto, the Italians pushed the Austrians from Italian territory. The old Austro-Italian border, which lay only 18 miles east of Udine before the World war, has been replaced by he Jugoslavian border, three times as far away."

CONSTIPATION PREYS ON HEALTH

You can overcome it with ALL-BRAN

If you are troubled with constipation, read Mrs. Hogan's letter below. It came to us unsolicited—a message of relief to every sufferer:

February 12, 1927

"I want to tell you how much good your ALL-BRAN has done me. It surely can't be beat for constipation. I have tried every kind of medicine and never in my whole life have been relieved until one of my neighbors told me to try bran. So I bought a box and read about your ALL-BRAN and thought I would see what it would do—and it surely did help me. I will never be without it in the house again."
Mrs. Joseph Hogan,
1215 Clay St., Topeka, Kansas.

Constipation is almost universal. The cause of more than forty diseases. Dizziness, aching backs, circled eyes, bad complexions, are only a few of its symptoms.

Guard against it. Start tomorrow eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Guaranteed. Doctors recommend it.

A healthful cereal. Serve ALL-BRAN with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Sprinkle it into soups. Use it in cooking. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

DENIED THAT HE WAS THE RICHEST MAN IN THE WORLD

NEW YORK, April 27—(AP)—Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian capitalist and industrialist, who is visiting America to inspect electric and rayon industries, today swept away with a gesture most of the impressions of him which have spread over the country.

With modest depreciation, he denied that he was "the richest man in the world," or even in Europe, disclaimed all title to the designation of "financial potentate,' and insisted that he was in no manner a "mystery man."

Mr. Loewenstein ruined beyond repair an interesting story that he had arrived in America with a fleet of motor cars and aeroplanes to bear himself and his party about the country. The party, he reduced to the members of his family and one or two others.

Reports that he had come to America to arrange to assume control of a $300,000,000 Latin American utility, the Brazilian Traction, Light & Power company, he dismissed as a pure myth, and he waved aside rumors that he planned to purchase any amount of securities in American public utilities

Reuben S. Bartlett

Reuben S. Bartlett, 78, president of the Dime Savings bank, died this (Saturday) morning at 1.30 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Lamb at East Great Plain. Mr Bartlett contracted pneumonia about a week ago and had been in a serious condition for the last few days.

Mr. Bartlett was born in Killingly Dec. 11, 1849, the son of Walter T. and Mary Covill Bartlett. After attending a commercial college in Providence he was with the Whitestone Manufacturing company in Killingly for seven years before coming to Norwich in 1880. He engaged in the retail grocery business here for 15 years. Entering public life he was elected a member of the common council, serving two years, and the following two years as alderman. In 1892 he was elected superintendent of the water department, holding this position for nine years. In 1905 he was elected a state senator from this district. He was appointed to the water board in 1920 and was elected president of the board.

REUBEN S. BARTLETT

He was elected president of the Dime Savings bank in March 1925 after having been vice president for 15 years and a director for 32 years. It has been during his presidency that the new bank building on Broadway has been built and occupied.

He was a 32nd degree Mason, having been raised in Danielson lodge, and was one of the incorporators of the Masonic Temple corporation of this city, representing Connecticut Consistory. He was also at one time president of the Retail Grocers association for three years and vice-president of the New England Waterworks association for two years.

In Killingly on Sept. 22, 1870, he was married to Emerancy M. Fairmon, who died in this city, Dec. 23, 1927. He leaves one daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Lamb, of East Great Plain, and three grandsons, Arthur R. Lamb, Frank B. Lamb, and Robert W. Bartlett, all of Norwich. A son, Frank Bartlett, died in Meriden about four years ago.

Mr. Bartlett was a business man who held the confidence and inspired the respect of all with whom he was associated, a public spirited citizen, a loyal friend, and a faithful and loving husband and father. His death is a loss to the community in which he made his home for so many years and the sympathy of many will be extended to his bereaved family.

Angus A. McLeod

Mr. McLeod was born at Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, March 17, 1860. He came to Noank when a young man and had lived there for 40 years. By occupation he was a ship carpenter.

Surviving Mr. McLeod are his wife, Mrs. Margaret McLeod; six daughters, Mrs. John McNeil, of New London, Mrs. Edward Binkman, of Mystic, Mrs. Fred Bannigan, of Mystic, Mrs. Albert Hanlon, of Midway, Mass., Mrs. E. J. Welch, of Mystic, and Mrs. Jeremiah Sullivan, of Noank, and three sons, John McLeod, of New Haven, Hugh McLeod, of Providence, and Angus A. McLeod, Jr., of New Haven. Twenty-five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren also survive.

FUNERALS

Miss Mary McCabe

Many relatives and friends were present at the funeral of Miss Mary McCabe, held Friday morning at 9 o'clock at the parlors of Undertakers Shea & Burke. At 9:30 o'clock there was a requiem mass at St. Patrick's church, Rev. John J. Reilly celebrant. Miss Beatrice Gadbois presided at the organ and Roderick F. Sullivan sang De Profundis at the offertory and Jesus Lover of My Soul as the waiting hymn. Chopin's Funeral March was played at the processional and at the recessional Miss Gadbois played Lead, Kindly Light.

The bearers were John Congdon, Frank O'Rourke, Laurence E. Millea and John P. Corcoran and burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery. Rt. Rev. Mgr. Michael H. May conducted the committal service. There were many beautiful floral tributes, including a form from the employes of the Reid & Hughes Co.

Mrs. Alfred C. Jahn

At 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Alfred C. Jahn was held at her home, No. 27 Hedge avenue, with many relatives and friends present. Rev. Joseph F. Cobb, of South Windham, conducted the funeral service and the burial was in the Hamilton Avenue cemetery. Rev. Mr. Cobb conducted the committal service. The bearers were Frank Monroe, Howard Peckham, George Lynch and Charles Barnes. Mourners were present from New Haven, New York and New Jersey and there was a wealth of beautiful floral tributes. Undertakers Cummings & Ring had charge of the funeral arrangements.

SHORE LINE RECEIVER GIVEN PERMISSION TO SELL SOME LAND

At the superior court short calendar session in New London Friday morning with Judge John Richards Booth presiding permission was given for Robert W. Perkins, receiver of the Shore Line Electric Railway Co., to sell land situated in Old Lyme and East Lyme for $350, and a strip in Norwich for $75, was granted in the cases of the United States Trust Co. of New York, et al., executors, against the railway company, and the Old Colony Trust Co. against the same defendant.

A motion to open default in the case of Pezella et al. against Connor, administrator, appeal from probate, was granted.

Judgment in the sum of $6,093.50 in favor of Peter Selias of Norwich against Abe Davidson of Norwich was given. There were two counts, one for $1,500.50 and the other for $4,593.

Decision Reserved

Judge Booth took the papers and reserved decision in the motions for approval of receiver's account and allowance in the case of Franklin B. Warner against the Davis-Warner Arms Corp., all of this city.

Attorney Gilman, representing the receiver, stated that the latter has on hand about $300 and that there are creditors in the amount of about $8,000. He said that 60 per cent of the New York stock-holders did not want a dissolution of the corporation. He wanted to know what to do with the $300.

Judge Booth smiled and said that it might be divided among the creditors. Attorney Gilman said that it would pay them on the basis of about one-third of one per cent.

Motion to Amend Granted

A motion to amend the complaint was granted the plaintiff in the case of Ferry against Neiderman, and others.

Allowed to Intervene

A motion of Caroline L. Bill to intervene as party defendant in the matter of Thomas H. Troland, and others against the Connecticut Farm Association, Inc., was granted as was another motion to open the judgment.

The judgment was opened to allow new evidence to be taken into the records and Attorney L. E. Jacobs, counsel for the receiver gave this testimony. As soon as an order is prepared, the receiver will again be confirmed.

Fails to Plead, Defaults

Default for failure to plead was entered in the case of Slosberg against Chinigo, et al., all of this city.

Judgment Entered

Judgment as per stipulation on file was entered in the case of Max Rabinovitch against Lena Rabinovitch, and her minor children, Samuel D., Anna B. and Helen C. Rabinovitch. Lena Rabinovitch was made guardian ad litem for her children. The property involved will be sold, the case being a partition of property matter.

Alimony pendente lite in the amount of $15 a week was ordered in the divorce case of Anna Lydia Kerr against David J. Kerr, both of this city. Allowance for counsel fees in the sum of $50 was granted.

Alimony pendente lite in the amount of $15 a week was granted in favor of Elizabeth G McPartland in her divorce suit against Hugh D. McPartland.

Sale of Garde Theater

The sale of the Garde theater property in New London, to Walter S. Garde was approved by Judge Booth.

Atty. Frank L. McGuire, counsel for the New Haven bank, N. B. A., trustee under the second mortgage bonds, which brought the action, stated that a deficiency judgment would be required due to the fact that the indebtedness now is $140,374.67. He was given a deficiency judgment for the difference.

Atty. C. Hadlai Hull was the receiver pendente lite, and, according to Atty. McGuire, collected in revenues the sum of $17,212 and now has on hand $10,321.92.

From this sum he asked and it was so ordered, that taxes due the city of New London in the amount of $8,741.43 be paid; that Thomas D Dillon, the committee of sale be given $600 compensation with expenses of $104; $25 each to three appraisers, and the remainder, $821.49, to be given the receiver and counsel for the receiver as compensation.

Foreclosed for $1,861

Judgment of foreclosure in the amount of $1,861.22 was entered against Harry Kingsley, and others, in favor of E. S. Vining, of California, whose mortgage has been assigned to Ira S Avery, who is in reality the plaintiff now. May 21 was set for the limitation of time and sale of the property which is located at Sound View and valued at $2,500.

Priority In Schwartz Claims

Whether or not Receiver P. LeRoy Harwood of the P. Schwartz Co., who now holds about $10,000, shall pay as a preferred claim, taxes due the city of New London in the sum of $4,802.31, for the levies of 1925 and 1926, will be decided by Judge Booth, who received a brief from Attorney Cohen, representing the United States government, which claims priority with its claim for about $23,000. Director of Law Thomas E. Troland is allowed two weeks to file his brief.

The report of the committee of sale in the case of the National Bank of Commerce, against the P. Schwartz Co. and others, Thomas C. Dillon, who sold the property in Bank street for $92,000 to Frank L. McGuire, representing the bank, was approved. Supplemental judgments giving Mr. Dillon $200 compensation and the three appraisers $25 each was also entered.

MEMORIAL TREES PLANTED AT THE BISHOP SCHOOL

Classmates at the Bishop school of Dorothy and Allen Whitaker who were drowned with their parents and three brothers and sisters, January 23rd last when the machine their father, Herbert Whitaker, was driving, went off Preston bridge, held a memorial service for them at the school, Friday afternoon. An impressive programme of exercises was conducted in connection with the planting of two Colorado blue spruce trees on the school lawn.

The programme, conducted under the direction of the school teachers, was held on the school lawn. It opened at 1.30 o'clock with remarks by Robert Haffner, fourth grade student and a classmate of Allen Whitaker, as follows:

Last September when we came to school, Allen and Dorothy were among the friends we met. We were all very unhappy when we heard of their very sad accident. We want to remember them always. That is why we are out here this afternoon to plant these two trees in their memory. The tree on the right side we will plant is in memory of Allen and the tree on the left in Dorothy's memory. We are proud to have been their schoolmates and friends. We should also be proud to care for and protect these trees and watch them grow, so that they may stand for years as a reminder of our friendship.

The two trees, one in memory of Allen and the other in memory of Dorothy, were planted by the children's classmates on the lawn. The children participating the planting were Walter Christensen, Frank Cosentino, Sophie Lapuc and Doris Racicot of the second grade and Ethel Brantigan, Dorothy Beese, Curtis Dickerman, and Emil Barber of the fourth grade. As the sod was being placed around the trees the children of the sixth and seventh grades sang "Planting". The exercises were brought to a close by the recitation by Howard Randall of a selection from a poem written by Miss Mazie Cruthers.

The trees were purchased by funds raised through contributions of the school children. Later bronze plates bearing the names of Dorothy and Allen Whitaker will be placed under or on the trees.

ARRANGE FOR ADVERTISING NORWICH PROGRESS EXPOSITION

A meeting of the advertising committee of the Norwich Progress Exposition of which F. Russell Smith is chairman was held Friday morning at which plans were discussed for advertising the exposition in the territory all around Norwich by means of airplane, trolley car boards, window displays, special newspaper edition and a special issue of 5,000 of the Norwich Progress magazine. Tickets which will give free admission to the exposition will be distributed by airplane, permission for this having been secured from Mr. Knox, aviation commissioner of the state, as the tickets are to contain matters boosting aviation.

Five more booths at the exposition have been leased, leaving only seven out of the 75 not taken. The latest leased are three to the Thompson Chevrolet agency and two to the Studebaker agency of T. N. M. Labbron. The contract for erecting the booths has been awarded to P. F. Sweeney for $1,500 and the electric wiring contract to the Norwich Electric company.

Fine String of Trout

A fine creel of trout, 17 in all, was brought home Friday afternoon by Carl Krauss of Lisbon and John Saroski of Taftville, after a morning's fishing in one of the streams hereabouts. The majority of the string were of good size, several of which came close to weighing a pound each

PRIZE AWARDS MADE FOR MYTHOLOGY NOTE BOOKS

Prize awards have just been announced by the Norwich Art association to the children of the sixth grades in the Norwich public schools among which the association annually does extension work, giving a series of talks upon Greek mythology and then taking the children into the Greek sculpture section of Slater museum.

The childsen keep note books upon what they hear and see, illustrating these with pictures presented by the association, and keeping a list of the Greek mythology books in the Otis library.

This year, through personal contributions of members of the art association the number of books on this subject in the Otis library has been greatly increased. It is felt that if the children can always find in the library books which are related to this subject in which they take great interest they will return to get other books and so more good literature.

This year the first prize went to Lois Allen of the Falls school, who wrote upon the story of Theseus; second prize to Selma Sohn of the Elizabeth street school, who wrote the story of Phaeton, arranging it in drama form.

The other prizes went to Blanche Bruno, Occum school; Robert Henderson Throop, Laurel Hill school; Laura Paul, Taftville school; Charles Ryan, Town Street school; Edith Asranovitch, Broad Street school; Virginia L. Ward, West Town Street school; Hyman Goldberg Elizabeth Street school. (Miss Becki's room); Mischa Mandel, Elizabeth Street school. (Miss Mullen's room); Jennie Baranowski, Bishop school.

N. F. A. CLASHES WITH CHAPMAN TECH AT NEW LONDON FIELD TODAY

The Academy invades Morgan park, in New London, this afternoon for a game with Chapman Tech, its second league game and its fourth start of the season. It is also the first away from home for the state champions this year.

Johnny Greene To Pitch

Johnny Greene, local speedball artist, is slated to serve them up for the Wildcats against a Tech team that has many veterans but which last year proved little or no bother for the Academy. Tech opens her league season and plays her second game of the year today. Her first tilt was with Deep River three weeks ago, which she lost by 10 to 0 and ever since she has had no actual clash.

Seagraves, who in 1927 was pounded for 16 hits but only four runs at N. London has been named to pitch for the Whalers while this team has been the whalers while this team has been rather generally shifted about for today's game.

The Academy had a rather lengthy practice session Friday afternoon in final preparation for the game. The squad had plenty of the usual hitting practice while the last half hour or so was devoted to infield drill.

Marks At Third

In an effort to install even greater hitting power into the club and also to get a third baseman who can cover more ground Jackie Marks was used to a great extent Friday by Coach Brigham and in all probability will start today. Jackie is hitting them in fine style while yesterday he looked good at the hot corner.

Marks is a letterman from 1926 when he patrolled right field. The rest of the team today is expected to be the same, which is Mace Goldblatt behind the bat, Johnny Greene on the mound, Alec Arico at first, Buck LaCroix at second and Chubby Gibbs in the shortfield with Billy Tirrell in left, Lloyd Jarvis in center and Hal Cummings in the right pasture.

HAGEN DOWN 14 HOLES IN FIRST 36 WITH COMPSTON

MOOR PARK, Eng., April 27—(AP)—Two phenomenal rounds of golf over these Hertfordshire hills today gave Archie Compston, British professional, a fourteen hole lead over Walter Hagen, ace of American money chasers, in the first half of their 72 hole match for 750 pounds sterling.

Never before in his brilliant career has the debonaire Hagen ever been so far behind at the midway point in a match as when the big blonde giant of an Englishman, hair tousled and jaw tight, dropped his final putt for a sensational final round of 66 this afternoon. That round only a stroke above the course record of 65 set by Sandy Herd from the short tees, just about clinched the whole match for Compston, when added to an equally brilliant 67 in the morning round. Hagen shot rounds of 72 and 76.

"I never was in such a predicament before," Hagen said as he strolled away from the final green. "I have Archie the best I had today, but don't talk about my golf. Just look at this. Bobby Jones says he is always satisfied with fours, but I shot even fours for the first six holes homeward this afternoon and lost five of them."

Compston Brilliant

Compston played the best 36 holes of golf ever seen at Moor park. Lashing his tremendous drives from the back tees, outdriving the long-shooting Hagen at practically every hole, the husky Englishman drilled 13 birdies into his card, twice holing out the short third and tenth reaches in birdie two's. Compston's score on the final nine holes was 30 and he won seven of them. The match went 13 holes at the start before Hagen notched a single win on his card.

However, it wasn't the Englishman's booming clouts alone that trounced Hagen so soundly. Compston was deadly accurate on the greens and around them. While he missed only one putt of less than four feet, he holed out with one long tingling roller on at least a dozen greens.

Hagen's bronzed face was wreathed in smiles as he shook Compston's hand at the 36th green and left for London to get some much needed rest before tomorrow's rounds. The American champion, aside from putting practice on the carpet of his hotel room, played but one practice round all winter in preparation for this match. He fought all day for scores that wouldn't come, but he never turned a single glossy hair when he didn't get them.

PAUL WANER, IDLE, GOES INTO FIRST PLACE

(By the Associated Press)

Paul Waner of the Pirates slipped into the lead of the "Big Six" yesterday without swinging a bat, as Rogers Hornsby was obliging enough to get no hits in four appearances at Boston. Paul's .373 became top figure when the Rajah's average fell to .344, fifteen points below Ty Cobb, who took second place though idle in Washington.

Kiki Cuyler of the Cubs broke his batting slump by getting one single as the Cubs were defeated by the Cardinals, 4 to 2, in Chicago. Cuyler failed to advance.

The standing:

P. Waner	12	52	10	19	.373
Cobb	9	39	5	14	.359
Hornsby	8	32	8	11	.344
Ruth	11	37	12	9	.243
Hellmann	17	64	8	14	.219
Cuyler	16	59	4	11	.186

BRUCE FLOWERS WINS OVER LOAYZA BY T. K. O.

DETROIT, April 27—(AP)—Bruce Flowers, lightweight champion contender, scored a technical knockout over Stanislaus Loayza, Chilean boxer in the second round of a ten round bout here tonight.

The New Rochelle, N. Y., Negro after being on the verge of a knockout himself in the opening round, cast all science to the winds and slugged toe to toe with the rugged Chilean who crumpled to the floor twice and his seconds tossed the towel into the ring as token of defeat.

Clarence Rosen of Detroit and Joe Ryder of Brooklyn, bantam weights, slugged eight rounds to a draw in the semi-windup.

BOSTON OUTDOOR BOXING SEASON OPENS ON MAY 18

BOSTON, April 27—(AP)—Boston will have an outdoor boxing season of 20 weeks, Eddie Mack, matchmaker for the Argonne A. A., said today when he announced that Bruce Flowers and "Honeyboy" Finnegan had been matched to meet in the first summer show at Braves field on May 18.

The promoter said he had appointed Frank "Doc" Bagley his New York representative and that the latter would scour the New York field for talent for the Braves field shows.

ELLIOTT LIMITS BRAVES TO THREE HITS AS ROBINS WIN

BOSTON, April 27—(AP)—Jim Elliott, the mountainous Brooklyn southpaw, held the Boston Braves to three singles in the second game of the series here today while the Robins pounded Greenfield and Morrison for ten safeties to win, 9 to 0. Rogers Hornsby and Dick Burrus were back in the game for the Braves.

Three of the Brooklyn hits were home runs into the inviting left field bleachers by Henline, Riconda and Bissonette. These drives accounted for six of Brooklyn's nine runs. Hendrick got a triple.

The victory put Brooklyn into first place, eleven points ahead of the Giants who encountered rain in Philadelphia. Score:

Cards 4; Cubs 5

CHICAGO, April 27—(AP)—A two run rally in the seventh helped the St. Louis Cardinals to a 4 to 2 victory over the Cubs in their opening game of the series here today.

The Cards also pushed across another run in the eighth on High's triple and Hafey's sacrifice fly. Haines was hit for nine safeties but all were singles. He fanned seven Cubs, and walked one. Toporcer and High were on first and third for St. Louis in place of Bottomley and Holm, who were out with a slight attack of influenza. Score:

INDIANS BACK IN FIRST PLACE, BEATING TIGERS

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 27—(AP)—George Uhle, won his fourth straight game of the season and the Indians climbed back into first place when they defeated Detroit 10 to 6 today. The Tigers started out with a savage attack in the first inning, collecting five runs but then Uhle tightened up and held them scoreless until the ninth when Hargrave got a home run. Meanwhile the Indians pounded three Tiger pitchers for sixteen hits. Score:

KEARNS FILES $500,000 SUIT AGAINST DEMPSEY

NEW YORK, April 27—(AP)—On the basis of a ruling handed down in his recent losing suit against Jack Dempsey, Jack Kearns, former manager of the one time heavyweight champion, today entered suit in state supreme court against the ex-titleholder for $500,000.

The jury which decided against Kearns in his suit for $701,000 against Dempsey Wednesday night determined, however, that a valid contract existed between the fighter and his manager from August of 1923 until broken by mutual agreement at Los Angeles in July of 1925.

Kearns new action covers "all possible damages" during that period. Twenty days are allowed Kearns for the filing of a bill of complaint setting forth particulars of the suit. Dempsey will be allowed a similar period in which to answer.

Attorneys for Kearns filed notice of appeal following failure of the recent suit in United States district court. Another action of similar nature is pending in Philadelphia.

ST. PATRICK'S TAKES FOURTH STRAIGHT GAME

St. Patrick's won its fourth consecutive game Thursday afternoon at Mohegan park, West Town street falling victim by a score of 21 to 2. Hamlit pitched a nice game for the winners while his teammates hammered two pitchers from the box.

Matthews caught for the winners while the batteries for the losers were Buck Stanton, Richards and Capigi pitching with Meehan catching.

'BOUT SPORTS

The high school baseball season is now about getting underway in full strength. However, in the two weeks or less of play there have been quite a few surprising or rather outstanding events. Probably the greatest has been the pitching of Walter Linder, of Deep River high but another came Thursday when Hillhouse trounced Crosby 15 to 4 at Waterbury. Whether this means that Hillhouse is to again have a strong team or whether she just met Crosby while the latter had an off day is not known. One thing is pretty certain—that Crosby is not rated as a poor team so that probably the first supposition about Hillhouse will have to be correct.

VIC HANSON RETURNED TO YANKS BY WATERBURY CLUB

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 27—(AP)—Vic Hanson, former star athlete at Syracuse university, was returned to the New York Yankees by the management of the Waterbury Eastern league club tonight. The Brasscos are here for a series with the local team. Hanson was sent to Waterbury on option by Yankees, but was not satisfied with his assignment. Manager Dick Rudolph of the Waterbury club decided to return the former Syracuse star to the New York club.

FIGHT INTEREST RISES IN COLLEGES

BOSTON, April 27—(AP)—Amateur boxing in this country will be dominated by college boxers when 1932 rolls around and the next Olympic tryouts are held, according to the prediction of both Hamilton "Spike" Webb and Billy Glover, the boxing coaches at the Naval academy and West Point. Webb is also coach of the American Olympic boxing team.

These two coaches agreed that boxing would soon become a major sport in most of the big colleges. Both men brought boxing teams here for the recent three day A. A. U. championship tournament and during their stay they investigated the collegiate boxing situation.

Strong in West

Webb said he found that middle west and western colleges were especially strong for boxing and that while the eastern institutions were not going in for the sport on a large scale at present, there would be a wholesome development within the next two years.

Glover reported that a prominent college official in the western conference had informed him that he would visit the military academy soon to study the West Point method of conducting the sport so that the same system could be put in vogue in the conference.

Both men have seen boxing grow in ten years to one of the best in the ranks of the service institutions.

"There is a wild scramble at Annapolis every Saturday night to see the boxing," Webb said. "The bouts are held just before the Navy hop and the girls who attend the dances drop in to the bouts and have the time of their lives. The young ladies love the sport because there is a personal contact and even if their sweethearts have to take them to the hop with a black eye, they get a kick out of it. They regard the injured battler as a hero, because he is a he-man and can defend himself."

Boxers Better Nowadays

Glover believes that amateur boxers of today are better than those in his ring days.

"The boys nowadays are better conditioned, smarter and stronger and they get a bigger kick out of a victory for a medal than we did fighting for money," he said.

"When the college boxers get into the sport on a bigger scale they will enter the national championships and score heavily because they will have the advantage of better coaching, better conditioning methods and a better environment. College men like the idea of being national and Olympic champions and already there is assurances that the intercollegiate boxers who compete in the next Olympic tryout will dominate the sport."

Glover is firmly convinced that Gene Tunney has done more to popularize boxing in the colleges than any other man.

Boys Like Tunney

"The college boys like Tunney as a man and as a fighter," the West Point coach said. "They admire him for his fine sportsmanship and gentlemanly ways and I think he will help boxing even more if he continues to lecture on the sport to the college boys.

"Jack Dempsey is also admired by college men but if he was starting his ring career today, instead of ending it, he would be admired even more. He would have the polish that Tunney has and that would help him with the students. Nevertheless, Dempsey always will be remembered by college boxers as a real fighter who did not lack anything."

RHODE ISLAND A. A. U. REFUSES TO LET NEWPORT TEAM PERFORM AT DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 27—About 500 boxing fans assembled in the state armory here tonight were grievously disappointed at the forced and unexpected calling off of all the events and the cancelling of the show an hour after the time scheduled for it to start. With the men carded to box assembled about him in the ring as evidence of the good faith of the local club, Former Boxing Commissioner Frank Murphy of Hartford explained in detail how the fiasco came about, through no fault of anyone engaged in the promotion of the bouts in this state. He stated that the Newport boxing team had come to Connecticut without a traveling permit and that the Rhode Island authorities had refused, after long negotiations over the telephone in which Commissioner John Slattery of Hartford, who was here, took part, to grant them permission to go on with their bouts in Danielson and threatened their suspension if they disobeyed.

The show here was sanctioned by the A. A. U. and there had been assurance earlier in the week that there would be absolutely no question about the Newport team being allowed to box in Connecticut. Tonight's unfortunate blocking of the show came as a stunning blow to the local promoters for they felt they had all arrangements completed beyond possibility of failure. Rather than go on with other bouts on the card in which the Newport boxers were not to figure and give half a show Mr. Murphy announced on behalf of the club that all could go to the box office and get their admission money back, which opportunity very few overlooked. The audience was an enthusiastic one, while waiting for the show to start, but on the whole took the unusual disappointment with good grace. Many eastern Connecticut towns were represented by fans. Among the boxers here and ready to go on was Big Boy Burlap.

HALF MILE WINS MERRICK HANDICAP AT JAMAICA

NEW YORK, April 27—(AP)—Closing with a terrific rush in the last half mile, Brown Flash, Frederick Johnson's four year old gelding, captured the Merrick handicap, $1,200 added, feature attraction at Jamaica today. The son of Brown Prince II-Melinite broke out at the start and at one time was 20 lengths back of the leader. Once on his stride, however, Brown Flash raced past the field and won going away. Washakie took the place with Dangerous third. The mile and 70 yards were covered in 1:44 1-5.

The Lexington track's feature, the Leland hotel purse for three year olds went to the Everglade stable's Dodgson. A length behind came J. N. Camden's Canerra with Old Fellow third.

The Salubria stable's English three year old Strolling Player, a 4 to 5 favorite, captured the fifth race at Havre De Grace—the Chesapeake preliminary purse, worth $2,000. E. B. McLean's Toro was a close second and Solace, a Seagram stable entry, third.

COLGATE RALLIES TO BEAT WESLEYAN

MIDDLETOWN, April 27—(AP)—Colgate rallied in the eighth and ninth innings to take a close game from Wesleyan university here today, by a score of 5 to 4. Joe Dodona, Maroon pitcher, won his own game in the last inning when he hit a single scoring Jones from second. Score by innings:

PENN TRACK CARNIVAL OPENS AMID COLD RAIN

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia, April 27—(AP)—In a drab, rain soaked setting that spoiled record breaking prospects, the advance guard of a host of approximately 3,200 college and school athletes opened the thirty-fourth annual Pennsylvania relay carnival today in a combination of Olympic tests and relay championships.

Before the chilling rain settled into a steady affair and turned the track into a mass of mud, three carnival records, all in the decathlon, fell under the impetus of attack by a field of 18 all around stars from the east, south and middle west.

Tony Plansky, rugged former Georgetown star now representing the Saint Alphonsus A. A. of Boston, broke one of these marks, in the shot put, and led the decathlon brigade after the completion of the first day's grist of five events. "Whitey" Lloyd, of the Naval academy, and like Plansky a gridiron star, shattered the other two decathlon marks when he set the pace in the 100 and 400 meter races.

With the event assuming the importance of an Olympic tryout as well as carrying with it the intercollegiate championship, Plansky, who has won the title twice before, displayed consistently good form to run up a total of 3,778.7105 points for the five events. He will enter the concluding five tests tomorrow, however, with the comparatively slim margin of approximately 16 points over his nearest rival, Kenneth Doherty of Detroit, who won the broad jump and did well enough in the other events to score 3762.501 points.

McIntosh Drops Out

The decathlon field lost only one of its starters, Jack McIntosh, of Moromuth (Ill.) college after he had strained a tendon winning the high jump. At lease seven of the remaining 17 appear to be in the running tomorrow although Plansky, with some of his favorite events on the list, will be the favorite to stay in front.

Of the remaining contenders, Tom Churchill, huskey Oklahoma star, in third place with 3611.235 points, and Barney Berlinger, the Pennsylvania freshman sensation, in fourth position with 3573.4925 points, are real threats. Virgil Elliott, the versatile parson from Bethany college and Ray Moncus, University of Mexico, occupy fifth and sixth places. Whitey Lloyd, the navy ace, is seventh in spite of his two sprint triumphs.

Major university relay honors were divided by Penn State college and New York university while Harold Keith, rugged Oklahoma runner, furnished an individual sensation by winning the 3,000 meter steeplechase, an Olympic test, as an added starter.

Keith was the star of an Oklahoma relay team that, through an error, failed to report for the distance medley championship race, so he went out on short notice to win the steeplechase, while a team mate, Carson, finished fourth in the gruelling struggle over hurdles and water jumps.

Edwards Leads N. Y. U. In Relay Wins

Phil Edwards, Negro runner, was the hero of New York university's twin relay victories. Forty-five minutes after carrying the baton across the line first in the middle Atlantic states one mile championship and beating his Rutgers rival Edwards made up enough lost ground to give his team another triumph in the intercollegiate distance medley championship. The Negro ran the anchor half mile in less than two minutes on the sloppy track to beat Chicago's team in a battle for first place.

Penn State's sprinters tied with Pennsylvania for the quarter mile relay championship, each quartet being clocked in 42 3-5 seconds for the race, which was decided on time after being run in heats. The feature of this race was the final dash of the heat in which Dick Bartholomew, Penn State star, stood off the challenge of Geo. Simpson, flashy Ohio State sprinter. Ohio State finished fourth in the final standing, behind Dartmouth.

ACADEMY TRACKSTERS WIN OPENER

JIM KELLY
Star N. F. A. Performer in Victory in Opening Meet

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 27—Norwich Free Academy's track team made a rout of its opening track meet with Chapman Tech here this afternoon at Morgan park, winning by a score of 67 to 32. Kelly of Norwich with 16 points, was the individual star.

N. F. A. Strong

Led by the flashy performances of Jim Kelly, Ingalls, Taylor, Greene and Tirrell the Red and White had little trouble in taking an early lead and holding it. N. F. A. was minus two strong performers, Clint Robinson and Joe Viau.

Norwich took seven first places, these being divided between Kelly, Tirrell, Taylor and Greene, the three former getting two apiece. Jim Kelly, last season's basketball captain copped the 100 yard dash on 11 2-5 seconds and also captured the 220 while Taylor was first in the Javelin throw and the 220 hurdles. Billy Tirrell tossed the shot put 40 feet, 5 inches to easily get that event, while he also won the 440 yard run. Johnny Greene won the running broad jump.

Penn Gets Stiff Opposition

Roy Penn, Tech distance star won the half mile and mile runs but was hard pressed in both of his favorite events. Ingalls, running his first race in scholastic competition gave him a stiff battle the entire distance and finished but four yards behind. Ungerer captured the pole vault for the locals.

A fairly large-sized crowd saw the meet.

Summaries:

100 yard dash—Kelly (N); Greene (N); Time 11 2-5.

Half mile run—Penn (C); Ingalls (N). Time 2 mi., 12 sec.

220 yd. hurdles—Taylor (N); Berkman (N); Diachyshyn (N). Time 32 seconds.

Pole Vault—Ungerer (C); Werth and Vulgares (both Norwich) tied for second. Height 9 feet, 2 inches.

220 yard dash—Kelly (N); Harvey (N); Greene (N). Time 25 2-5 seconds.

One mile run—Penn (C); Senkow (C); Peck (N). Time 5 minutes, 4 3-5 seconds.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

RHYMED PRESIDENTS

Listen my children, while one at a time
Four twenty-nine presidents greet you in rhyme!
First comes George Washington, followed by Adams.
Martha and Abbie their dutiful madams.
Jefferson third he who gave the nation
The Democratic Party and Great Declaration.
Now meet James Madison, then James Monroe,
Who both sponsored doctrines you all ought to know.
John Quincy Adams took over the reins.
Then Hickory Jackson of Indian campaigns.
Martin Van Buren is next in our view;
Then Harrison, hero of Tippecanoe.
Tyler and Texas are words you should bracket,
While Polk is tied up with the Mexican racket.
Old Rough-and-Ready, that warrior fierce,
Zachary Taylor, then Fillmore, then Pierce.
After Buchanan—the friend of the slave.
Abraham Lincoln, great, simple and brave!
Then Andrew Johnson, who won little fame,
Followed by Grant, who earned much of the same.
But Hayes, enter Garfield, who shortly was killed.
When the President's office by Arthur was filled.
After Cleveland came Harrison, Cleveland again.
Next William McKinley, who also was slain.
Now Roosevelt, Rough Rider, Progressive and tourist;
Then the screen projects Taft, who is famed as a jurist.
The World War and Wilson will live through the years,
For they sympolize sacrifice, sorrow and tears.
Warren Harding, who strove for the normal again,
Was stricken and died on his World Court campaign.
Today we have Coolidge, of pioneer Yanks,
A thrifty American—let us give thanks!

A. W. Neall.

DAISY DEANE

'Twas down in the meadows the violets were blooming,
And the spring-time grass was fresh and green,
And the birds by the brooklet their sweet songs were singing,
When I first met my darling daisy Deane.

Chorus:

None knew thee but to love thee, thou dear of my heart,
Oh thy memory is ever fresh and green.
Tho' the sweet buds may wither and fond hearts be broken,
Still I'll love thee my darling Daisy Deane.

Her eyes soft and tender, the violets outvieing,
And a fairer form was never seen,
With her brown silken tresses, her cheeks like the roses,
There was none like my darling Daisy Deane.

Chorus: None knew thee but to love thee, etc.

The bright flowers have faded, the young grass has fallen,
And a dark cloud hovers o'er the scene.
For the death angel took her and left me in sorrow,
for my lost one, my darling Daisy Deane.

Chorus: None knew thee but to love the, etc.

O, down in the meadows I still love to wander,
Where the young grass grew so fresh and green,
But the bright golden vision of spring-time have faded
With the flowers, and my darling Daisy Deane.

Sent by Mrs. J. P. Bishop, Springfield.

GIVE ME.

Give me a good digestion, Lord,
And also something to digest;
Give me a healthy body, Lord,
And sense to keep it at its best.

Give me a healthy mind, good Lord,
To keep the pure and good in sight,
Which, seeing sin is not appalled,
But finds the way to set it right.

Give me a mind that is not bored
That does not whimper, whine or sigh,
Don't let me worry over much
About this funny thing called I.

Give me a sense of humor, Lord,
Give me the grace to see a joke;
To get some happiness in life
And pass it on to other folk.

ENJOYS NONESOPRETTY'S LETTER

Dear Social Corner Friends: It has been a long time since I have written to the Social Corner, but when there's a full page, there's no need of my writing. Last week there were not many writers.

I was interested in the piece about Moosup Baptist church written by Nonesopretty. I am wondering who she is. I, too, used to go to Moosup Baptist church in the long ago when that grand old man, Rev. J. P. Brown, used to preach. I lived next door to him so used to go to evening meetings with him. Then when Judge Waldo Tillinghast used to be Sunday school superintendent I used to go to the Social Corner concerts, when I lived in Plainfield. We used to think the concerts were very nice in those days, always a big crowd there. These are two grand men gone home to their reward, which must be great. This morning I saw in The Bulletin that Morris Ferth had gone to the great unknown and left a daughter, Mrs. James N. Sterry. I am wondering if she is a Social Cornerite. I think we have some by the name of Sterry. If she is I would like to meet her. We bought our Singer sewing machine of Morris Ferth more than 40 years ago and it is in good condition now. The Social Corner is a great place to meet old friends. At our last meeting of Club No. 1 I met Luke Robins I forgot her name, but hope to meet her again and have my book with me. I was on my way to a bridge whist, so when my friend came I had to go. Was sorry not to see more of her. I want to tell her I had her name mixed mixed with Lucille Bennett.

Beth C: Hope you are better and will be home soon at South Coventry O. D.: Hope to see you when you come up this way again.

Lady Lou: Many thanks for the post card, will write a letter soon. Hope to meet you some time this summer.

E. L. M.: Mind you, up to our anniversary, only one more meeting in the hall, then picnic, which is all right if you can only get there, but some too far away.

I hope to meet all my good friends in Social Corner soon when the summer. Why don't I meet Bonnibell somewhere. I think she must be a backslider. Do let me hear from you.

Wishing all my friends in Social Corner health and happiness

COLD BACKWARD SPRING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters:

Will the winter never be over,
Will the springtime never come?
The buttercups and daisies are safe
In their snug little home.

It does not give anyone much ambition to start housecleaning. As we cannot let the fires out have to keep close to them these chilly evenings. But nevertheless spring will eventually come, summer will soon follow in its train and then for the picnics. I did not attend but one last summer, that at Aunty No. 1; and felt well repaid as we always have a delightful time meeting so many old friends and making new ones that have joined during the winter and the fruit and flowers are an inspiration to one. Each one takes his leave with a huge bouquet. What a beautiful description Blanchina and Practical gave us of their trip south. It does make one want to go there more than ever.

Necia and I have talked of going some time. Trust our expectation may come true.

Ethelyn: I received a seed catalogue this spring and on the front cover page was a large field of daisies and underneath it, read: King Edward daisies. When I read your story in Saturday's paper. I said now I know where all the daisies came from.

Aries: Sorry I overlooked your birthday but will make you twice as happy when I see you. Hope it will be at our next meeting. Love and best wishes to all and my sympathy to those who sorrow.

All through the winter the wind has blown
With many a sound that would sink and swell,
Barren of beauty was field and world,
But I never knew how hungry of heart
I have been, till I saw the glory of gold
The daffodills did to earth impart.

TRUE BLUE

THE SLEEPLESS BUG

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Some time since there was a poem sent in by Shirley that ran something like this:

In these days of indigestion
It is oftentimes the question
As to what to eat and what to leave alone;
For each microbe and bacillus
Has a different way to kill us,
And in time they always claim us for their own.

The little bug will get you some day, I may have left out some portion of it, but I think you can get the drift of my subject.

I saw in the paper some time since that a man who should have lived many years longer died in New York last winter at the age of 55. The newspaper attributed his death to influenza, but Bruce Barton said "his private and unscientific opinion is that he had to die to get slept up."

"I am very tired," he once said to me. "I have been out to dinner, or the theatre, or the opera, every night for seven weeks. I am going to Florida for a rest."

I think, like Bruce Barton, there is this sleepless bug who keeps you awake thinking there is so much more pleasure out to the opera, big dinners, dances, etc., in place of getting rest.

I know of a certain lady, an irrepressible dowager, whose vitality and youthful enthusiasm is the wonder of the city she lives in.

To account for her phenomenal vivacity is one to the effect that on a day of each week she remained through the 24 hours in bed in a darkened room, shuttered from noise. Here she renewed her youth like the eagle.

Never having owned an eagle, I have often wondered just how it is this wise old bird "renews his youth." This letter of Bruce Barton's suggests anexplanation. He said: "In a note from Sir Robert Lucy, Lucy suggests an explanation. He said: "In a note once a month or so he cancels all engagements, leaves the telephone receiver off the hook and spends 24 hours in bed." These rounds of operas, clubs, etc., seem to worry the colored minister who was asked how his church was getting along. "Mighty poorly," he said. "It's dem societies that draw all de fatness an' de marrow out of de body an' bone of de church. My people can't do nothing without a society. We hab de 'Lincoln society' wid one sister to run it. De Sons and Daughters of Ham wid another sister to run it, or march in front of it, and de River Burial society what wears black hearts on dere sleeve. De men hab Masons, Odd Fellows, de 'Oklahoma Promised Land Pilgrims.' When dey has paid all de dues and tended all dem meetings dey have no time and yet no money for 'Mount Plagah church.' De ham has been gnawed off and fed to the speckled chickens, and deir ain't nothing left but de bone."

What the colored preacher failed to see or realize is that there are many different kinds of good people. A king of aces is just as good as an ace full of kings. It just looks different to us. The brothers and sisters interested in those societies would not be interested in the church and would not have attended, anyway. For where our home is where our heart is.

There are different kinds of bugs as Sister Shirley's poem quoted. Bugs of indigestion; there are sleepless bugs, deep to make up, and you know if that little bug creeps up behind you some day, then he'll send for his bug friends and all your earthly troubles ends.

Strawberry and Almond Cream: One pint thin cream, 3-4 cup blanched and shredded almonds, yolks 3 eggs, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-8 teaspoon sat, 1 1-2 tablespoons granulated gelatin, 1 cup heavy cream. Scald milk with almonds, beat yolks of eggs light, add sugar and salt; combine mixtures and cook in double boiler, stirring constantly until mixture thickens; add gelatin soaked in cold water; cool slightly, add vanilla, and cut in, fold in cream, beaten until stiff; remove from mold to serving dish and fill center with strawberry jelly beaten in with a fork until frothy and garnish with sugared strawberries.

Strawberry Jelly: Two tablespoons granulated sugar, 1 2-3 cups boiling water, 1 cup sugar, 1-2 cup cold water, 1-3 cup orange juice, 3 tablespoons lemon juice; soak gelatin in cold water, dissolved in boiling water; add sugar, strawberry juice, orange juice, lemon juice; strain, turn into mold and chill.

When almond and strawberry cream are chilled, you can remove this from mold to serving dish and cut the strawberry jelly in cubes and fill the center or you can beat the jelly in the cream; garnish with the sugared strawberries.

KITTY LOU.

TO SOFTEN THE HAIR

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Someone wished the recipe for a hair softener. I think this is the best one I know of: Use sesame oil, 1-2 pounds; lanolin, 1-2 ounce; paraffin oil, 1 ounce; melt all together and add five drops of oil of sandal.

Lip Salve: Oil of sweet almonds, 1-2 pound; yellow wax, 1 ounce; spermacetti, 1-2 ounce; oil of rose, 2 1-2 drops. Mix and heat in a double boiler.

Wrinkle Remover: Milk of almond, 1-2 pint; zinc of oxide, 1-2 ounce; precipitated chalk, 1-2 ounce; cologne spirits, 2 ounces; rose water, 2 ounces. Mix well. Shake before using.

Greaseless Massage Cream: Dissolve one ounce of potassium carbonate and 1-4 ounce of baking soda in 1-2 gallon of water by heating. Place in a double boiler and add two quarts glycerine, 12 ounces of stearic acid and heat for three hours, then take off the fire; add 3 drops oil of rose and beat until cold. You may color it pink by adding a few drops of carmen while beating.

Snowdrop Face Bleach: Dissolve 1 ounce of epsom salts in 1 pint of rose water; dissolve 1-2 ounce sulphate of zinc in 6 ounces of cider flower water and mix the two solutions. Then add one ounce of boracic acid. Let stand over night and filter. Apply to the face.

Strawberry Coupe: Half fill individual serving dishes, sherbert or champagne glasses with vanilla ice cream. The glasses must be chilled, the strawberries should have been on ice, and the whipped cream kept as cold as possible to insure the perfect success of a coupe. On top of ice cream place six strawberries which have been sugared.

Fruit Salad: Sections of two medium sized grapefruit, 1-2 box of sugared strawberries, 3 ripe bananas, 1-2 of a fresh pineapple, cut up or peaches. Mix, chill, drain and serve on lettuce leaves with the following dressing: 1 cup of thick cream whipped, 2 tablespoons of sugar (level), 2 tablespoons chili sauce, 2 tablespoons of orange juice, 1 tablespoon of lemon juice. Decorate with whole strawberries.

GUESS WHO?

GENTLE SPRING ELUSIVE.

Dear Social Corner Members and Editor: This is another dark, rainy and lonesome Sunday. I thought I must tell you all that I have two more blossoms on my sword palm lily this morning. I am wondering if it only blooms on this particular day of the week. For it has had two on it every Sunday for three weeks. Here it is Monday, too dark to write letters, so hope the editor will excuse mistakes. Have been reading about the recent snow storm north of us which doesn't look very much like gentle spring yet. However I am planning to get back to "the house by the side of the road" just around the corner and only hope it will be warm and the sun will shine, for me. My thoughts and sympathy go out to those who are left to mourn the death of a loved one that is laid to rest this afternoon. That is the way we go, "One by one."

Passing out of the shadow
Into Eternal Day,
Why do we call it dying
This sweet going away?
Each year the Father calleth
Some loved one to enter rest:
And the heart filled with anguish
Can but feel He knoweth best.

ANTICIPATING LOVELY SUMMER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: You may go to the east, go to the west; but some day you'll come, weary and sad, back where you started from. You'll find your happiness lies right under your eyes back in your own backyard.

That's true, all right, we all know; and now today I have spent greeting my old friends, my lilacs, lemon lilies, rhubarb, rose hedges, and anticipating a lovely summer among them. I tell my folks when I want to go a visiting I go out in the yard, for everyone that passes loves to stop and chat and admire the various plants, and I always cut a bouquet of roses in June for them. They are all welcome, for I know what it is to see a vast expanse of grassy lawns, and tired, weary, dusty children peering through the high fences at the sign "Keep Off the Grass!"

About like the idea of Armistice day; all honor on that day, especially if danger threatens of an invasion, and then—on passing a city residence a person told sign "Soldiers and Dogs Keep Off the Grass!"

How about it, Adam? Speak up, you're a good one to judge.

When they've pocketed the shilling and the uniform they're filling, they're Private Tommy Atkins just the same.

CLUB'S NO. 6's LAST DINNER

Dear Social Corner Editor: I felt I must write again or Club No. 6 would lose its reputation for serving good dinners. It should have been in my letter last week that delicious hot meat pies and macaroni and cheese were the main dishes at our dinner on April 17.

None-so-pretty: I am wondering which is going to get a surprise, you or Skipper?

Cosmos: We got Betty home safe from the hospital. Jerry and she were some glad to see each other. Kerry has not been down yet.

Yellow Jacket: Have you heard any high faultin conversation recently?

THE NIPMUCKS AND THEIR TRAIL

Social Corner Editor and Members: I want to thank the editor for the yellow slip and all the members who gave bouquets, and photographer for Easter remembrance.

Every one likes to be able to have the great and near-great at their family party. I wonder if Tatte knows that the governor of Massachusetts, Alvan T. Fuller, is a descendant of the pioneers that lived at Fullerstown. The old first Fuller house was or is there. A picture of it is in the Fuller genealogy.

Tradition says the Nipmuck path was from Wabaquassets (now Woodstock) to the seashore. A part of the way it was not far from the boundary line between Canterbury and Scotland. They went every spring and fall to salt water to eat clams and oysters and salt water fish.

History says the Narragansetts invited the Nipmucks to visit them and partake of a feast of shellfish.

The Nipmucks returned the civility by inviting their hosts to a banquet of lamprey eels. The shellfish was greatly relished by the Nipmucks but the eels for lack of dressing were distasteful to the Narragansetts. Glum looks and untasted food aroused the ire of the Nipmucks, taunts and retorts soon led to blows, a free fight followed, disastrous to the unarmed Narragansetts, and only two escaped to carry home the news of the massacre.

A body of warriors was at once sent to avenge their slaughtered tribesmen. Reaching Acquimuk, they found the Nipmucks entrenched east of the Quinebaug river. Unable to cross, they threw up embankments and for three days waged war across the stream. Many were slain on both sides but the Nipmucks were again triumphant and forced their assailants to retire leaving their dead.

The bodies of the slain Nipmucks were buried in deep pits over the battlefield which was ever after known as the Indian burying ground. Numerous bones and trinkets found on the spot give credibility to this legend which aged Indians delighted to relate to the first settlers of Killingly.

I have a very nice work basket with little pockets in it made by the Indians that have a reservation near Lantern Hill, several heavier baskets and a bushel basket that a man said one could almost carry water in, it is so closely woven. They are probably nearly a hundred years old.

I can remember when the Indians came with baskets in the spring. They wanted a bone, the woman said, for part pay, and a dress for herself and shirts for "my man." Mother seemed to know all about what they would want; the bone had to be well covered with meat. A basket would be a luxury these days, paying with such a bone. The dress was held up to the light to see there were no holes or tears in it, and the shirts; then she simply put on one of those grins we read so much about and said: "My man, he will have three shirts now, and he only had one on his back;" as mother had saved two for her. "Her man" was almost entirely covered with baskets strung on a clothesline. The line was back of his neck and his arms through it and baskets were over his head and down to near his feet. She only had a few—I think these were the last that came.

Some must have been reading detective stories to detect me as a brother so soon, but I would not be afraid to have them eat one of my

JOHNNY CAKES.

TIME FOR OTHER THINGS

Dear Editor and Sisters: Lucille Drew asked me to write on "How I get time for other things beside household duties." In the first place I do very little in the line of housework that isn't necessary. For over three years I washed every day of my life, rain or shine, hot or cold, for if I didn't the yard wouldn't have held the clothes. Someone told my mother once it was a shame I had to take in washings with all I had to do and she laughed. But now the children are older and can wear their underwear more than one day. I don't have to wash as often. As for ironing with the exception of our best Sunday-go-to meeting regalia the subject is taboo. By careful hanging on the line so there will be no ears and folding immediately on taking them in they are ironed aplenty. My family consists of four children, one, five and one half, twins, three and one half and the baby, two, my husband, myself, the dog, two cats and a setting hen (which will give us an increase of thirteen I hope). I have three older children who live with my mother. The children except the baby dress themselves with a bit of supervision to see that their feet go in the "leg sleeves" instead of the "arm sleeves" (as they often do) or to put on shoes and stockings when they have on winter underwear. You can't imagine what a blessing it will be when they can hop out of bed into overalls and they are done. When they have finished breakfast and are out to play and the oldest gone to school, I sit down with my toast, tea, and a paper or magazine to enjoy myself for a half hour. Time thrown away, perhaps, I don't know. I have four rooms. When the kiddies can go out doors I can pick up in the morning and it keeps fairly straight until just before supper I go there again. But, don't be shocked, when the children have to stay in there is no cleaning up done until night. They have to do something for amusement, so if they want to move all the chairs into the middle of the room for a truck or lumber wagon or cut papers over the floor, I go ahead and sew or work on a rug or whatever happens to be the hobby of the moment (right now it is hooked rugs) as perhaps some of the ladies with jersey dresses have heard. Around four we all work together and by the time dad gets home we are living again. Some times when he comes to lunch we are rather unsettled, but he is good natured any way. And again, don't be shocked, I only wash my dishes once a day. After supper the children have to be put to bed and after that I have no inclination to wash dishes. So I clear the table and stack the dishes, well, till some other time.

There are not many in the morning and I have to wash them after lunch anyway, so why not all of them. When the children are older I will probably have to do differently. And too, if I lived in town and went out in the afternoon I would rather do them some other time. As for bedrooms, as soon as the children are out of them in the morning I spread the covers over the foot, straighten the under sheet and pillows and they are done for the day. My floors are painted and I have very few rugs. What I have the children usually push up against the wall when they are playing. The house doesn't always look well when anyone comes in but I got over worrying about that long ago. I don't always live in heaps and piles, but no one ever comes when the work is done. I suppose you are wondering what I do with my family when I go to Social Corner, etc. Well I have a woman who works for me every Tuesday. She gets to my house about eight and I usually leave soon after and as she leaves about four I try to be home around that time. She does the washing, gets the dinner and in the afternoon bakes a cake or pie and washes the kitchen floor. The children think she's wonderful and I have her held up as an ideal the rest of the week. I hate to think what would happen if I couldn't get her any more. That is practically the only time I go any where in the day time and grange meeting the only place I go in the evening. Of course there is once in a while the exception to prove the rule. I live about five minutes walk from my mother and sometimes we don't see each other for a week, but we usually meet on Tuesdays. And now about the "extra things" I do. I make the boys waists and the baby's panty-dresses and do the mending. Crepe paper favors for three parties two dozen felt shoulder flowers at Christmas time are a few of them. I have finished two hooked rugs and have another started. Last fall we fixed over our kitchen and I shingled the outside. I read very few books because when I start one there is little done until it is finished. We have two daily papers and three weeklies, besides several farm papers my mother passes on to me that I manage to go through. I am especially interested in sport news. So on the whole it isn't a case of budgeting my time, but taking every minute as it comes, or times robbing Peter to pay Paul, yet the really necessary things usually get done and none the worse for the few minutes taken out now and then for the "extras" that help to make our lives worth while.

We had a very nice time at North Stonington and while the "girls" made a laughing stock of me I didn't get sore about it. What could you expect of the "flappers" of today. It goes to show after they are sure of anything they don't want it any more. All right Topsy, you just wait.

Nancy Peck: Sorry you are ill and couldn't meet with us.

Soma: Tell us of your pen name. Is it really spelled backwards.

Suzanna: I am making a rug of that boat pattern now, too.

RECIPES FROM BEERS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Through the courtesy of Milky Way I was able to attend the Social Corner meeting at Grange hall, North Stonington. We certainly had a fine time. The program was short and snappy and was much enjoyed by all.

Topsy: Hope you were not tired the next day, as you did have a lapful.

Sumac: Hope you were not black and blue from your fall.

Necia: When are you coming down? I was in hopes to have seen you at Mystic last week at Pomona meeting. I finished a braided rug two weeks ago. It took me five hours the last time around it.

Blandina: Hope that you and Mrs. S. will be home in time for the next meeting. Who says that spring is here? It's not any weather to work in the garden yet, although I see some of my hardy seeds are coming up.

One cup of sugar, 1 teaspoon butter, 2 eggs, 1 cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda (rounding), 1 teaspoon cream tartar, a bit ginger, salt and nutmeg, 4 1-2 cups bread flour after sifted. Pat out on molding board. Fry in deep fat. Have a pan of boiling water to dip them in as you take out of the fat. Set the water by to cool and see how much grease has come off of them.

Macaroons: Two egg whites beaten stiff, 2-3 cup sugar, 1-3 teaspoon cream tartar and the same of salt, 2 cups of corn flakes, 2-3 cup of cocoanut. Drop by spoonful in buttered tins. Bake in moderate oven. Makes 20.

Shredded Wheat Bread: Three shredded wheat biscuits broken up fine, 1 cup of lukewarm milk, 1-3 cup of sugar, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon butter, rounding, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 yeast cake dissolved in 1-3 cup of water, 4 1-2 cups of bread flour. Make one loaf. Rises over night. Bake 50 minutes.

SCHOOL DAYS

Dear Editor and Friends: A few days ago I saw an old schoolmate. How quickly a few words will take our minds back to childhood days! It took me back to a fine morning in May—the first day of May, the first day of school, and the sun shone so lovely. I have never forgotten it; neither has my schoolmate. We had been playing all kinds of childish games and then we played drop the handkerchief. Well, it was dropped to me by a boy, and of course I started to run. Then something happened. What a shout went up from that ring! I was about 10 years old but I could get some mad, and so I did then. I had to stop my play for a few minutes but the others didn't get over it all day. Although it happened over 50 years ago, I have never forgotten it, and my schoolmate hasn't, either.

How time flies! It goes on swift wings. These school children are all scattered. They left the dear old homes for homes of their own, but there is nothing like those dear old homes after all.

Providence Rose: Did you get home Sunday? A fine day for ducks!

Whoa, Emma: I told you I was like the wild geese. I go before a storm.

Betty Jane: Give us a letter.

Kansas Lily: Saw someone from down there the other day. Said W. was all right and had been working all winter.

NONESOPRETTY (Club No. 4).

PROPER DIET FOR SPRING

Dear Editor: When the weather commences to get warm in the spring, heavy winter foods should be dropped, as far as possible, from the bill of fare, especially fat meats and fried things, such as griddle cakes, fritters and doughnuts. Substitute beef (boiled and roasted), fish, fowl, soups, salads, fruits, sauce (not too sweet), and every available vegetable. Parsnips, carrots, turnips, tomatoes (even if they are canned) are better than hominy, wheat and oatmeal for warm weather.

Salads require a close acquaintance with the cook book, but every housekeeper knows how to prepare onions, with the addition of a little vinegar, in a dozen different ways, and the early dandelion "greens" are springing up everywhere.

The tender, tart rhubarb is an excellent appetizer and renovator, and should be prepared with lavish hand.

For biliousness, take the juice of one lemon in a glassful of water, without sugar, just before retiring every night for a fortnight. A dozen and a half lemons are much cheaper than a pint of alleged purifier, and about as reliable.

Now is the time when you feel too tired to move. You say you need a tonic; that your blood needs thinning out; that your whole digestive apparatus is out of kilter; and you carefully brew dandelion, boneset and sassafras by the bowlful on the back of the stove. These are all very well in their way, but the diet is an aid or a hindrance to digestion which should not be overlooked.

CLUB NO. 5 TO MEET NEXT WEEK

Editor Social Corner and Social Corner Sisters: Here we are again, ready for another Corner meeting. We must make the most of what this meeting and our June meeting have for us, as we shall have two months when there will be no meetings—only picnics. Hope as many as possible will come May 2 for Club No. 5's meeting at Buckingham Memorial and enjoy our good times. Please remember to bring good things to eat. We shall have a very fine program. All are welcome from all clubs. Best wishes to all.

RECIPES AND HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: What a poor day we had Monday to dry our clothes. So damp and misty. I send my clothes to the laundry. Mr. R. takes them when he goes at 6 o'clock with the milk and when he comes back at 9 o'clock he brings them back. So I always have my clothes on the line on Monday.

I have had my kitchen woodwork painted, also the ceiling, pearl gray. I hired the painting done, but I papered the room myself. I also varnished four kitchen chairs and my table. I have my sitting room to paper next.

Beth C.: Hope you are much better now.

E. L. M.: Junior had a party on his birthday, the 14th. He entertained 11 of his friends. Of course his sister enjoyed it as well as the larger ones. He received quite a few presents.

I am sending some candy recipes:

Healthy Candy: 1-2 cup seeded raisins, 1-2 cup pitted dates, 1-2 cup layer figs, 8 pitted prunes, 8 cooked or canned apricots. Grind all through meat grinder. Add 1-2 cup nut meats. Form into small balls and roll in powdered sugar.

Black Walnut Chocolate Fudge: 3 tablespoons butter, 1-2 cup cocoa, 2 1-2 cups granulated sugar, pinch of salt, 1-2 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-2 cup black walnut meats; add ingredients in order as given (excepting nut meats), melting butter first. Bring to slow boil. Boil until mixture reaches consistency to form soft ball, when tested under cold water. Add vanilla. Cool 15 minutes and beat until creamy; and add nut meats last. Pour out on buttered pan or plate and cut into squares.

Brown Sugar Butter Brittle: 3 cups brown sugar, 2-3 cup boiling water, 1-2 cup butter; cover kettle 10 minutes and cook until brittle. Turn into buttered pan and cut into squares. Vanilla flavoring may be added if desired. This is a tasty and economical recipet.

Here are a few more household hints:

When washing spinach, greens, sprouts or vegetables, put a handful of salt in the second water and the sand and sediment will sink to the bottom of the pan.

Rubber caps put over your faucets while washing dishes in the sink will save many chips on your dishes.

Dust a little cornstarch on your layer cake before putting on the icing, to prevent the icing from running.

Bread crumbs that are not too stale, rubbed over a scorch stain, will cause it to disappear.

If you add a little blueing to the soapsuds in which you wash cut glass and crystal they will be very clear and sparkling.

Wishing the editor and all the sisters the best of luck, I will end now because my letter will be too long. This is my third letter this month.

MORE ABOUT FLORIDA

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.

Dear Readers of the Corner Page: As we are to leave this wonderful beach May 1st and commence our journey homeward, I will send another letter from this land of sunshine. Feb. 28th we left Lakeland for a trip down the west coast, passing through Plant City to Ybo City, where the inhabitants are mostly Spaniards or Cubans, and the chief industry is cigar making. Spanish is mostly spoken. They have their own daily papers, printed in Spanish, and are great lovers of music, having their social clubs, and an annual season of grand opera, with talent from Mexico, Cuba and South America. On our way to Tampa (also noted as a cigar city, where 600 or 800 million hand-made cigars are sent out yearly), we drove over Memorial boulevard, a perfectly level road for miles, lined on both sides with oleanders.

Then on to the Tarpon Springs sponge fisheries, where a large fleet of boats were anchored with their sponges, to be cleaned and dried. The boats are of the same type used by the ancient Greeks and manned mostly by Greeks, who secure the sponges by diving, 20 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico. The divers are protected as each boat is equipped with pumps which supply air to the divers. It is the largest sponge market in the world. Beautiful corals, curios and peculiar sponges were on sale. Then on through Clearwater with its old southern mansions, beautiful grounds and gorgeous flowers to St. Petersburg. Great clusters of bamboo trees and many kinds of palms lined the drive from St. Petersburg to Pass-a-Grill on the gulf. We spent the night at St. Petersburg. Before leaving in the morning we drove to the pier to see the immense pelicans that congregate there.

From St. Petersburg we crossed the celebrated Gandy bridge, the longest automobile toll bridge in the world, being seven miles long, with its approaches. A beautiful shore drive of many miles brought us to the Tampa Bay hotel, one of the show places of Florida. It was built by Morton Plant but is now owned by the city. A guide took us through dining room, ball room, a long art gallery where priceless tapestries, paintings and statuary were on all sides, to a large room filled with the most wonderful cabinets, chairs, pedestals, mirrors, and unique divans, all hand carved and inlaid with ivory or choice woods. One cabinet formerly belonged to Queen Elizabeth, others to Marie Antoinette and Louis 14th. A clock of solid brass was once the property of Shakespeare. These are only a few of the treasures; they must be seen to be appreciated. We drove through Bradenton to Sarasota. Roses in all colors, hibiscus with its large red blossoms, bouganvillia with its purple and poinsettias like the ones we use for our Christmas decorations and royal palms were on every side. In Sarasota we visited Ringling Bros. winter quarters, where enough animals to equip several circuses can be seen. Elephants, with ages ranging from 10 to 88 years, lions, tigers, camels, giraffs, zebras, monkeys, innumerable ponies and many other animals. The "kindergarten" was made up of one baby camel, a funny looking little fellow, and a cute little zebra one week old. The cost of feeding all these through the winter must be enormous. No wonder they want a good price for a ticket in the summer. We little realize the hours of training needed to perfect the daring bareback riders. Quite a young girl was evidently having a lesson. A long rope was suspended from overhead, the other end fastened to a band around one wrist. As the intelligent pony circled the ring she looked anything but happy at the abrupt commands of the instructor. We spent the night in Venice. This place is well named. The buildings are of Spanish and Moorish designs. Tiled roofs, graceful arches, inside porches opening into palm gardens, with flowers and fountains, makes one feel as though transported to some other country. We listened to a wonderful band concert in one of these "open" inside gardens, given for the guests from the three hotels, all under the same management.

We left this charming spot with regret and moved on to Ft. Myers, the winter homes of Thomas Edison and Henry Ford. Their homes adjoin and are modest and unpretentious, but with lovely grounds. We sat in front of the places for a while, so we can truly say we were on "the outside looking in." A car said to be one of "Henry's" first models had a place of honor on the lawn. Ft. Myers is one of the most beautiful cities thus far, as there the towering palms line each side of the streets and more tropical trees, flowers and foliage are to be seen, as it is so much farther south. We read a letter in a window written by Charles Lindbergh and dropped from his plane. It was directed to the chamber of commerce (By the way, we saw in the paper that an invitation had been given him to occupy one of the finest homes here at Daytona Beach for an indefinite time, as there are daily flights made by planes from the south end of the beach.)

I wish I had the courage so that I might have one more "thrill" while in Florida by going up some day. I will continue our journey homeward by passing over the Caloosahatchee river (some names down here), the bridge being a mile long. We reached Lakeland tired but happy. I have made this letter so long that our trip of five days down the east coast will have to be continued.

PRACTICAL POLLY.

A POEM FOR THE CORNER PAGE

A Tragedy

Oh! Mr. Hobbs, I'm sorry, but I can't see you today,
For mother, dear, is taking me downtown to see a play.
Tomorrow night, you say? Oh, no!
For then I have a date with Charley
Jones, the millionaire;
He calls for me at eight.
To ask to see me all next week would also be in vain;
But if you are in town next month,
Just call me up again.
Oh! hello, Joe! I've waited here
For you to call all day.
I'm awful lonesome, honeybunch,
Do come and see me, pray.
You're broke, you say? Why, that's all right;
We'll sit here in the dark;
Or, if you'd rather, darling boy,
We'll walk out in the park.

RAISING GERANIUMS FROM SEED

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I want to thank the editor for my yellow slip. It was much appreciated and you would be surprised to see what it bought. It is raining very hard tonight, but I suppose all the growing things outdoors need the rain and we will forget it tomorrow if the sun shines and we see how fast things are springing up.

I wonder if any of the sisters (or brothers) have ever tried raising geraniums from seed? Last spring I bought a package of seed and sowed them in a porch box. Twenty of them came up, but I transplanted them three times and lost some that way. When fall came I had 12 small plants to take in and now I wish you could see them; they are the nicest geraniums I ever had and just beginning to blossom. The first one to bloom was a single bright red and in the one bunch there were 25 separate flowers. Another one is nearly out and I think it will be a double dark red. One plant was broken by the curtain and I have the slip rooted for E. L. M., so you see I have the second generation started and all in less than a year.

I also have a bleeding-heart that is doing fine. It is two years old and blossoms very full and very early. It is already up and full of buds. I am anxious to divide it with my friends but am afraid to cut the roots as I have been told to, for fear that I might kill the plant.

To the sister who asks about ferns: I have found that a teaspoon of castor oil once a month helps them, but don't follow my friend's example. She thought because mine grew so well that more oil would make hers grow better and put on a bottle full. She killed the fern and, I think, learned a lesson.

I often pour cold tea on ferns, too. That helps some.

Beth C.: I hope you are feeling better and will be out soon. We missed you and O. D. at the last meeting.

Clarinda: Hope you, too, are better. I hear about you often, if I don't see you. Am sure you will feel better when warm weather comes.

With best wishes to all the sick and shut-ins.

LOOKING FOR INFORMATION.

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor—It has been some time since I have written a letter, so thought I would write a few lines. What funny weather we are having just now. It may be better a little later, let's hope so.

Kitty Lou—What did you think of Rhody Louise's letter? I thought it was a pretty nice letter myself.

Could any of the Sisters tell anything about the old Curtis Tavern at Hampton, Conn.? It is on what they call the Four Corners. I think there used to be a long hall there that used to be used as a dance hall in the years gone by. I think there was also an old fashioned knocker on the front door.

Mary France—I would love to see the relic you have that was handed down from your great-great-grandfather. I am interested in old relics and also old fashioned things, too. Anyone might call me an old fashioned girl.

I enjoy reading the letters in the paper written by the Social Corner members. I think we all were glad and thanked God for the safe arrival of the Bremen and its crew at Greenly island. I know I did. They had a little hard luck mixed in with their good luck. Good wishes and the best of luck to Social Corner Editor and Sisters.

MAJESTIC.

MISSES OLD WINTERS.

Dear Social Corner Members — Just a few lines to keep our page full. I do miss the old writers. Why sit back and let some one else do all the writing. If our page is full to the overflow our dear editor finds space on another page for us. Don't let Kittie Lou, Calla Lily and other regular and part time writers, do it with the faithful Club No. 6 writers.

C. Sharp—Hope hubby and the nephew are on the road to recovery by now.

Mrs. G.— (forget your pen name) and sister-in-law Wurdy Belle—Accept my sympathy in loss of the husband and brother.

L. J. B.—I think of you, too, in your loneliness often. My best wishes to Mary Sunshine. She is good company for you.

Kitty Lou—No, it wasn't your wedding bell I wrote about. I understood they were for Mr. Dooley I just passed my 36th anniversary April 21. I begin to feel like I was always this way.

L. T. H.—Don't get so busy you can't leave farm work long

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Norwich grange, No. 172, held its regular meeting in Steiner's hall Wednesday evening, preceded by a supper served by Division 3, Mrs. Hattie Woodmansee, chairman. The tables were very attractive with a display of paper flowers made by Mrs. Woodmansee. The menu consisted of meat pie, mashed potatoes, peas, cabbage salad, rolls, apple pie, cheese and coffee. The meeting was called to order by Worthy Master Albert W. Lillibridge, presiding, with an attendance of 102 Patrons. After a short business meeting the third and fourth degrees were worked in full form on a class of candidates. The tableaux were beautiful and much praise is due Mrs. Dorothy P. Rogers for her work. The drill team, Mrs. Myra A. Waters, leader, did excellent work as usual and deserves great credit. The meeting closed in due form to meet again May 8. Mrs. John E. Fanning has charge of the literary program, which is to be a "Poets' Night" and "May Party." The lecturer, Elizabeth W. Murray, is hoping for a good attendance as this is a program of unusual merit. That afternoon the entertainment committee will hold a whist and pinochle card party.

B'NAI BRITH AUXILIARY

Rose of New England Ladies' auxiliary, No. 49, Independent Order of B'nai Brith of Norwich, will hold an initiation of candidates on Sunday, May 6, at the Prospect House, Fitchville. The initiation team of Horeb Ladies' auxiliary, No. 51, of New Haven, consisting of 26 members, will perform the ceremonies of the ritual.

Mrs. Reyna Friedman, president of the women's auxiliaries of District No. 1, will be guest of honor. Leo Lyons, of Boston, chairman of the ladies' auxiliaries of the district, will be the speaker of the day. In addition to the degree team, 30 B'nai Brith members from New Haven will attend the initiation. Invitations have been extended to Fraternity lodge, No. 142, and auxiliary of New London, and to the newly formed B'nai Brith lodge of Willimantic to be the guests of Norwich lodge.

The festivals will begin with a supper which will be followed by the initiation. Arrangements have been made for an elaborate social and entertainment to follow the initiation ceremonies. The event is expected to be one of the largest social occasions held by the B'nai Brith in Norwich.

The committee for the initiation and festival is Mrs. Alexander M. Pasnik, president; the Misses Anne Alexander and Bessie Bruckner, secretaries; Mrs. Jacob Wechsler, Mrs. Oscar Silverman, Mrs. Benjamin Goldfarb, Mrs. I. F. Broderwine, Mrs. A. Silverberg, Mrs. Jacob Weisinger, Jacob Wechsler, Oscar Silverman, Josiah Greenstein, Abraham Bruckner, Abner Schwartz, Max Hanover, Abraham Silverberg, secretary.

GROTTO

Between 15 and 20 are to be in the Norwich Grotto party of the "On to Richmond" trip in June. The following is the official programme for the Richmond convention:

Monday, June 4—Reception and dinner to supreme council officers and ladies, Hotel Jefferson, 7 p. m.; grand monarch's ball, Shrine Mosque banquet hall, 9 p. m.

Tuesday, June 5—Registration of supreme council officers and delegates, Hotel Jefferson auditorium, 8 a. m.; Registration of visiting prophets and ladies, Hotels Jefferson, Richmond and William Byrd, 8 a. m. Opening session, Supreme council, Hotel Jefferson auditorium, 9:30 a. m. Official uniformed parade, 2:30 p. m.; Pro. Major Roland R. Liggon, grand marshal; Past Monarch L. Whiting Estes, of Washington, D. C., chairman of parade committee. Choral club concert, City auditorium, 7 p. m. Grand monarch's ceremonial, Strand theatre, 8:30 p. m. PYTHIAN SISTERS

The last two regular meetings of Clover temple, No. 9, were held in Buckingham Memorial. All the officers' chairs were filled and there was a good attendance. Sister Anna Ableman, the M. E. chief, presided. The regular ritual business was gone through with and for the good of the order for the first meeting in April, Miss Annie Ward, and Sister Alice LaTurner put on an original sketch called "Dinna Took Her Afternoon Off." The title part was taken by Miss Ward, while Alice LaTurner was Martha Washington. It went off well. At the second meeting in April, for the good of the order, Miss Helena Crandall gave four solo dances, Miss Mell at the piano. The regular prizes at each meeting are awarded by a sister, which helps increase the temple funds. The entertainments after each meeting, also the refreshments, create an interest which encourages the members in attendance.

ODD FELLOWS

The regular meeting of Palmyra Encampment, No. 3, was held Thursday evening in the lodge rooms with P. C. P. Howard Bishop presiding. Routine business was transacted and plans were made for attending the grand lodge session in Bridgeport on May 15. The golden rule degree was worked in full form on several candidates. After the meeting light refreshments were served by the entertainment committee. On May 10th the royal purple degree will be put on by Degree Master John F. Amburn and staff. Refreshments will be served at this meeting after the work.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS

On Thursday evening this week, all the post officers of R. E. Hourigan post No. 594, met for a business session at their post quarters in the Olympic building on Water street. Among those attending were the post commander, H. F. Burdick and four past commanders including G. A. Turner, Edward Street, Leo Jaques and Albert J. Turner.

The buddy poppy committee made their first report for this year and announced the annual sale of buddy poppies to be carried out this year during the week of May 26th when members and friends will make their appeal in behalf of disabled and needy veterans and their dependents. Those who purchase the little red flowers will be contributing to various phases of welfare work that have been assumed by Richard E. Hourigan post and the national organization. Primarily they will be buying poppies that have been fashioned by the hands of disabled veterans, still patients in government hospitals, throughout the land. In addition the fund created by the sale of V. F. W. buddy poppies will serve to maintain many other branches of local and national welfare work for the benefit of ex-service men. By means of the sale of the poppies the local post is enabled to give aid and relief to comrades in distress.

CATHOLIC LADIES OF COLUMBUS

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

A fire in a barn on Maple street, supposed to have been of incendiary origin, furnished about the only excitement in Norwich fifty years ago this week. The same week the Norwich Caledonian society was planning its final entertainment of the season. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of April, 1878, are as follows:

Monday, April 22, 1878—There are now four Academy students pursuing undergraduate courses at Yale. The three who hail from Norwich or vicinity, Webster Hakes, John D. Hall and Frank B. Lucas, are now enjoying the spring recess at home, but return to New Haven, Wednesday.

The man named Peter Kilson, who was arrested for putting obstructions on the railroad track at Niantic, R. I., and was bound over to the May term of the superior court of Washington county, claims to hail from Norwich.

The launching of a small sail boat Saturday morning from the second story window of a carpenter shop on the West Side, attracted quite a crowd of spectators.

The Hon. John T. Wait arrived home from Washington, Saturday evening and intends to return on Friday next.

Tuesday, April 23, 1878—The county commissioners, last week, approved the nomination of Elias Beckwith to be goal keeper at Norwich and Giles G. Wickwire to hold the similar office at New London. The salaries of the two positions, with those of the assistants have been reduced about twelve and one half per cent.

The fire department was called out at half past ten, last evening, by an alarm from box 14, at the corner of Main and Thames streets. The fire was found to be in John Murphy's brick barn on Maple street and had blazed through the roof of the building so as to be seen from all over the city. It is believed to have been caused by incendiaries. The department made quick work of the flames.

The second thunder shower of the season occurred on Sunday morning about four o'clock, when the rain fell quite rapidly for a time and the lightning was vivid.

Wednesday, April 24, 1878—At the annual election of Christ church parish, Monday evening, the following officers were elected: Wardens, Horace Whitaker and Lewis S. Paddock; vestrymen, Gardiner Green, Jedediah Huntington, Jeremiah Halsey, J. D. Park, Arthur H. Brewer, H. H. Roath, H. H. Gallup, H. M. Disco, C. Johnson, C. J. Fillmore and J. S. Carew; clerk, Gardiner Greene, Jr.; treasurer, W. G. Abbott; delegates to the convention, J. A. Hovey and Jeremiah Halsey; alternates, H. M. Bishop and H. H. Roath.

There are surmises that the incendiaries who fired the Murphy barn, Monday night, previously entered a barn on West Main street, now occupied by Henry Smith, with the design of burning it. Some things were found out of order about the building that are supposed to indicate mischevious intentions.

W. R. Burnham of this city was present as delegate to the Atlanta international Sunday school convention and remains in that city, for a short time, to recruit, if possible, his health.

Thursday, April 25, 1878—Matrimonial—Another very pleasant social event occurred on Washington street, last evening, the occasion being the marriage of Miss Lennie G. Carew, daughter of James S. Carew, Esq., and Mr. George B. McLennan of Detroit, Michigan. The ceremonies took place at Christ church at half past seven o'clock, the impressive Episcopal service being performed by Rev. Dr. Gilsey.

The Norwich Caledonian society intend making their entertainment and social on Friday evening, 26th, the best of the season, it being their last entertainment for a time. They have drawn up a good programme and have also secured the services of Miller's orchestra and Gurdon Cady, prompter.

The Greeneville Congregational society contemplate making important improvements and repairs upon their house of worship and a committee is at work obtaining pledges from members of the society for the necessary funds.

Friday, April 26, 1878—The death of another one of the old merchants of this city, Mr. John M. Brewer, occurred at his residence, yesterday morning. He had been sick for less than a week and the news of his death surprised everyone by its suddenness.

Lots of dogs can be had for the asking now, as a good many persons would sooner give away their canine than pay the tax on them. At the prospect that looms up before any dog owner, who does not attend to registration, of being brought into the police court, some morning before breakfast, and summarily fined $7 and costs is not a pleasant one to dream about.

Saturday, April 27, 1878—Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Mier celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage by a happy silver wedding last evening. The presents of silver were quite numerous and fine and the wedding supper must have been richly furnished. If the basket of good things that found its way to The Bulletin composing room was a fair specimen.

Some of the farmers are getting frightened by the potato bug and won't plant many of this kind of tubers the present season.

The visitation of Bishop Williams to the parishes of Christ church and Trinity, which was put down for Sunday next, will be prevented by the illness of the bishop. The Rt. Rev. T. M. Clarke, bishop of Rhode Island, will take his place.

The railroad commissioners examine the New London Northern road next Tuesday, commencing at New London, Norwich and Worcester on Wednesday, commencing at Norwich.

PENDLETON HILL

MRS SARAH B. CARPENTER DIES AT LANCASTER, PA.

Relatives here received news Monday morning of the death of Mrs. Sarah Billings Boardman Carpenter, 91 at her home in Lancaster, Penn., Sunday evening, April 22. The funeral was held from her home Thursday, April 26. Mrs. Carpenter was born in 1837, eldest daughter of Deacon Frank Billings of this parish although he lived in the town of Griswold. Here she spent her early life and attended this church as a rule walking to and from her home, a distance of nearly four miles, and this frequently more than once a week. At 22 she married Harris Boardman of Griswold and together they went to Lancaster to live. Mr. Boardman was an inventor of considerable note, whose patents are still in use. Four sons were born of this marriage, Franklin, who died in infancy, Walter, Arthur and Harris, men of prominence in business and professional circles, all of whom have been dead more than ten years.

Mrs. Boardman's second husband was Dr. Henry Carpenter, a physician well known in eastern Pennsylvania, and well known politician and friend of President Buchanan.

Although Mrs. Carpenter has been an invalid in the care of a trained nurse for the past ten years, she has been able to attend church and social affairs and to take long auto drives. Her death, spite of her advanced years, came as a surprise to her friends and relatives.

As a young woman Mrs. Carpenter made an enviable place for herself in the church and social circles of her adopted city and this she maintained to the end.

She was among the first members of the D. A. R. with many bars attached to her insignia. She was a Mayflower daughter and a Founder.

Mrs. Carpenter had great charm of personality. Her beautiful old home which she has occupied the greater part of her life since her first marriage, must now be broken up. She is survived by three grandsons, Rev. Walter Boardman of Barnegat, N. J., Arthur Boardman of Lancaster and Harris Boardman of Montclair, N. J.; two granddaughters, Mrs. Sarah Boardman Smith of Millville, N. J., and Juliet Palmer Boardman of Montclair, N. J., all of whom are frequent visitors at the former home of their aunt, Mrs. Mary Palmer and their great grandfather's home, the Robert P. Palmer estate.

Miss Carrie A. Ryder has so far recovered from illness as to be able to attend church Sunday.

Mrs. Sarah Brown is the guest of her niece, Mrs. James Brooks, of Glasgo.

Henry Johnson recently erected a fine new henhouse twenty by thirty feet. Now Mrs. Johnson is erecting a henhouse of about half those dimensions. Of Mr. and Mrs. Johnsons' eight hundred Rhode Island Red chicks, they have lost but one, even though the chicks arrived nearly four weeks ago.

Birdsey G. Palmer has purchased a fine new horse in Fitchville.

LISBON

MRS. STEINKE'S FUNERAL HELD FROM DAUGHTER'S HOME

Late Sunday evening, Louise Steinke, 88, widow of August Steinke, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Bradlow, after a very brief illness with pneumonia. Of a quiet, home-loving nature, Mrs. Steinke was best known and appreciated by those of her own household, from whom she received every consideration for her comfort and happiness in her declining years. She was a lover of flowers and in seasons past, when able to get out with her cane, might often be seen in the flower garden. She was born in Germany, coming to this country 37 years ago. She was formerly a member of the Lutheran church, later transferring her membership to a Baptist church. Surviving are two sons, William Steinke of Hartford, and Carl Steinke, of Norwich, and a daughter, Mrs. Charles Bradlow. There are 11 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren. The funeral was held from the daughter's home, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. W. J. Reynolds officiated. The bearers were four grandsons, George Bradlow, Albert Bradlow, Frank Steinke and George Steinke. There were beautiful flowers. Burial was in the Amos cemetery.

The congregation of Newent church Sunday morning listened to an interesting and helpful sermon by Rev. William C. Prentiss, of Plainfield, who preached by exchange with Rev. W. J. Reynolds.

Next Sunday morning the church service will be held on daylight saving time.

The Ladies' Aid society has been invited to the home of Mrs. Charles P. Learned Wednesday, May 2, for an all-day session.

In several houses in Newent that have been wired for electricity, lights were turned on Saturday.

Tyler Fitch and a friend from Providence spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fitch.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hull, Mrs. Jesse Phillips and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mell were in Providence Thursday.

Packard presents
Nine New Models of the Famous Packard Eight at New Low Prices!

IN addition to the marked reduction in prices of Packard custom cars announced January 3, 1928, Packard now announces a new line of Packard Eights midway in price between the Packard Six and the Packard Custom Eight. The new low prices are listed below and merit careful attention.

Thousands have asked for the power and performance of the Packard Eight with standard bodies and now Packard has answered. Nine entirely new and beautiful models are ready for delivery. Each has the same motor and chassis that have long made the Packard Custom Eight America's foremost car.

Each new standard body is Packard in design and Packard in workmanship and possesses everything in comfort and beauty short of the individually selected appointments of the custom body. The new cars fit into an entirely new market and do not replace any other Packard models. It is now possible to choose from 53 Packard models—the widest and finest selection in the fine car field.

Those who buy the Packard Eight need have no fear of radical changes in motor design and Packard owners have long been protected by Packard's adherence to the typical beauty of line that has dignified and distinguished Packard cars for more than a generation.

Why not arrange to have your present car appraised and apply its value against the down and monthly payments on one of these new Packard Eights? Or, you may desire to pay cash, although many prefer to follow the practice of most successful men and use their credit.

The Standard Models of the Packard Eight

50 ISSUES REACHED NEW HIGH LEVELS FOR YEAR IN THE MARKET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—Speculation for the advance ran riot in today's stock market and 50 individual issues crashed through to new high levels for the year, or longer, or gained which ran as high as 15 points. Total sales crossed the 4,000,000 share mark for the 13th time this year, with the ticker 46 minutes behind the market at the close.

Speculative interest centered at first in the railroad shares but, when heavy profit taking developed in that group, quickly shifted to the oils, public utilities, motors and specialties.

Retention of the 4 per cent. relatively small increase of $15,395,000 in brokers' loans and the slight stiffening in commercial paper rates were disregarded by operators for the advance who again succeeded in attracting a large public following.

Opening prices in the railroad group were generally around the highest of the day. New York Central opened at 139, the highest price in its history, slipped back to 138 and closed at 138 3-8, unchanged on the day. Union Pacific crossed 203 for the first time since 1910 and then dropped back to 200 for a small fractional loss. Chicago Northwestern, Chicago & Alton, common and preferred, Chicago Great Western common, Pennsylvania, Northern Pacific, Southern Railway and Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred, also reached new high ground.

Oil shares changed hands in tremendous volume, blocks of 5,000 to 32,000 shares appearing on the tape at frequent intervals. Standard Oil of New York, Sinclair, the three Pan-American issues, Royal Dutch Texas & Pacific Land Trust, Tidewater preferred, Panhandle, Louisiana, Pierce Oil, common and preferred, and Pierce Petroleum all advanced to new high ground.

Revival of strength and activity in the public utilities was based on unconfirmed reports of an early announcement of consolidation plans. Consolidated Gas soared nearly 16 points to a new peak at 167 1-8 but lost about 3 1-2 points of its gain on realizing. Brooklyn Edison jumped 9 1-2 points to 265 and then reacted at 260 1-2.

Case Threshing ran up 12 points to 293. Adams Express, Allis Chalmers, American Bank Note, American Express, American International, American Snuff, Chrysler, Curtis Aeroplane, DuPont, Electric Auto Lite, General Cable, General Motors, Indian Motorcycle, International Harvester, Ludlum Steel, McCrory Stores B, Midland Steel Products, preferred, National Tea, Postum Company, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and Victor Talking Machine convertible preferred, all sold 4 to 13 points higher.

Delaware & Hudson duplicated yesterday's peak price of 226 and then broke to 215 3-8, closing at 216 for a net loss of 7 points. Lehigh Valley dropped fro 110 to 101 and rallied to 103, off 4 points net.

Heaviness of the motion picture shares was due to selling inspired by the announcement that suit, charging a conspiracy in restraint of trade, had been instituted against 12 of the largest distributors. Tobacco issues, which were reactionary early in the week on announcement of cigarette price cuts, held fairly steady in quiet trading.

Call money held at 5 per cent, all day.

Foreign exchanges were mixed. Sterling cables were slightly firmer around $4.83 1-8 but Japanese and Portuguese currencies reacted about 10 points each.

A sharp advance of about 4 cents a bushel in wheat prices, which lifted all active futures to new high levels for markets. Cotton advanced 75 cents for the season featured the commodity to 31.50 a bale on buying influenced by reports of adverse weather. Coffee and sugar quotations showed a little change.

August are out door picnics, but hope it's warmer than now.

Best wishes to all.

OMITS ITEMS FROM RECIPES

Dear Social Corner Sisters—Last week I sent in a nut bread recipe, which I hope no one tried, as I left out the milk and sugar, and as I have been asked for the recipe, thought I would correct it:

Nut Bread—1 1-2 cups flour, 1-2 cup of sugar, 1-2 cup milk, 1-2 cup of nuts, 1 egg, 1 1-2 teaspoon baking powder. Mix and let stand 15 minutes. Bake 45 minutes.

It didn't seem much like spring yesterday, as I went to Hartford and how it snowed, nearly all the way, but the sun was out after we got in Hartford.

Olga—Best wishes, April 27th. Time sure goes fast, next Wednesday being meeting day, again.

STUB. (Club No. 5)

RECIPE FOR CUP CAKES.

Dear Corner Editor and Sisters—I wish to thank everyone for the nice Easter post cards. Well, as it housecleaning time all the Sisters are like myself, very busy.

I am sending a recipe for chocolate cup cakes—Cream one cup of sugar, 1-4 cup of shortening, to that add 2 ounces of unsweetened chocolate and then one well beaten egg, 1-2 cup sweet milk, one teaspoon of vanilla and then your flour and two teaspoons of baking power.

I wish luck to every one that will try this recipe.

FORGET-ME-NOT.

IN REMINISCENT MOOD.

Dear Editor and Friends—I saw in last week's paper a letter from Florida. It made me think of a few months I spent there. Yes, it sure is fine to see all the orange trees in bloom and all of the others. I loved to listen in the morning to the mocking bird's sweet notes and the canary is just beautiful. Wish I could go there again, but don't suppose I ever shall. It sure is all that writer has told you.

Nonesopretty—You sure did bring a good storm as you said you would. Come again, but please leave the storm behind.

Keziah Doolittle—Hope you are fine: Call sometime.

Butterfly—I would like to see your nice mats. I saw some lovely ones the other day.

Kind regards to all.

WHOA EMMA.

PUTNAM MEETING MAY 3RD

Dear Social Corner Editor and Members: Thought I'd write a few lines to remind the members and friends of Club No. 4 that the meeting will be in Putnam at St. Philip's guild room, corner of Grove and Pleasant streets, May 3rd. Hope we will have a nice day and large attendance. Bring your dishes and food.

Aries: Hope to see you May 3rd. to thank you.

JOINS THE CORNER.

Dear Editor: I have read the letters of the Social Corner members week after week, telling of their good times. I would like to belong and ring in on some of them. I would like to belong to Club No. 2 and will take for my pen name

DUTCHMAN'S BREECHES

CHILD HEALTH DAY

Dear Social Corner Friends: Those who have been teachers are familiar with the type of mother who leaves most of the care and responsibility of the child to the teacher and seldom shows any interest, unless there is some trouble. But who finally wakes up to find her child is far behind in his school studies. And probably he remains behind, to her great disappointment. Her child is developed physically only—an active little animal—because no one gave him any mental care.

Mental training begins easily and well only the kind of things he learned to do while young.

We have lived through the most interesting age, the change from primitive conditions to this mechanical age.

There has been just as much change in child training as in transportation. So it does not do to use old ideas in either. Every child should have the best training in physical, mental and social development. And the principles have become so generally known that anyone can easily know the best ways, but too many are careless and remain ignorant and the children are neglected. Child health day reminds us to get busy and plan so as to get "better results" from next year's work.

We need to remember that the child has to do his own—live his own life—physically, mentally and socially. No matter how much we would like to, we can do little for him except to give him right food and care and right ideas—he must use them for himself.

The infant's brain is just as active as his heart and digestion, he is just as much alive and developed mentally and socially as he is physically. Perhaps because public instructions in infant care at first gave only physical directions, parents have seemed to think that physical care was all the child needed until school age, and sometimes the child has been seriously neglected in physical care until then. The school nurse and examinations would tell what needed to be done and make everything all right, they say.

The cure from birth to school age, or the first six years, is much more important than anything that can be done for the child later. Anything wrong will be very hard to correct and make right after several years of neglect.

Everyone is interested in making better conditions because all are teachers—we all influence others by what we say and do, whether we mean to or not.

We must change and improve our own ideas, too many of them are out of date or always were wrong. None of us had the chance to form good ideas on all subjects.

One mother who had always allowed herself to show her terror in thunder storms trained herself to pretend it was interesting when she found she was instilling terror in the mind of her little daughter.

If we use only right ideas ourselves, then our unconscious influence will be good. The adult uses easily and naturally and instinctively all the ideas he first learned.

When a child I was loaned a beautiful playhouse which I refused to use until my mother found out I did not enjoy it because it was not ours. When she explained that there were many things that we can only enjoy as we do the sunshine and trees, the ocean and the mountains, they are ours to use only but not to own; the playhouse is all yours to use as long as you want it. So I learned the valuable esson that few seem to learn, to enjoy and use carefully and care for as my own anything that I use. Later in a rented apartment I said it is absolutely mine while I stay here; so any place I stayed was really my own home and as carefully cared for as if I owned it, and as much enjoyed. Our social training should teach us to not find fault or be annoyed by others, the noise and activity is no different than we would find in a larger family of our own.

Learn the natural laws and know how to encourage the use of the helpful ones and to control the bad ones.

Any restraint, either physical or mental, will cause the infant to go into temper tantrums, a natural habit which he will always retain unless taught to control his temper. With the infant we avoid doing things in the way that causes this outbreak of temper. As soon as he can understand, we teach him to make a game of being pleasant and calm no matter what happens.

It is funny, but too bad, of course, to see an adult with uncontrolled temper, angry at almost anything said or done excepting when you absolutely agree with him, and that type of adult is very apt to be unreasonable and wrong the most of the time, and you cannot agree with him or please him.

An infant is afraid only of two things, falling and loud noises. All other fears are built-in. Don't build them, if someone has; make it a game to get rid of them, use reasons, example and ridicule.

Teach every child to be careful of themselves and of others—safety first. Teach every child to think about how much he is physically and financially able to do. Nothing is more trying and needless than having to deal with adults who never consider those conditions and always cause needless trouble.

MARJORY.

SUGGESTIONS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I was told if you dissolved a quantity of alum in water, so as to make a pretty strong brine, and skim it carefully, then add some soap to it, dip a linen rag in it, rub over the silver, and you will have a wonderful lustre. Now I have never tried it, so I won't make you think I have, but I will tell you what I do. I take one teaspoon each of soda and salt, put it in three pints of water in an aluminum vessel, let it come to a boil and let your silver boil one minute. I do that act once in two weeks. When I am not too busy, I use a lustre cloth that was given me and I get along very nicely. I want to know, Mother Preston, if you hate to beat cream on account of it spattering over the dish while whipping? Before I was an owner of one of the new whippers with a cover to it, I used to take a piece of paper large enough to cover dish and turn under bowl you are using. I made a slit in paper top of bowl, inserted my egg beater and whipped my cream that way. That is worth trying.

When clothes dry too fast that you are ironing, wring a handkerchief out of warm water and rub it over the garment you are ironing and roll it up just about five minutes, commence where you left off and then go on. Here is another help that I can't retain in my equilibrium: When cleaning pantry put several layers of clean newspapers on the shelves. When one is dusty, the top one may be removed and a clean one, already there. You will find the wooden skewers that come in meats are very handy to remove dust and dirt in the corners and grooves when cleaning. I find if you hang a mirror where the sun shines directly on them for any considerable length of time it will become cloudy. I have to warm up by cooked cereals, and the way I do mine I beat it up with an egg beater. The lumps vanish like the dew before the sun. I have made my own baking powder for years and it is so much more lighter than the boughten powder. Here is my recipe if you wish to concoct yours: 1-2 pound cream tartar, 1-4 pound each of cornstarch and soda, dry them before sifting. Then sift 20 times. It is pure and I think you would like it. I run a long knitting needle in my layer cake to hold it together until it gets cold or until filling and frosting set. To clean a white felt hat, take sulphuric ether and put a little on a cheesecloth. Rub lightly and it will make your hat look like new. If you haven't ether, take common lump starch and enough water to make it the consistency of thick cream. Brush mixture on hat until well covered. (An old tooth brush will do.) Then leave it in the sun until thoroughly dry; then brush it off with a stiff brush and the hat will be clean and white. For a light green or light blue hat, make the starch the same shade as you want the hat. Use bluing for blue hat and green dye for green hat. It will revive and look like new. Sweetening your pie crust with one tablespoon of sugar to three cups of flour gives it a fine flavor and keeps it fresh. I think canned fruit is wonderfully improved by opening an hour before using. For making celery curly, cut each piece in two-inch lengths, fringe the ends with a sharp knife, leaving a short connecting space in the middle; cover with cold water (in warm weather add ice); chill for an hour, drain and serve. I have done my own washing until the family said No, I couldn't do it any longer, but it was not hard work. I evolved the following method of doing laundry and it may help some others who do not own a washing machine: Soak all white clothes in ammonia and water, also borax, all night; next morning they are boiled in the soapy ice-drippings which I have saved for that purpose. While the clothes were boiling I punched them with the vacuum cleaner. I next placed them in a tub of cool water and if there was a few soiled spots left, those I rubbed out by hand. I then rinsed, starched and hung up. For the colored clothes I use the water from the boiler. This method eliminates extra handling of clothes, and they looked white and nice as when I rubbed, boiled, rubbed and rinsed. Another great help: If you pour boiling water on apples, then let them stand about two minutes; they will peel like a tomato after pouring water on it; pears, also oranges, will do the same.

Here is a little story my friend told me: He said when he was a little fellow at home his father kept an old aneroid barometer which, same, seagoing relative gave him on the piazza. He said he was the only member of the family that ever looked at it. Around its outer rim the words Rain, Fair, Stormy, Change. The needle of the instrument was fairly certain to point to one of them before that particular brand of weather happened. He, being a little shaver, confused cause and effect. He thought the barometer regulated the weather instead of the weather regulating the barometer. So before a holiday picnic or a fishing expedition he used to twist the needle around by looping a string over it and hold it on the kind of weather he needed to suit his plans for the next day.

Now I have written you a barometer so full of points around the outer rim that it will help you tomorrow and day after tomorrow, whether it be rainy or shiny.

Lizzie Tish: Your letter describing the mending mat is very helpful.

Black-eyed Susie: I hope you received your package O. K. Am going to send another if that dear little girl or the two dear girls come.

L. E.: I found that after boiling your corned beef, leave four carrots in the liquid with the corned beef and I find they will absorb the fat. I hadn't tried it when you called up.

Louise C. G.: I wonder what has become of you? Am sending you B. W. today.

M. F. S.: Yes, they are still using the hammer on E. Your dear friends are his worst enemy. They are traveling now.

Idel: Am sending a package.

Irene: Look for you Friday.

Mattie: I have been looking for you.

Skipper: I was very much pleased at what you wrote. Have you a radio? We enjoy yours. I like the Victrola. Tehere is no static.

ETHELYN.

RECIPES FROM MOTHER PRESTON

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Here are a few recipes for cooking and serving potatoes.

Potato Soup: Boil 10 large potatoes, then peel as thinly as possible, slice and put them in a sauce pan with one large sliced onion, two heaping tablespoonfuls of butter and a little pepper. Let them stew in the butter for a few seconds, then pour over them two quarts of white stock and let the whole simmer until the potatoes are soft, rub through a strainer and put over the fire adding half a pint of new milk or cream and a little grated nutmeg. Sprinkle on the top some chopped parsley or the white of egg beaten stiff and seasoned with pepper and salt. Pour the soup boiling hot into the tureen, add the white of egg in tablespoonfuls, cover with the top of the tureen, let it stand for a few minutes and serve.

Potato Balls With Egg: Make into balls mashed potato flavored with a little finely chopped parsley, save from the yolk of an egg two teaspoonfuls and mix with two teaspoonfuls of water. Spread thickly with the back of a teaspoon over the potato balls and set in the oven for a few minutes. Serve hot.

Kidney Potatoes: Select fine, smooth potatoes, boil in their skins, then skin, dredge with flour and brown with dinner roast.

Potato Sautes: With a vegetable cutter cut potatoes into small balls and drop into real cold water. Place over the fire a frying pan containing some meat drippings and when hot enough to color the potato balls a light brown drop them in season with salt and pepper, cover closely and cook until mealy, shaking the pan frequently to prevent burning.

Black Eyed Susie: I wish you could have some of my buttermilk. Any time you are out this way drop in and have some. You are welcome. But there is one thing you mentioned you would not have so much to throw away. I never can do that. I am down and out on anybody that will "throw away" because you know, there is some things a sister can make up with butter milk. I enjoy your letters, too, so write often, you know last week the Corner looked so empty from so many letters that we're been having back along.

LEGAL NOTICES

GEORGE H. YOUNG vs. THE PEOPLE'S STORE, INC.
On April 27, 1928, the Superior Court for New London County, Connecticut, entered a judgment in the above entitled cause adjudging Luther D. Packer to be permanent receiver of The People's Store, Inc., which judgment in part provides that four months from April 30, 1928, be limited for the presentation to said receiver of claims against said estate; that all claims not so presented be thereafter forever barred; and that said receiver give notice to all persons concerned of said limitation. Claims should be presented to the undersigned as receiver at Taftville within the time limited by said order, or otherwise they will be forever barred.
Dated at Norwich, Connecticut, this 27th day of April, 1928.
LUTHER D. PACKER,
Receiver of The People's Store, Inc.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 27th day of April, A. D. 1928.
Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.
Estate of George A. Gardner, late of Norwich, in said District, deceased.
Ordered, That the Executrix cite the creditors of said deceased to bring in their claims against said estate within six months from this date, by posting a notice to that effect, together with a copy of this order on the sign-post nearest to the place where said deceased last dwelt, and in the same town, and by publishing the same once in a newspaper having a circulation in said district, and make return to this Court.
NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.
The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.
Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

NOTICE
All creditors of said deceased are hereby notified to present their claims against said estate to the undersigned at 219 West Town St., Norwich Town, Conn., within the time limited in the above and foregoing order.
MARY IVA GARDNER,
Executrix.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Ledyard, within and for the District of Ledyard, on the 25th day of April, A. D. 1928.
Present, BILLINGS F. S. CRANDALL, Judge.
Estate of Lurie H. Main, late of Ledyard, in said District, deceased.
Ordered, That the Administrator cite the creditors of said deceased to bring in their claims against said estate within six months from this date, by posting a notice to that effect, together with a copy of this order on the sign-post nearest to the place where said deceased last dwelt, and in the same town, and by publishing the same once in The Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper having a circulation in said district, and make return to this Court.
BILLINGS F. S. CRANDALL, Judge.
Attest, BILLINGS F. S. CRANDALL, Judge.

NOTICE
All creditors of said deceased are hereby notified to present their claims against said estate to the undersigned at Mystic, Conn., within the time limited in the above and foregoing order.
WILLIAM L. MAIN, Administrator.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at North Stonington, within and for the District of North Stonington, on the 27th day of April, A. D. 1928.
Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Acting Judge.
Estate of Frances M. Hempstead, late of North Stonington, in said District, deceased.
The Administrator exhibited his administration account with said estate to the Court for allowance; it is therefore Ordered, That the 3rd day of May, A. D. 1928, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at the Probate Court Room in the Town of North Stonington, in said District, be, and the same is, appointed for hearing the same, and the said Administrator is directed to give notice thereof by publishing this order once in some newspaper having a circulation in said District, at least three days prior to the date of said hearing, and make return to the Court.
NELSON J. AYLING, Acting Judge.
The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.
Attest, NELSON J. AYLING, Acting Judge.

REFERENDUM PETITION SIGNATURES ARE FOUND VALID AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 27—The referendum petition, requesting that the city council call a special meeting of the voters that approval or disapproval of the budget ordinance calling for the payment of about $18,000 to Tax Collector Hibbard N. Alexander, for services for 18 months can be expressed will go to the council at the next regular meeting of that body. The list of 493 signatures has been examined by City Clerk Julian D. Moran and less than a score of the names were found to be invalid, leaving a sufficient number of correct signatures to make it mandatory that the special election be held.

YOUNG CRIMINALS STOLE BOXES FOR NURSERY COINS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 27—About a dozen boys, who are on the downward path were presented in the juvenile court yesterday afternoon on charges principally of theft and damaging private property. One of the youths was sentenced to the state reform school at Meriden and others were given some sound advice regarding their future conduct. The boy, who was committed to the reformatory, was guilty of going to stores and stealing from the counters Day Nursery boxes containing cash. After a few of the boxes were stolen a watch was maintained and when the boy was observed loitering close to one of the boxes he was watched and seen to take it. His arrest followed. The boxes are distributed about the stores that generous persons may drop coins in them and the money is expended in defraying the expenses of the nursery.

Minnie E. Howe has sold the house and lot, corner of Wightman and Cliff streets to Morris and Sarah Rosenberg.

Mary B. Branigan has sold a house and lot on Blinman street to Cornelius D. Twomey.

The deed transferring title in the property, formerly owned by Paty Schwartz, at Bank and Sparyard streets, to the National Bank of Commerce, was received for record at the office of the city clerk today. The property was sold by Thomas C. Dillon, acting as a committee of the superior court, several weeks ago to satisfy a judgment of foreclosure for $14,000 brought by the bank.

Martin Oskey was in the police court today charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. The case was continued to tomorrow. Oskey went to his home last night at 11 o'clock and was in an ugly mood, quarreled with his wife and his conduct became such that Mrs. Oskey made complaint to the police. Oskey was arrested by Automobile Patrol Officer and Patrolman Frank Philopena.

James Hill, of Springfield, Mass., was presented on a charge of trainriding but he was discharged. Hill was detected stealing a ride on a freight of the New Haven railroad at 1.30 o'clock this morning and was arrested by Special Agent Swanson.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John Crowley, 72 Montauk avenue, died at Lawrence-Memorial hospital yesterday afternoon. The babe was born there the day before.

William G. Avery, 75, died last night at his residence, 95 West street, after a lingering illness. He is survived by a son, Leslie A. Avery. Mr Avery was for many years employed as coachman by Benjamin L. Armstrong.

Of the seven applicants recently given mental and physical examinations to determine their fitness for appointment to the supernumerary force of the New London police department but three will be appointed, for the others failed to pass the examination or were disqualified because of height or age. The successful candidates are George R. Bruhns, Enfield F. Totten and Anthony P. Turello. They will probably be appointed within a few weeks. William G. Lyman, another applicant who passed both the physical and mental examinations, is disqualified because of being slightly over the age limit. Two others to take the examination were disqualified because of not being of the height required by ordinance for appointees, while the other applicant did not pass the mental test. The successful candidates will probably be appointed in time to perform duty during the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. Einar Thomason, of 23 Willetts avenue, gave their daughter, Maida, a party last evening on her tenth birthday. Twenty guests of the young miss were present and had an evening of games. Prizes were won by Frances Halyburton and Helen Foster. Miss Thomason received a gift from each of her guests.

Ten tables of bridge were in play at a party given last night by the Catholic Women's club at their quarters on State street. High scores were made by Mrs. D. J. Keating, Mrs. William Moran, Mrs. James Neilan, Mrs. F. Noon, Miss Julia Sullivan and Mrs. Joseph A. S. Germain.

Back to Ireland is the slogan of Austin Neary of Jefferson avenue. Mr Neary plans to leave within the next week for a lengthy trip to the land of his birth.

A bridge party was held last night by members of the Crowley club rooms on Jay street. Ten tables were in play. Winners of prizes were Gertrude Keefe and Mrs. Henry S. Carey.

Hiawatha council, Degree of Pocahontas, held a card party last night at which 12 tables of bridge were in play. The winners were: Mrs. Ida O'Leary, Mrs. Nellie Johnson, Mrs. Mary Grace, Thomas Isaacs, Edward Stockford and Edward F. Prevost.

A large audience attended a skit given last night by members of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church at the church. The play was in one act and was entitled "Packing the Missionary Barrel". It was clever and amusing.

Blanche Ferrin and Idelle Bragaw, two Jay street property owners who have been holding out on the offer made by the city of New London for their property, today accepted the offer made by the board of valuation recently organized. Mary E. Moran of 16 Jay street, refused to accept the offer made to her but stated that she would consider the matter.

Patients dismissed at Home Memorial hospital today were: Edgar Stoddard of the Crocker house, Mrs. Burton Greenough, 95 Pequot avenue; Mrs. Wellman Stoddard, Poquonoc Bridge and Arthur Cannon, E. S. Elliston. Mary Schmidt of Canterbrook was dismissed from Lawrence Memorial.

At the annual meeting of the Woman's league of the First Church of Christ, Mrs. J. R. Latham was unanimously elected president. Other officers elected are: First vice president, Mrs. Charles B. Whittlesey; second, Miss Kate Huntley; secretary, Mrs. W. J. Pardy; assistant secretary, Mrs. T. N. Hansen. After the meeting which was held yesterday at the parish house a social hour was enjoyed. A luncheon preceded its opening.

Friends of Miss Rene Palmer of 24 Pleasant street, gave her a shower last night in honor of her coming marriage with Andrew W. Greene of Westerly. Many pieces of fine linen, glass and silver were given her. Refreshments were served by Miss Palmer, assisted by her sister, Mrs. E. Newton Gully of Westerly.

A surprise party was given Mr. and Mrs. Harold Davis of Lewis street, last night as a farewell, as they will leave this city shortly to make their home in Baltimore. The party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver W. H. Pavey of 18 Lewis street. Mrs. Davis was presented a beautiful bed spread. Games and dancing were enjoyed after which refreshments were served.

The new rooms of the Annie Laura club on State street were formally opened last night when 20 members assembled for the April meeting. After a short business session the guests marched into the new dining room where supper was served.

Announcement was made yesterday of the engagement of Miss Vera Lear Grann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Esaak Grann of 41 Faire Harbor place to Samuel Copeland of New London.

Miss Grann is a graduate of Connecticut college and studied journalism at Columbia university. Mr. Copeland attended New York university, also accounting in the Walton school. He is now a junior partner of the Hyland Accounting Co., New York. No date has been set for the wedding.

NINETEEN PERMITS GRANTED AT CITY COUNCIL MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 27—The city council held a special meeting this evening at 5 o'clock and granted nineteen applications for permits to erect, repair or alter property, insuring additional work for mechanics and laborers during the coming spring. A contract was awarded the Babcock Printing Press company to supply the city with 100 manhole heads and covers at a cost of about $1,998. The Economy Coal company was awarded a contract to supply the city with a carload of cement at a cost of $603, an allowance being made for bags in good condition that are returned. A two-ton tractor was authorized ordered from the M. B. Tyler company, at a cost of $1,605.

A date was fixed for the first public hearing on the zoning ordinance. It was decided to hold the hearing Monday evening, May 14, at 8 o'clock, in the council chamber.

In the absence of Mayor James A. May, Councilor John F. Murray presided at the session.

SATURDAY EVENING CLOSING FAVORED BY SOME MERCHANTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 27—At a special meeting of the merchants' division of the New London chamber of commerce, held last night for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not business men of the city were in favor of keeping retail stores open Saturday night, no vote was taken. However, after lengthy discussion on the part of those present, the opinion was that the majority of merchants felt unfavorable towards such a movement. The chief argument used against those who would keep open shop on this night was that the public has so much money to spend and most of it is used for necessities, and that this being the case, articles needed for the week end could be just as readily purchased during the daytime as at night. The general impression gathered from results of the meeting is that some of the stores will keep open Saturday nights, while others will stick to the present plan, closing at 6 p. m.

Incorporation papers for the firm of Hewitt & Gannon, were filed today with City Clerk Julian D. Moran. Authorized capital for the newly born organization is $50,000 with a showing of $21,000 to start business. Incorporators, P. Wheeler Hewitt, Thomas F. Gannon and Christina Drea.

Strand Theatre.

Showing Sunday night only at the Strand is "The Savage" a side-splitting comedy mixed with plenty of thrills and a delightful love story. Ben Lyon and May McAvoy have the featured roles and it is rarely that one sees such a brilliant couple so admirably cast. Ben has the part of a writer of animal life for a scientific magazine. A rival magazine is sending its writers to the Marinose Islands with a professor to search for the lost tribe of white savages. Ben is shipped ahead by his boss to play the part of a savage and thus put across a hoax on the professor of the other magazine. We will tell you no more of the plot. The picture is filled with laughs, and there is everything to be desired in it, beautiful women, marvelous settings, and prehistoric animals. Don't miss this. It's great.

"The Girl From Gay Paree" is the story of a girl who goes to New York to be a professional dancer and after many futile attempts to land a job, finds herself broke and hungry. She takes a desperate chance for a good meal and tries to escape without paying. From that moment until she is pressed into service to impersonate a famous French music hall singer and dancer, until the story ends, the fun waxes fast and furious. Lowell Sherman as the villainous man about town gives a flawless portrayal. Barbara Bedford in the title role is captivating and Malcolm McGregor as the journalist and Walter Hiers as the cabaret manager are splendid in their roles. Betty Blythe is a fascinating and wild French actress.

Moving Pictures at Y. M. C. A.

On the coming Sunday at 4 o'clock what is said to be an intensely impressive feature moving picture will be shown. On this occasion the first part of the feature will be shown, and the second part will be shown on the following Sunday. The picture is entitled "The Country Doctor." It is a drama with a real heart throb by Beulah Marie Dix. Amos Rinkel, the old fashioned kindly country doctor is to be made head of the new hospital Ira Harding is giving to the community. At last he will be able to accomplish a long cherished hope and longing. Because of the fact that the old doctor opposes the donor of the hospital in a certain matter, he is not given the position as the head of the institution, but a younger man is appointed, and it nearly breaks the old man's heart, and he packs up and goes to his sister in New York state. On the last night before he leaves however, a blizzard sets in. The son of the donor of the hospital is reported seriously injured up on the hillside farm. The new doctor is afraid to go, and the father of the injured man in desparation turns to the old doctor, who in turn starts out to battle his way to the farm. He reaches the injured man and he is saved, but the old doctor almost loses his life.

General Tire and Rubber Co.

Mike Gannon, test car driver of the General Tire and Rubber Co., and former nationally known athlete, believes the law of averages makes chances for accident in his work occur more frequently than in the case of the average motorist. He accordingly has equipped himself and men with football headgears to be worn at all times while on driving duty in anticipation of the ultimate dive through the windshield. Gannon and his men wear out many new automobiles in their work of testing new type tires for the General factory engineers. A new Ford coupe purchased March 1, this year will be worn out and junked or sold as an old car May 21, after running about 52,000 miles in the 90 day period. Recent similar runs with new type Fords and Chevrolets demonstrated for General engineers that a 30x4.75 tire will go several thousand miles farther on these cars than a 29x or 30x4.50 tire, usually put on at the auto factories; also that tires will go farther carrying even numbers of passengers than they will carrying odd numbers and that tires will give the best mileage on 32 to 35 pounds of air, depending upon the average passenger load.

Palace Theatre

William Haines scores another knockout. The star of "West Point," "Spring Fever," and "Brown of Harvard" enters on a new sport with skill and nonchalance as screamingly funny as it is romantically dramatic.

The sport is polo, heretofore brought to the screen only as atmosphere to establish the aristocratic social condition of the characters in the picture. But in "The Smart Set," which opened at the theatre, polo, its antecedents, environment and education, is the whole picture—and boy, what a wow!

An understanding of the gentle art of clinging to the right side of a horse while pasting a polo ball with a mallet is not even necessary for the enjoyment of the picture. By the time William Haines as Tommy Van Buren leads the American polo team to victory over the British the audience are on their feet cheering with as much enthusiasm as though they were at the Meadowbrook field on Long Island instead of in a palace of the cinema.

The Haines of "The Smart Set" is a more skilled and artistic comedian than the Haines of "Spring Fever" or "Brown of Harvard." He has acquired a technique of comedy that is instinctively his own while the romantic appeal of his love scenes with Alice Day, who by the way is an ideal heroine, will leave the flappers palpitating with envy.

Haines enters the picture as a typical rich man's son, a lily of the field who toils not but can play polo. By the time the story is ended, he is a man of men, a personage whom any woman would be pleased to have defending her home and hearth.

McEnelly's Orchestra

One of the outstanding characteristics of McEnelly's Victor Recording orchestra of Springfield, Mass., which appears in Norwich in the Armory Monday evening, April 30, is its ability to provide tuneful dance music that has the steady rhythm so much desired by dancers and so often lacking by organizations appearing before the dancing public. The steady tempos that add to the pleasure of dancing are things that have been achieved by the McEnelly organization through constant practice, daily association of its members and development of modern syncopated arrangements that combine with tempo both melody and harmony. Team work is another outstanding feature of McEnelly programs. The delicate nuances and phrasing are all present, and the orchestra is composed of a group of individuals that can be classed as star artists. However individual effort is suppressed in favor of a well balanced whole and the result is a collection of numbers and effectiveness of execution that sets the McEnelly organization apart among dance orchestras now appearing before the public.

McEnelly's orchestra enjoys another unique distinction also. It has been before the public for 20 years, plays six nights a week, and in the entire period of its existence has never failed to keep an engagement. Constant association of its members over long periods has resulted in this amazing record and development and among dancers the appearance of the McEnelly unit is always an event of the dancing season.

Breed Theatre

Lois Moran and George O'Brien come to the Breed theatre for a two days' run starting tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock daylight saving time, in Fox Films "Sharp Shooters," a comedy-drama of a French dancing girl and an American gob.

The locale of the story opens in a smoky dive in Morocco, picturesque and drab with its types of people from all over the world. The story closes in the swirling cafe side of New York with a background of the United States navy.

Miss Moran is particularly entrancing in the role of the little French girl who dances in Morocco and who falls desperately in love with the American gob, played by that capable young actor, George O'Brien.

O'Brien is in direct contrast to Miss Moran's naive and sweet personality, as he is a hard-boiled but thoroughly likeable young sailor. O'Brien is the type who believes in the safety of numbers and consequently has a girl in every port.

The thrilling episodes of the story occur when Lois follows George to New York and becomes employed in a dance hall owned by one of the most notorious bootleggers in the city. Lois is heartbroken when she finds that George is spending his time with a girl friend in his home town.

A tremendous climax comes when George cleans out the entire gang at the dance hall on discovery that the liquor king has fallen in love with Lois. A detachment of sailors marches into the hall and in a hand-to-hand battle cleans up the joint with George as the leader, who has finally realized his own seriousness for the French girl.

O'Brien and Miss Moran are supported by a splendid cast including Nancy Carroll, William Demarest, Noah Young, Tom Dugan and Joseph Swickard. J. G. Blystone directed from an original story by Randall H. Faye.

Miss Mae Riley was awarded the consolation prize. At the close of the evening refreshments of sandwiches, fruit salad, cake and coffee were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Fred Laycock. Those present were Mrs. Archie Furbush, Mrs. Chas. Oldham, Mrs. David Campbell, Mrs. George Mills, Mrs. Frank Hargraves, Mrs. Andrew White, Mrs. Fred Laycock, Mrs. Neil Bresnahan and Miss Mae Riley.

The Woman's Mission circle of the Third Baptist church met in the chapel Thursday afternoon with a large number of members present. The president, Mrs. Herbert I. Peckham, was in charge and after the devotional exercises a "quiz" from March missions was held. The election of officers resulted in the same officers being held over, namely: President, Mrs. Herbert I. Peckham; vice president, Mrs. Irving Larkin; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. James Spicer; programme committee, Mrs. George Howard, Mrs. Herbert I. Peckham. The secretary and treasurer gave a very encouraging report of the year's work and reported about $175 raised. This money has been given to the church to apply on its quota, and the ladies have also sent barrels of clothing, boxes of toys, and done white cross work for several mission stations. On May 23 the circle is planning to entertain the annual May meeting of the Women's mission circles of New London association.

During the evening a social time was held and a number of games were played. After a very enjoyable time the women were invited to the dining room, which was very prettily decorated for the occasion. A centerpiece of maidenhair ferns and pink roses, with streamers of pink crepe paper, adorned the table and each woman received a rose bud pencil as a favor. Refreshments of ice cream, angel, sponge and feather cake, nuts and punch were served by the hos ess assisted by Mrs. Frank Quinley and Miss Lucy Gray MacDougall. The workers presented Mrs. Stephenson a beautiful rose and white foot quilt as a token of their esteme. The members are vry sorry to lose her as she was one of their efficient members.

SAYS PORTO RICO GREAT FIELD FOR CONGREGATIONALIST HOME MISSIONS

Members of the United Congregational church heard two interesting speakers from missionary fields to which the church is giving definite support at a missionary supper meeting held at 6:30 Friday evening at the Community house with an attendance of 175. Those to speak were Rev. Dr. George Cady, executive secretary of the American Missionary association, one of the Congregational home boards, who has just returned from Porto Rico, and Miss Ella Hoxie, a social missionary from Sholapur, India, where she has been at work for nine years.

Charitable circle of King's Daughters served a chicken pattie supper, after which the pastor, Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, introduced Dr. Cady as the first speaker.

From what he had seen in an inspection tour made last month with eight others, Dr. Cady declared that the worst living conditions prevailing anywhere in the United States are in Porto Rico.

Dr. Cady upheld his unqualified statement about Porto Rico on the basis of intimate knowledge of the living conditions of Negroes in the south, of southern mountaineers, of Mexicans along the southwest border, and of Indians and Orientals in the west. The work of the American Missionary association is among these "under-privileged" groups.

"The religious destitution in Porto Rico," he said, "is equal to the appalling living conditions. Three-fourths of the people are not affiliated with any church. The background of the whole situation is the crushing poverty from which the ordinary man cannot escape. The average laborer earns from 65 cents to a dollar a day. He is the sole support of his family, which is usually large.

"The island is densely populated, with 375 persons, it is estimated, to the square mile. Most of the arable land is held in large plantations. The plantation workers are not allowed to have either a garden or a cow. The main articles of diet are bananas and codfish from Newfoundland. Mothers, babies and children suffer greatly from the fact that cow's milk is unobtainable for most of the people.

"The houses are mostly one-room huts. If they have partitions, these are often so flimsy as to be almost fictitious. Such homes breed immorality. Syphilis, tuberculosis and hookworm, the last being easily preventable if the people could afford shoes, are wide-spread.

"In the city of Ponce we saw streets where there was no sanitation and no water system. Offal and filth were thrown into the gutter to rot. The streets swarmed with children who were not in school because the schools can only accommodate half the school population.

"The real Porto Rico is not seen by the conventional tourists. They see just the military road, the clubs and casinos and learn nothing about the conditions amid which live most of more than a million people.

"The Congregational missions are in the eastern part of the island where by agreement with other denominations at work in Porto Rico we have exclusive responsibility for ministering to 175,000 people. At Humacao we have a hospital with two resident physicians, Dr. James Watson and Dr. Harriet I. Skemp. Patients often come ten or more miles for treatment at the clinics. Some are brought in hammocks borne on the shoulders of men. Frequently clinics are held at distant chapels in the mountains.

"At Santurce we have a girls' boarding school, the Blanche Kellogg Institute. This school seeks to do more than provide shelter and a textbook education. The faculty try to maintain an environment of ideal home-life which will leave a lasting impression upon the characters of the students.

"In addition to our work in the eastern part of the island we co-operate in the Union Evangelical Theological seminary and the Union Evangelical Publishing society. These two institutions are the strongest in their respective lines in all Latin America.

"An increase of $30,000 in the annual missionary appropriations, toward the current expenses of the Porto Rico Congregational churches, chapels, hospital and institute and for participation in the union work, is being recommended by Dr. Cady. Last year the association reported expending $105,000, of which $60,000 was for a special building needs and $45,000 for regular current expenses."

Work Done in India

Miss Hoxie concluded the evening's programme with an impressive recital of her work with outcast classes at Sholapur, India, which is in the Bombay presidency, and in a densely populated section where the common people are miserably poor and destitute.

The meeting closed with prayer by Rev. Mr. Abbott.

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSES STRESSED TOXIN ANTI-TOXIN

In the month of April in Norwich there were 1415 calls made by the public health nurses, 122 new patients, and 1247 patients under care at the end of the month.

According to statistics, children who are too young to go to school need protection against diphtheria more than school children. Therefore the public health nurses have been stressing the need of toxin anti-toxin. An opportunity has been given the pre-school children of Yantic to be immunized against this dread disease. The toxin anti-toxin has been given by Dr. Harrison Gray, town health officer. Twenty families took advantage of this opportunity to have their children immunized. If every child between the ages of six months and five years were immunized diphtheria would soon be practically wiped out.

Central Baptist Sunday Time

By vote of the Central Baptist church on Thursday evening, the morning worship service on Sunday will be at 10:30 standard time, and a postal is being mailed to the members requesting them to leave their clocks and watches on standard time until afternoon. The Sunday school will also be on standard time, and so will the boys' and girls' chorus. Beginning with the B. Y. P. U. in the evening the services will be on daylight saving time. Owing to the fact that the community mass meeting in the United Congregational church will be at eight o'clock daylight saving time, the B. Y. P. U. will meet at seven o'clock daylight saving time. The morning theme will be "Easter and the Life Everlasting." The junior church will enjoy a story by Miss Genevieve Eno and another by Miss Dorothy Gildersleeve. In the evening the Central church will join the other Protestant denominations in attending the community mass meeting in the United Congregational church where Dr. Albert Levitt of New York city will speak on "Governor Ritchie and Prohibition."

DIVORCES GRANTED TO THREE PETITIONING WIVES

Three uncontested divorces were granted by Judge John Richards Booth at Friday's short calendar session of the superior court in New London.

Jeanette Manges, of Lebanon, was granted a divorce on the grounds of desertion from Frederick P. Manges. She was also given the custody of a minor child. The couple was married in 1918 and desertion was alleged since 1924.

On the grounds of intolerable cruelty, Cecella N. Nezuch, of Norwich, was given a divorce from Leonard L. Nezuch.

After testifying that her husband had beaten her at times and otherwise abused her, Sophie Feinstein, of Norwich, was given a divorce from Paul Feinstein on the grounds of intolerable cruelty.

Had Pomfret Ancestor

Miss Harriet Frances White, who died recently at her home in Tappan street, Brookline, was the daughter of the late Isaac Davis White and Elizabeth Hall Grosvenor. She was descended from John White, who settled in Brookline previous to 1650 and also of John Grosvenor of Roxbury, whose family settled Pomfret, Conn.

Miss White was born in Roxbury in 1844 and moved to Brookline, after living ten years in Enfield, Conn., in 1865.

GAVE MUSICAL PLAY HOSPITAL ENTERTAINMENT

A very pleasing entertainment was given in the theatre at the Norwich state hospital on Thursday evening by the Girls League of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, under the leadership of Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham. The play which was called "Penny Buns and Roses" a musical fantasy contained some very pretty songs and dances which were ably executed by the following cast:

Damsels, Marie Pierson, Edith and Evelyn Wheeler, Ida Sautter, Gladys Newbury, Anna Rodier, Henrietta F Frink and Mary Phillips.

This evening of pleasure was provided for the veterans and other inmates of the hospital by the Welfare Workers of the American Legion, Mrs John B. Oat, chairman.

OIL HEATER CAUSES FIRE IN BATHROOM

An oil heater left in a closed bath room Thursday night to heat the room made a call for the fire department at 7:40 Thursday evening to No. 1 Kinney avenue, the house owned and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. David Blum and family.

The oil heater had blazed up and thoroughly blackened the white enameled bathroom with soot, besides scorching the paint around the window. When Mrs. Blum opened the bath room door and saw the blackened room she grabbed the oil heater, carried it down into the street and a telephone call for the fire department was put in Engine No. 6, Squad A, the chief and the deputy chief responded to the call.

Deputy Chief Taft called attention Thursday night to the dangerous practice of lighting an oil heater and leaving it in a closed room. The flame of the heater, he said, exhausts the oxygen in the room, flares up and down, smokes and forms gases, with the possibility of an explosion. It is running too much of a risk to leave an oil heater burning in a closed room unless some one is watching it.

LEBANON LANDMARK BURNS WITH LOSS OF $5,000

The Myron Abel place, an old landmark, lying just over the Colchester town line in Lebanon, was totally destroyed by fire Thursday, with a loss of approximately $5,000. The house and furniture, two barns and several small sheds were consumed in the fire, which started in the barn.

The property is owned by Morris Markus, of Colchester, and is used as a summer tourists' camp in the summer and during the winter months is not occupied. It is thought that tramps, who had taken up a residence in the barn, had caused the fire.

At Dr. Walsh's Funeral

The funeral of Dr. Thomas P. Walsh, of Middletown, Tuesday morning was attended by Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, of Norwich, also by Rev. Edmund A. Cotter, of Stonington. Father Cotter also assisted at the committal services. In the great congregation crowding St. John's church were Mayor Frederick J. Bielefield, of Middletown, and Rt. Rev. E. Campion Acheson, bishop coadjutor of the Episcopal diocese of Connecticut.

Soot Burning in Chimney

Soot burning in the base of the chimney in the house at 35 Penobscot street was responsible for a call fo the fire department Friday evening at 6:17. There was no damage, Squad A responded to the call. The house is occupied by Jesse F. Pharan and is owned by Mrs. Fred Chabonneau.

A NEW POLISH CURATE ASSIGNED TO UNCASVILLE

Rt. Rev. Bishop Nilan has assigned Rev. John J. Bafala, a native of Meriden and recently ordained, to St John's Catholic church, Uncasville, as permanent assistant to the pastor, Rev. James A. O'Meara. Rev. Father Balafa speaks English and Polish fluently, besides knowing several other languages. He reported for duty Friday and was warmly welcomed. This is his first appointment.

In the parish, the week of the men's mission is being completed by Rev. Father Camillus, from Baltimore and Rev. Father Luke from West Springfield, both of the Passionist Order The mission will close Sunday evening, with public services at 7.30.

At 4 o'clock, Sunday afternoon, one of the missionary fathers will bless the babies of the parish.

It is Father O'Meara's plan to have a week's mission beginning May 6th especially for the French-speaking members of the parish, the preacher to be Rev. Simon Joseph, O. F. M., from the Franciscan monastery, Montreal. All the sermons will be in French.

GIRLS COLLEGE GLEE CLUB GAVE RADIO PROGRAMME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 27—The Connecticut College Glee club, twenty-six in number, accompanied by Prof. Frederick S. Weld, director of the Glee club and Associate Professor of Music at the college traveled by bus to Hartford this afternoon, had dinner at the Bond hotel, and gave a half hour's program over the radio from station WTIC. This is the third one of a series of eleven weekly programs from this station under the general title, "Connecticut College on the Air," furnished by members of the faculty and the students.

PROTESTANT CHURCHES GO ON DAYLIGHT SAVING

Practically all the Protestant churches of the city will hold their services on daylight time on Sunday, but there are three exceptions.

Christ Episcopal church services will be on standard time, while the Central Baptist and the First Baptist will hold morning services on standard time, but evening services on daylight saving time.

STANDARD TIME SUNDAY AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

As is the custom, there will be no change Sunday in the time of services at St. Patrick's church. The rector, Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. H. May always considers that it is easier for the people not to make the change till the following day. On Monday all masses, the school and all parish activities will start on daylight saving time.

To the Citizens of The City of Norwich

The week of April 30 to May 5, both inclusive, is designated as Clean Up Week in the City of Norwich. This action is taken to improve conditions within the City of Norwich. Residents are urged to clean up the lawns, back yards, and indeed all premises to them belonging, and the streets, highways and sidewalks adjoining their properties. Such universal action will result in lessening fire hazards, improve health conditions, and further beautify our already attractive municipality. It will also have a tendency to improve conditions here throughout the year. It will, by example and practice, cultivate habits of cleanliness and orderliness among the youth.

The hearty cooperation of all is asked for, and will be appreciated. Please phone 1565, Street Commissioner, and trucks will remove rubbish.

Dated at Norwich, Conn., this 24th day of April, A. D. 192

MILO R. WATERS,
Mayor of the City of Norwich.

POETRY

Another Freshman

I wondered once if they were toy or talisman, these three—
A tiny Teddy Bear six inches tall, bought
In a city wide awake and keen
In erstwhile drowsy Dixie;
A dog of China, squat and square, selected with the utmost care
From an Eastern shop in Malay city fair;
A bulldog gray of celluloid who used to own a kennel green and small
And smartly vaulted through its door when "Rex!"
In vibrant tone you'd call.
In San Francisco's busy mart, a blue-eyed boy
With gentle heart, ventured abroad and bought this toy.

Each night before he went to bed he gravely laid them down to sleep,
And raised them up at morn.

But college boys must leave such things behind.
So when he left us, with his hasty kiss he said,
"Remember Toto, Rex and Ted, that each night they be put to bed."

How lovingly we did this every night and raised them up at morn.

Home for vacation, enthusiastic, greatly changed,
He talked of trig and frats and games, pledges, sororities and lab.
Yet nightly ere he went to sleep
With loving, gentle hands,
This Freshman fine laid softly down atop his chiffonier—
Toto and Rex and Teddy Bear, his little friends, still dear.

Oh, mother heart, you need not fear.
Not talismans, but toys, are here.

—Harriette L. Butler, in Christian Science Monitor.

Sleeping Beauty

Within the orchard of a mind
Beauty lay sleeping.
And now and then a little wind
Ruffled the leaves, that her bright hair
Might please the sun, peering to see
Who slumbered there
Thus quietly:

And Beauty slept from hour to hour,
Her thin dreams keeping
Time to the movement of a flower,
Opening and closing, while the day
Dawned and climbed up the golden height,
And made his way
Even to night.

And when the eglantine was cool,
And dews were weeping,
One scaled the rusting garden-wall,
And startled Beauty, waking, turned
To see how Sirius-bright he came—
And the mind burned
In silver flame.

—Viola Gerard in the London Spectator.

The angry grocer ran swiftly round the corner and seized his fair customer by her arm.
"Do you know, madam," he blurted, "that your dog has eaten a pound of my best fresh country butter? I saw him do it a second ago!"
The fair customer relieved the grocer of her arm and regarded him coldly.
"I did not know it," she replied icily, "but if you are quite sure it was your best butter, that it is quite fresh, and that it really did come from the country, I don't think there is much reason to suppose it will do him any harm."—Vancouver Province.

The court sustained the contention of the defense attorney that the stuff sold in the place was not a soft drink and that the evidence did not sustain the charge.

A Swedish civil engineer has discovered that excess sulphite lye and lumber refuse left by the manufacture of chemical pulp can be combined to form a fuel which is said to burn more easily than coal, give no smoke and leave no slag residue. The lye, distilled by a new process, is absorbed by the waste lumber, sawdust, or wood shavings. When dry the mixture is shaped into briquettes or left in powder form for industrial use.

A new and practical use has been found for the umbrella. A young man accompanied by two girls, was observed walking along a Philadelphia street holding an umbrella at right angles to the sidewalk, pointed toward the curb. It had stopped raining, but there were still large puddles in the street. When automobiles dashed by they splashed muddy water five or six feet upon the sidewalk, which the young man bravely fended with the umbrella.

POLITICAL INTEREST NOW CENTERED ON PRIMARIES

California, Indiana, Oregon and West Virginia Will Have Sharp Contests For Presidential Preferences—Smith, Reed and Walsh Will Have a Contest in California—In West Virginia the Tussle Will Be Between Smith and Reed—In Indiana Hoover is to Attempt to Wrest the Delegation From Watson—Of the 806 Republican Delegates Chosen to Date Hoover's Managers Are Claiming 367—Smith's Manager Claims 468 of the 644 Democratic Delegates Actually Selected.

WASHINGTON, April 29—(AP)—With West Virginia added to the list of states where pitched battle are being waged for delegates to the national conventions, presidential candidates and their managers have eyes trained on the approaching primaries there as well as those in California, Oregon and Indiana.

Smith, Reed and Walsh are making bids for the democratic delegation from California where the primaries will be held Tuesday. They are lined up against each other also in Oregon where the voting comes May 18. In both these states Hoover has no opposition in the republican primaries.

In West Virginia, the tussle, so far as democrats are concerned, will be between Smith and Reed, with the show-down at the polls scheduled for May 29—Just two weeks before the opening of the Kansas City convention. Hoover will match his strength against another "favorite son" candidate in West Virginia, having fled in competition with Senator Goff.

While Hoover will attempt to wrest the Indiana republican delegation from Senator Watson in the May 8 primaries, none of the contenders for the democratic nomination from out of the state challenge the bid of Evans Woollen for his home state's delegates.

In the California voting Tuesday 26 democratic delegates are at stake, while Hoover whose home is out there, will pick up a block of 29 delegates. In Oregon the democratic primary prize is 10 votes, the republican 13. Indiana will have 33 delegates at Kansas City and 30 at Houston, while West Virginia's republican delegation, the last to be selected will have a voting strength of 19, the state's democratic delegates numbering 16.

In addition to four contested primaries, the month of May has on its political calendar those in Maryland, New Jersey, and South Dakota, where next to no contests have shaped up. By the end of the month all the 1089 republican convention delegates will have been chosen, as well as all but 136 of those who will have credentials at Houston.

Of the 806 republicans selected to date Hoover's managers are claiming 367, a figure that is disputed by his rivals. Lowden's supporters claim 239, including the nine named yesterday.

In California Tuesday, the New York governor will feel the full effect of an opposition in which his political foe of the 1924 convention days—McAdoo—has had a hand. McAdoo heads a slate of delegates pledged to Senator Walsh, of Montana, while at the top of the Smith slate is former Senator Phelan, who placed McAdoo in nomination at Madison Square Garden four years ago.

ANAYLSIS OF PRIMARY VOTES CAST IN BAY STATE

BOSTON, April 29—(AP)—Massachusetts voters availed themselves to the full of their first opportunity to express unrestricted preference for presidential candidates, analysis of the vote cast in last week's primary in the state shows. Approximately 111,000 of the 135,000 republicans who went to the polls wrote in the names of preferred candidates on the space provided in the ballot for the purpose. The proportion on the democratic side was even higher.

While the official returns from the primary have not been made available, the unofficial count gave Secretary of Commerce Hoover, who led all republican candidates by a wide margin, approximately 100,000 votes. About 11,000 other votes were divided among a number of other names. President Coolidge, who had issued a pre-election appeal that his name be not used, was second on the list with more than 7,000 votes.

Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York made a runaway race of the democratic preference vote, taking more than 40,000 of approximately 45,000 votes cast in the democratic primary. His nearest competitor, Senator Walsh, of Montana, had less than 300.

OFFICIALS PAY TRIBUTE TO MARTIN B. MADDEN

WASHINGTON, April 29—(AP)—The last session of the house for Martin B. Madden of Illinois was held today while his body lay there in state in front of the speaker's chair.

President Coolidge, the cabinet and other high officials of the government, along with the diplomatic corps, were in attendance to pay a parting tribute to the man who only two days ago was a power among them in the affairs of the nation.

The house, as usual, met at noon and Speaker Longworth rapped for order. Then, following the customary opening prayer, the republican floor leader, Representative Tilson of Connecticut, moved a recess be taken for the funeral service.

A silence fell over the historic hall and the senate and the justices of the supreme court were ushered to their seats on the front row only a few feet distant from the flower draped casket. The diplomats were the next to be seated followed by the chief of the army general staff, the chief of naval operations and the commandant of the marine corps.

The last to enter were President Coolidge and seven members of his cabinet. Mrs. Coolidge, accompanied by Frank W. Stearns of Boston, entered the presidential section of the gallery at almost the same time.

Mr. Madden's widow and daughter, Mrs. Paul Henderson, took seats to the left of the speaker' chair.

The service was opened with a prayer by the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, the chaplain of the house. The male quartet of the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church of Washington, sang the hymn "Some Day." The chaplain read the twenty-third psalm.

Two addresses, one by Vice President Dowes and the other by Representative Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee, the senior democratic member of the house appropriations committee, over which Madden presided as chairman, were delivered in eulogy of the dead leader.

After the services, the members of congress reverently filed by the casket. Afterward the body lay in state and the public was permitted to pay tribute.

Mr. Madden's body, accompanied by the family and a special congressional committee of honor, left for Hinsdale, Illinois, at 8 p. m., where burial will take place tomorrow afternoon.

WIND PREVENTED ATTEMPT AT NEW FLIGHT RECORD

CHICKASHA, Okla., April 29—(AP)—Fifteen degree cross-wind blowing at approximately 30 miles an hour today kept Joe Hart from making his second attempt to get into the air in an effort to better the world's record for sustained flight. If the former army pilot can get favorable weather, he will hop off at dawn tomorrow, he said tonight.

The plane, the Chickasha, is of the same model as the famous Lindbergh Spirit of St. Louis.

DUTCH STEAMER AGROUND ON NOVA SCOTIA COAST

SYDNEY, N. S., April 29—(AP)—The Dutch steamer, Callisto, 2660 tons, ran aground off Louisburg in fog this morning, messages to Vincent Mullins, agent for the marine and fisheries department advised.

The Canadian government steamer Montcalm is in the vicinity near Scatarie Island, but cannot approach the steamer because of the thick fog.

$10,000 FIRE IN PROVIDENCE RAILROAD STATION

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 29—(AP)—Damage estimated by railroad men at $10,000 resulted when fire started in the basement floor of the general office building of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company at Union station here tonight.

Providence firemen found themselves confronted by a stubborn smoke blaze which forced train despatchers, whose offices are in the building, to work in relays, relieving each other by traveling in and out of the building by ladders. No trains were delayed, it was reported.

The fire mushroomed through partitions as high as the third floor of the four story building, but the principal fire damage was confined to the basement floor, which is at street level at one side of the building. On that floor old records stored were destroyed, but current law and general agents' records on the upper floors were not damaged, it was believed by firemen and railroad officials.

The blaze, which started at 10:38, was declared under control at 11:30, but firemen remained for some time longer inspecting partitions for hidden fire.

MEXICO SEIZING PROPERTY OF THE CATHOLIC CHURCH

MEXICO CITY, April 29—(AP)—Five more presidential decrees were announced today converting Catholic property into government public schools. The former parish houses in six villages in the states of Nayarit, Guanajuato, Michoacan, Oaxaca and Morelos, were taken for this purpose.

The bureau of national property of the treasury has ordered a new nation-wide inventory of all church property of every kind, not only the contents of church buildings, but all of its real estate owned directly or indirectly, including itemization of parish houses, residences of church dignitaries, and other church "annexes."

The Mexican government for the past 50 years has considered all church property nationalized and as loaned for the use of the churches. The Catholic church has never agreed to this theory and the Mexican government has taken over at various times many of the properties of the church.

POINCARE GAINS STRENGTH IN THE FRENCH CHAMBER

PARIS, April 29.—(AP)—Premier Raymond Poincare today won a comfortable majority of at least 100 in the second round national election of the chamber of deputies. With 65 results lacking his supporters had won 305 seats as compared with 261 they occupied in the preceding chamber.

The radical and socialist parties combined have carried 227, as compared with the 285 held previously. On the basis of these returns the premier seems certain to have a sympathetic majority to continue his financial renomination program.

LINDBERGH FLYING FROM WASHINGTON TO ST. LOUIS

BELPRE, Ohio, April 29—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh flying a Curtiss Robin, landed here at 11:55 a. m. today and took off again at 12:10, after taking on 24 gallons of gas and a gallon of oil. He was accompanied by W. B. Robertson, president of the Curtiss Airplane Manufacturing company.

They advised field attaches here they were on the way to St. Louis from Washington.

Indignation Meeting of B. & M. Employes

Union Leaders Were Unable to Restrain Members—Meeting Was in an Uproar.

BOSTON, April 29.—(AP)—A resolution charging the management of the Boston and Maine with "injury and abuse" of its workers was adopted here today by 1,000 members of six brotherhoods operating employes of the road despite efforts of union leaders to kill the motion.

The resolve, totally unexpected by union leaders, fell like a bomb shell in a meeting which had been called to endorse the action of the six unions represented in recently forming a committee for the betterment of working conditions.

Harmony between the workers and management of the road had been the keynote of several union officers' speeches until an unidentified employe took the floor and began reading his resolution. Before he had been reading a minute the chairman's gavel banged and the resolution was ruled "out of order."

Instantly the meeting was in an uproar and union leaders, declaring they feared serious trouble, were forced to permit its adoption.

Efficiency programs, "wholesale discharging of old and faithful employes," lengthened hours, "needless rules and regulations," and the fact that "repeated supplications for a fairer and more humane spirit of toleration and co-operation have been met with repeated injury and abuse," were among the grievances cited in the resolution.

WOMEN TEACHING MEN NEW TRICKS IN POLITICS

CHICAGO, April 29—(AP)—Miss Belle Sherwin, who has been interested in equal suffrage since many regarded voting as "not nice" for women, believes that women are teaching men new tricks at their old game of "playing politics."

Miss Sherwin is serving her third term as president of the National League of Women Voters. She was re-elected at the league's convention here.

Women are wholly responsible for the present practice of bringing candidates together to speak from the same platform, she remarked; they popularized the questionnaire and they constantly demand that campaigns be conducted in the open.

It was a difficult thing to convince men that their mothers, wives, and daughters should have a part in suffrage affairs, Miss Sherwin said. It was more difficult to get women to vote, and most difficult of all to convince them they should study political parties and issues.

"One would give up if one did not know that is the way the world advances," she remarked wearily. It had been a tedious day; so many women wanted to talk. Keeping them on parliamentary tracks had been wearing.

Leisure could be Miss Sherwin's, as she is one of the few heirs to the fortune left by her father, the late Henry A. Sherwin, Cleveland paint manufacturer. Her life, however, since she left Wellesley college in 1880 has been active as a teacher and a social and educational worker.

TROUBLE IN WORCESTER OVER FASCISTI PARADE

WORCESTER, Mass., April 29.—(AP)—Sixteen police officers gathered hastily at police headquarters and from central posts in the city prevented what might have been a serious outbreak when anti-facisti sympathizers tried to demoritize fascisti paraders who were marching to the Church of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel to attend a memaroal mass today.

Two men, said to be anti-facisti sympathizers, were arrested charged with disturbing the peace. One of them the police said they found four large stones. He told police, it is said, he intended throwing them at the paraders. The men arrested were Ernesto Ricci, 36, and Ignatio Cianl, 31.

When the marchers, about 400 in number who gathered to pay tribute to memory of Marshal Diaz, started to the church they were accompanied by several policemen, the protection of which they had requested. The disturbance did not occur until a short distance from the church. Here the band started to play the facisti marching song and the men arrested, police charge, rushed at the leader of the band demanding that he stop the tune. The leader kept marching and, the men grabbed him and used abusive language, police say. Hundreds were quickly attracted but the police dispersed the crowd and spirited the two prisoners away.

EARTHQUAKES CONTINUE TO SHAKE TOWNS IN BULGARIA

VIENNA, April 29—(AP)—With relentless frequency, but fortunately with little resulting loss of life, earthquokes today again shook many towns in Bulgaria. At Borisovgrad, already laid waste by previous upheavals, the quake today was accompanied by a violent hail storm which destroyed all remaining vestiges of vegetation and killed many cattle.

The shocks, so violent that their reverberations were felt in a mild form in Vienna, were accompanied in some instances, according to Bulgarian dispatches, by terrifying phenomena such as the sudden appearance of miniature craters and small lakes. The continuous oscillation of the earth with terrifying subterranean roars has kept the distraught, shelterless, half-naked population in a state bordering on madness.

Successive shocks in the last twenty-four hours have been felt at Philippopolis, Tapazli, Tcherpan and Stara Zagora.

HEAVY SNOW STORM IN THE VICINITY OF ROCHESTER, N. Y.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 29—(AP)—Hundreds of residents in outlying districts east of this city were virtually cut off from communication with the outside world today following one of the most severe snow storms of the season which swept through the territory during the past twenty-four hours.

Hundreds of telephone and telegraph poles were snapped off by the combination of high winds and a heavy wet snow and maintenance gangs of the Rochester Telephone corporation and the Postel Telegraph company were at work today re-establishing lines of communication.

Despite the warm weather which followed the severe storm, three inches of snow was still reported on the ground in the affected district.

Storm in the South Has Spent Itself

General Improvement is Noted in Flood Conditions in Florida.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 29—(AP)—Bright warm sunshine today brought relief to the southland that for a week has been beleaguered by the elements.

A check of the fruit belt of Georgia showed that only a light frost fell in the lowlands, and damage if any was believed to be slight, while through the flooded districts of the southern part of the state, general improvement was noted, and turbulent streams of Florida were reported subsiding.

In Alabama, the Tombigbee river continued to rise at Demopolis where 700 persons have been made homeless, but the crest of the flood is expected to pass tomorrow, and officials said damage in that section would be slight.

General improvement was noted throughout the Altamaha, Satilla, Little, Flint and Withlocoochee river valleys in Georgia where the flood has concentrated, and along the Apalachicola and Chocawtchee rivers in Florida, where several thousand persons had been made homeless.

Communications, paralyzed Friday when terrific windstorms swept the south, practically were normal again with regular schedules in effect on all railroads, some places had been isolated nearly a week.

REPAIRING HIGHWAYS IN PENN. AFTER THE STORM

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 29—A warm sun today greeted state highway workers and communication line repairmen as they labored to restore roads and telephone and telegraph lines to normalcy after one of the worst April snow storms on record.

Blanketed under the belated snow and sleet for three days, cities and towns isolated from the outside world when wires and poles were torn down and roads blocked found themselves again in touch with their neighbors. However several still are without any means of telephone or telegraph communication and news of the outside world is being brought in by mail.

Altoona and Johnston were receiving news from the Associated Press by mail from Pittsburgh. Williamsport, entirely cut off Saturday, was today connected up by way of Buffalo and Elmira. A wire on the Pennsylvania railroad was put through late Saturday to that city.

Most of the highways blocked by huge snow drifts were opened again today. In Somerset county on Route 31 between Jones Mills and Somerset drifts ten feet high still confront highway workers who are trying to clear the road.

The western and southern sections, apparently the hardest hit by the storm generally were accessible today as roads between Washington and West Alexander, Waynesburg and Washington county line, Waynesburg and West Virginia line, Chambersburg and Gettysburg were opened for one-way traffic. Normal conditions will be restored by tomorrow, it is expected.

The state highway department reported falling poles, electric and telephone and telegraph wires snapped, under the weight of snow and by high wind proved greater obstacles than snow and ice.

FLOODS STILL MENACE WESTERN MARYLAND

BALTIMORE, April 29.—(AP)—Melting snow from mountain streams pouring into the upper Potomac river continued to menace sections of western Maryland and northern West Virginia tonight with the first spell of clear weather today.

Reports from Hagerstown said that the Potomac had risen 13 feet at Harpers Ferry, W. Va., during the past 12 hours, while the town of Williamsport, Md., messaged that the stream was continually rising at that point where a 12-foot level had been reached.

Residents of the mountain cities have dug themselves out of the drifts; some of which were reported to have reached a depth of five feet or more, resulting in the ruin, farmers reported, of the peach and apple crops.

CONGRESS FACED BY MAJOR PIECES OF LEGISLATION

WASHINGTON, April 29—(AP)—Congress will wrestle this week with two major pieces of legislation—the Swing Johnson Boulder Canyon dam bill and the McNary-Haugen farm relief measure—with considerable speculation on their chances of becoming law this session.

In the senate the fight which started on the Boulder Dam bill last week promises to continue without abatement until Thursday when, unless the bill should pass—it will be displaced to give the tax bill the right of way.

Up until that time it is expected that Senator Johnson, republican, California, will continue his battle in behalf of the Boulder Canyon proposal with Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, maintaining with equal vigor the opposition that his state from the first has voiced against the bill.

The house will resume debate tomorrow on the farm measure where it was dropped Friday afternoon when adjournment was taken out of respect to Martin Madden of Illinois.

In order to make up for lost time it is probable that at least two night sessions will be held to expedite discussion, probably tomorrow and Tuesday night. If these should take place it will be the first time this session that the house has worked after nightfall.

House leaders expect a final vote on the farm bill late in the week with indications that the measure again will be able to muster sufficient strength to obtain another trip to the white house where its welcome is problematical.

CARRIED DIVORCE DECREE SECRETLY THREE YEARS

CHICAGO, April 29—(AP)—A marital tangle with the "husband" carrying a secretly obtain divorce decree for five years without arousing his "wife's" suspicions, has been brought to the attention of the circuit court. Those involved are Mrs. Laura Mix and Wellington S. Mix.

Mrs. Mix answered a telephone call from Mix's attorney last November. What she heard caused her to file a bill for review in which she seeks to set aside the husband's decree.

The bill sets forth she had filed a suit for separate maintenance against her husband in 1920 and that he filed a cross bill in which he charged desertion and asked for a divorce. He persuaded her to drop prosecution of her bill but continued with his own and received a divorce, she charges.

NEW YORK TO WELCOME THE BREMEN CREW TODAY

Formal Welcome Will Continue Tuesday—Yesterday the Three-Man Crew Remained in Seclusion—Among Those to Receive the Fliers Yesterday Was Patrick Cardinal Hayes—The Airmen Were Guests of Mayor Walker at the Lambs' Club Last Night—Return Flight to Europe in the Bremen is a Possibility.

NEW YORK, April 29—(AP)—Only for church services and participation in a frolic of theatrical stars did the three-man crew of the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen come out of seclusion today from clamoring thousands of admirers, while official New York massed its facilities for a formal welcome tomorrow and Tuesday.

In a luxurious suite, in the Ritz-Carlton hotel, where they had come on their return from Washington Saturday night, Captain Hermann Koehl, Major James Fitzmaurice and Baron Gunther von Huenefeld for most of today were carefully guarded from the milling throngs they have attracted. For hours, however, they received friends informally and submitted to the usual newspaper interviews.

Out of a day which failed to develop any extended plans for the activity of the airmen during their stay in America, came the possibility that Major Fitzmaurice, dapper commander in the air forces of the Irish Free State, would quit military service and enter the field of commercial flying.

"All things are possible and we're getting old," the major said when his attention was called to cable dispatches from Ireland intimating he would resign his command for commercial work. He failed, however, to add details of his plans.

Fitzmaurice, who did most of the talking with newspapermen this afternoon, would not be any more definite about the possibility of a return flight to Europe in the Bremen beyond referring to his statement last night that the adventure is a probability.

When he was asked if he'd chance another cross-seas flight again, Fitzmaurice replied: "Yes, if it's in the interests of aviation."

The length of their stay in America has not been decided, Fitzmaurice said, although he and his companions indicated again their determination to complete by air their Baldonnel-New York flight, interrupted on isolated Greenly Island in Labrador two weeks ago.

"We always operate together," the major said, explaining plans to have the trio fly the Bremen from its present island prison to Mitchel field. The trip to Greenly will be made at the close of a reception by President Coolidge in Washington Wednesday and additional ceremonies in New York the latter part of the week.

All three reflected confidence of adventurers as they talked. Fitzmaurice spiked a story that he had said before the take-off at Baldonnel that they didn't have an even chance to win over the North Atlantic. "I'm very fond of life," the Irishman said, "and I'm not a lunatic."

Describing "the impressions" of the trio of New York, Fitzmaurice paid his respects to Mayor James J. Walker and the police department. "I wonder how he worked it all," the major said of the mayor's arrangements for their receptions. And in the same connection he said he had been saved the buttons of his uniform from souvenir hunters because "there were too many Irish policemen around."

Reporters concentrated on the baron and Captain Koehl after their questioning of Fitzmaurice. Koehl said practically nothing, but the baron, monocle set tight in his eye, promised to write a poem covering his impressions of the city.

Among those to receive the fliers today was Patrick Cardinal Hayes, of New York. The cardinal greeted the airmen at his home this morning, immediately after which, Fitzmaurice and Koehl attended mass in St. Patrick's cathedral, and Baron von Huenefeld attended services at St. Peter's Lutheran church. There the baron addressed the children's Sunday school class.

The airmen were guests of Mayor Walker at the Lambs club gambol tonight, while earlier in the evening they were invited to dinner at the home of H. Schuengel of the North German Lloyd lines, for which the baron is publicity agent in Europe.

While the fliers passed today in comparative quiet they will be subjected tomorrow to a welcome paralleling those extended to other air heroes and other notables on their arrival in America.

On the municipal tug Macom the airmen will be taken down New York bay tomorrow while harbor craft stage a reception such as that accorded Colonel Lindbergh. Then will come a formal reception at city hall and a subsequent parade, with 10,000 troops participating up Fifth avenue. A wreath will be laid at the Eternal Light, the city's memorial to its war dead. Tuesday night the aviators will be guests of honor at a municipal dinner at the Hotel Commodore, where they will receive the tribute of at least 2,000 persons.

Fitzmaurice and Koehl will meet their wives when the liner Dresden arrives at 9 o'clock tomorrow. Plans provided that the women would be taken from the liner during the harbor pageant and taken to the Battery for the start of the parade and reception.

TWO PASSENGERS AND PILOT INJURED IN PLANE MISHAP

ARMONK, N. Y., April 29—(AP)—The pilot and two passengers were injured today when a Travelair plane, carrying passengers from Babbett Airways field, crashed after striking a downward current.

Leo Teletsky of Spuyten Duyvil, N. Y., the pilot, escaped with lacerations of the face. The two passengers, Robert W. Molk of New York and John Pennington of New Canaan, Conn., were said at a Mt. Kisco hospital to have possible internal injuries.

Witnesses said the plane appeared to strike a downward current when about 400 feet above the field. It turned completely over and landed upright, but bounced and crashed into a fence.

PILOT AND TWO PASSENGERS WERE KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

EUREKA, Cal., April 29—(AP)—Three men were killed in an airplane crash two miles north of here late today, said messages received by authorities here. The messages said the plane was owned and operated by William Spaletta, 30, of Eureka, and that his passengers were two Eureka men as yet unidentified.

TWO YOUTHS WERE BURNED TO DEATH IN AN AIRPLANE

COLUMBIA STATION, Ohio, April 29—(AP)—Two young men were burned to death when their airplane went into a tail spin and fell in flames near here today. They were Joseph Miller of Laporte and Myron Kelly of Elyria. Both were about 23 years old. The bodies were practically cremated.

THREE MEN WERE KILLED WHEN AIRPLANE CRASHED

DENVER, Colo., April 29—Three men were killed here this afternoon when an airplane crashed near Lowry field. The dead are: H. E. Larue, pilot, Denver; Loren Craven, Littleton, Colo., and an unidentified man from Brighton, Colo.

Witnesses said the plane went into a tail spin when about 200 feet in the air and burst into flames shortly before the crash.

COMMERCIAL AIR SERVICE BETWEEN BERLIN AND PARIS

BERLIN, April 29—(AP)—The longest commercial air service in Europe covered in non-stop flight was inaugurated today over the Berlin-Paris route by the Lufthansa and Farman companies. Planes left the terminal cities simultaneously at noon, the German end being served by the largest German land plane, which was recently named "Hermann Koehl" in honor of the Lufthansa pilot who guided the Bremen.

The planes cover in a flight of five and a half hours the distance for which express trains require 17 hours.

UNEMPLOYMENT AMONG UNION MEN STATIONARY

WASHINGTON, April 29—(AP)—Unemployment among trade union members as reports dto the American Federation of Labor has remained practically stationary during the first quarter of 1928 and amounts to about 18 per cent of the membership.

President Green of the federation made the calculation today for publication in the forthcoming issue of the Federationist, basing the returns upon reports from 24 representative cities.

At the end of March, the unemployment among union members ranged from 7 per cent in San Antonio to 36 per cent in Cleveland, the 18 per cent figure given being an average of the cities. Milwaukee had a low union unemployment figure of 8 per cent; and Chicago and St. Louis were each rated at 12 per cent; Cleveland had the highest percentage, 36; and the New York percentage was 23.

Boston union unemployment was given as 20 per cent.

LOUIS G. KAUFMAN HAS WEDDED DOROTHY DILLEY

NEW YORK, April 29—(AP)—The marriage of Louis G. Kaufman, Jr., son of a wealthy and socially prominent banker, to Dorothy Dilley, musical comedy dancer, became known today. The ceremony took place in Connecticut, March 9, with the knowledge and consent of the bridegroom's parents, the elder Mr. Kaufman said today.

The bride's engagement in a musical show precluded a honeymoon and the couple returned to New York. It was said she would retire from the stage as soon as her present contract expires.

This was the second son of the banker to marry an actress. In December, 1924, Gravaraet Young Kaufman was married to Mae Daw, 19 year old Follies beauty. She retired to private life after her marriage.

FOUR BOYS WERE BURNED TO DEATH IN AKRON, OHIO

AKRON, O., April 29—(AP)—Becoming tired of a marble game they had been playing behind a shed here today, five boys sought other diversion and turned to matches. One was struck and its flame exploded a 5[illegible] gallon drum of benzine which resulted in the burning to death of four of the boys and serious injury to the fifth one.

The dead are Frederick Woditly 12, Albert Carter 10, Leman Carter 5 and Charles Carter 14. The Carters were brothers. Leslie Bush, the injured boy, is expected to recover.

Persons attracted by the noise of the explosion found the five boys writhing on the ground, their clothing afire. Several partly burned match stems were found near the shed.

DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL COMMITTEE MEETS TODAY

WASHINGTON, April 29—(AP)—Selection of a keynoter for the Houston democratic convention, is up before the arrangements committee of the democratic national committee, which meets here tomorrow for the first time since it was appointed last January.

Jesse H. Jones, of Houston, who is taking a leading part in the arrangements for the convention in his home city, is on the ground, along with other members of the committee.

There seems little doubt among the members that the keynoter will be Claude G. Bowers, New York editor.

14 YEAR OLD GIRL ARRESTED AFTER HER ELOPEMENT

PITTSFIELD, Mass., April 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Theresa Watson, who eloped yesterday with William B. Watson, 21 year old carpenter, was arrested today with her husband on charges sworn out by her father, Rhody Gavin. The daughter, who posed as a girl of 16, is only 14, her father insists. He charges the young husband with abduction.

WILLIMANTIC, April 29—About 120 members and friends of Willimantic lodge, 1092, Independent order of B'nai B'rith gathered at a banquet and social in Odd Fellows' hall this evening in observance of the first anniversary of the founding of the lodge. The excellent menu included a complete course of chicken. President Joseph Peck acted as toastmaster and introduced as the speaker of the evening, David A. Mossman, editor of the New York Jewish Tribune and delegate from the grand lodge of B'nai B'rith. Among distinguished members of the order who were guests were Nestor Dreyfus of New London, district deputy and Max Hunover of Norwich. Town and city officials who attended the celebration included Mayor and Mrs. Charles A. Gates, Town Clerk and Mrs. Frank P. Fenton and Alderman and Mrs. William E. Jackson. The banquet was followed by informal entertainment and dancing to music by Van's Dance orchestra with Harry D. Rosen as director. The anniversary program was in charge of a committee comprising Joseph Horne, chairman, N. A. Knasin, Ben Eisenberg and Harry D. Rosen. The officers of the lodge are: Joseph Peck, president; Harry Kaufman, vice president; Hyman Chasen, secretary and Ben Eisenberg, treasurer. The local order now has a membership of 40.

St. John's Commandery No. 11, Knights Templar, will tender a banquet and reception Monday evening to the Grand Commander Right Eminent Sir James P. Mustard of this city and his associate officers and members of the Grand Commandery, Knights Templar of Connecticut. The welcome will be delivered by Eminent Sir Richard E. Dodge, commander of St. John's Commandery No. 11, and Eminent Sir George E. Hinman, past commander, will be toastmaster. The address will be by Rev. Harry S. McCready, pastor of St. Lawrence Congregational church, Portland, Me., and member of St. John's Commandery No. 11. Most Eminent Sir George W. Vallery, grand master of the grand encampment of the United States will be guest of honor.

WILLIMANTIC SWINGS OVER TO DAYLIGHT SCHEDULE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 29—One hour's sleep was lost overnight in making the time adjustment to confirm with the daylight saving program which went into effect this morning. This lost hour will not be regained until next fall when time is again readjusted to standard time. Church services were held one hour earlier than shown on public clocks and Monday all industrial, transportation, school and other activities will be conducted on the so-called daylight saving schedule. This applies to retail mercantile houses also. In compliance with the law railroad and transportation bus lines will operate on standard time but leaving and starting schedules have been advanced one hour. For the first time in the history of the New Haven railroad the Air Line and Providence divisions, having terminals in Willimantic, do not appear on the new timetable. This is due to the fact that all passenger service has been removed from these divisions in or out of this city.

The new table shows ten trains leaving Willimantic on week days and eight on Sundays, equally divided on the Midland division to Boston and the Hartford division to Hartford. The leaving time of passenger trains, effective today, follows: Midland division—Willimantic to Boston, daily, 6:58, 9:05 a. m. 12:06 (except Sunday) 2:35 and 6:13 p. m. Hartford division—Willimantic to Hartford, daily 6:05 a. m. (except Sunday) and 10:17 a. m.; 1:07, 5:07 and 7:09 p. m. The Central Vermont maintains its two passenger trains, south, and north bound, for Palmer and Brattleboro, leaving at 5:57 a. m. and 4:50 p. m.; and south bound for Norwich and New London, leaving at 12:35 p. m. and 4:17 p. m. There are no Sunday schedules. The six lines of motor coaches will operate just one hour earlier than existing schedules. Although clocks will not be changed, business at the town building will be conducted in accordance with daylight saving plan.

The Willimantic Service Relations council, an organization of employes of the Willimantic post office was refested at a meeting Saturday with the following officers: Daniel A. Sullivan, chairman; Dennis F. Haggerty, vice chairman; Maurice M. King, secretary-treasurer. An executive committee is to be appointed. The organization, having a membership comprising the regular carriers, clerks and substitutes as well as the rural and star route carriers, is for the promotion of co-operation with the post office department in maintaining the efficiency and social relations of the employes. The Willimantic council was organized with a membership of 30.

The three-day conference of superintendents of the schools of Connecticut will open at the Normal school building here Monday with Dr. Albert B. Maremith, commissioner of education, presiding. The sessions open with a dinner meeting at 6:30 o'clock Monday evening when the talk will be given by Howell Cheney of South Manchester on the subject, Some Shortcomings of American Education.

In order to avoid the penalty of an extra dollar Windham dog owners have been rushing to the office of Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton the past few days for licenses. POETRY FOR THE WIDEAWAKES

The Landing of the Pilgrims.

The breaking waves dashed high
On a stern and rockbound coast.
And the woods against the stormy sky
Their giant branches tossed.

And the heavy night hung dark
The hills and waters o'er.
When a band of exiles moored their bark
On a wild New England shore.

Not as the conqueror comes,
They the true-hearted came;
Not with the roll of the stirring drums
And the trumpet that speaks of fame.

Not as the flying come,
In silence and in fear;
They shook the depths of the desert gloom
With their hymns of lofty cheer.

Amid the storm they sang,
And the stars heard, and the sea;
And the sounding aisles of the dim woods rang
To the anthems of the free!

The ocean eagle soared
From his nest by the white wave's foam;
And the rocking pine of the forest roared—
This was their welcome home.

There were men with hoary hair
Amidst that pilgrim band—
Why had they come to wither there,
Far from their childhood's land?

There was woman's fearless eye,
Lit by her deep love's truth;
There was manhood's brow serenely high
And the fiery heart of youth.

What sought they thus afar?
Bright jewels of the mines?
The wealth of seas, the spoils of war?
They sought a faith pure shrine.

Aye, call it holy ground,
The soil where first they trod;
They left unstained what there they found—
Freedom to worship God.

—By Felicia D. Hemans.

Perhaps.

Perhaps the birds are little ones,
Whose souls were once on earth;
Perhaps their joy to music runs
In trilling songs of mirth.
Perhaps they play in Heaven high,
With all the angels there;
Perhaps they really never die,
But wander in the air.
It may be they will hark to you,
If you make sweet their way;
Perhaps God's mysteries they know,
In Heaven's endless day.

— Dr. Rixford J. Lincoln.

Kith and Kin.

I am the voice of the voiceless;
Through me the dumb shall speak,
Till the deaf world's ear be made to hear
The cry of the wordless weak.

The same force formed the sparrow
That fashioned Man, the King;
The God of the Whole gave a spark of soul
To each furred and feathered thing.
And I am my brother's keeper,
And I will fight his fight
And speak the word for beast and bird,
Till the world shall set things right.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

All living things, nor those the least
That wing the air, or wander dumb—
Thy suffering creatures, bird and beast—
Have need to cry, "Thy Kingdom come!"

JAMES RHOADES.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES

As all of the Wide-Awakes know, the flag of the United States has 13 stripes—7 red and 6 white. The stripes, horizontal, alternate, and a union, which consists of white stars of five points on a blue field, placed in the upper quarters next to the staff, and extending to the lower edge of the fourth stripe from the top, comprise the flag. The union now contains 48 stars. Memorial day will soon be here and, unless people who will display the flag on that day are familiar with the flag rules, disrespect may unintentionally be shown the flag. For the benefit of those who may not be entirely familiar with the rules governing the display of the flag, the following cautions are listed:

Do not permit disrespect to be shown to the flag of the United States.

Do not dip the flag of the United States to any person or any thing.

The regimental color, state flag or organization or institutional flag will render this honor.

Do not display the flag of the United States with the union down except as a signal of distress.

Do not place any other flag or pennant above or to the right of the flag of the United States.

Do not let the flag of the United States touch the ground, or trail in the water.

Do not place any object or emblem of any kind on or above the flag of the United States.

Do not use the flag as drapery in any form whatever. Use bunting of blue, white and red.

Do not fasten the flag in such manner as will permit it to be easily torn.

Do not drape the flag over the hood, top, sides or back of a vehicle, or of a railroad train or boat. When the flag is displayed on a motor car, the staff should be affixed firmly to the chassis.

Do not use the flag as a covering for a ceiling.

Do not use the flag as a portion of a costume or of an athletic uniform.

Do not embroider it upon cushions or handkerchiefs or print it on paper napkins or boxes.

Do not put lettering of any kind upon the flag.

Do not use the flag in any form of advertising nor fasten an advertising sign to a pole from which the flag of the United States is flying.

Marion ——, Killingly—I received the prize book. I want to thank you for it. I've started reading it and find it very interesting.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

What I Do

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about what I do when I come home from school. When I come home from school I make a dam. First I put a board across the water; then I put on some stones, bricks and dirt. Generally it breaks. Then I have to run and get dirt. When I go in for supper I have to leave it very strong, because if I don't it will break before I come back. After supper I go out again and make it better for the next day. But when I come back the next day what do you think has happened? Well, if you don't know, I will tell you. It is broken. Then I have to make it all over again. Did you ever make a dam when you were a little boy?

On my vacation I went down to my friend's house. There was a big pile of dirt. We made a place like a ditch and a dam at the bottom. We got a lot of water and put it in the ditch. It ran very slow down to the dam. It did not stay there very long, because it sank into the ground. After that we made some bridges. I would make some bridges that were of boards. I would cover it up with dirt. Then I would say to my friend, "Walk on the bridge and see how strong it is." He walked on it and it broke and he fell down in the dirt.

My Sister's Birthday.

Dear Uncle Jed—This is the second time I have written to you. I am going to tell you of my sister's birthday. Her name is Jeanette. She was one year old Sunday, April 22. She received many presents. In the afternoon her cousins, uncles and aunts came up. She had a birthday cake with one candle in the middle. My mother hasn't cut the cake yet.

Africa.

Dear Uncle Jed—Now I am going to tell you about my make-believe voyage to Africa.

We are leaving New York harbor to sail to Africa. We sail over the Atlantic ocean, through the Strait of Gibraltar, and into the Mediterranean sea. It becomes warmer as we go toward the south. The southern countries of Europe are warmed by winds from the Sahara desert.

As we passed through the strait, we could see the high peaks of the Atlas Mts. We are anxious to see the Sahara desert which means an "uninhabited wilderness." People do live here. Each oasis has its settlement. Most of the land is a vast plateau. The Sahara winds are dry winds. We travel on camel caravans, over the sand. The products of the caravans might be ostrich plumes, ivory, dates and salt.

We are now to travel through the strangest of all countries, Egypt. We sail down the Nile river. We see fields of wheat, sugar cane, cotton, rice and corn. The fertile soil extends as far as the Nile river which rises from June to October. The dams hold back the water until it is needed. On the banks of the Nile we see camels, pyramids and palm trees. The Sphinx was believed to ask questions which no one could answer. It is an enormous figure of rock, as high as a five-story house.

Let us visit Port Said on the Suez canal. We pass through an artificial waterway in the desert. This canal has shortened the trade route to Asia.

Let us find the source of the Nile river. We find ourselves in the Abyssinia Mts. The Nile river rises in Lake Victoria, one of the largest lakes in the world. Great fish jump up in the water, and the natives standing on the rocks, spear them with harpoons.

Our next travels are to be in the Sudan, the home of the black people. This is a vast territory. The climate is very warm. We see large ant-hills, some as high as thirty feet. We have to be careful of the wild beasts, insects, and snakes. The Niger river is important here. Lake Chad is in the Sudan. The ivory, gold and slave coasts border on the Gulf of Guinea.

The sun is shining directly overhead. We are in the Congo valley, through which the equator passes. This is the true home of the negroes. There are many tribes. The people have flat noses, thick lips, wooly hair. They are very superstitious. Many have scars on their faces which tells to what tribe each belongs. They are very fond of jewelry. Many of the huts have funny roofs and are thatched with straw. The hair of these people is made into various shapes. The chief products are rubber, palm oil, and ivory. The jungle is the home of all kinds of beasts. The climate is unhealthful for white people. As we near the southern part of Africa the climate becomes cooler. We see Victoria Falls in the Zambezi on the eastern coast. The water here falls a greater distance than that at Niagara. In the Transvaal colony we see plantations of cotton, and tobacco. The farms produce wheat, corn, hardy grains, fruits and vegetables. Much of the land is used for grazing. Sheep, goats, cattle and ostriches are raised here. A great supply of the world's diamonds come from the Kimberly mines. Gold is mined extensively in Johannesburg.

A Picnic.

Dear Uncle Jed—One morning in July it was so hot that we children decided to have a picnic. We first had to ask our mothers for permission to go and they agreed to it. So we started and found a nice place for lunch. But the boys teased us to go farther. So we went. We reached a field and picked some flowers. Then we were in the woods.

Everybody was getting hungry so we decided to eat while the boys played ball. Just as we were eating, the boys hit the hornets nest and all the hornets came running after us. They chased us so far we didn't know the way back. So the girls started to cry and said they were tired. The boys went and explored the place and found the way to go out. We followed the boys and finally got home, tired and hungry.

Feeding Birds.

Dear Uncle Jed—This is the first time I have written to you. I am going to tell you what I did with my Christmas tree this year. The ground being soft enough, I planted it in my back yard, instead of throwing it away. I trimmed it with pieces of bread and other foods. Thus our little winter birds were given a little Christmas cheer of their own. Next year if the ground is frozen, I will attach a suet bag on the tree. I hope all the Wide Awakes will make their Christmas tree act as a feeding station for the birds next winter.

The Beehive.

Dear Uncle Jed—I thank you very much for the two books. I like them too. I am trying to write another story to the Wide Awakes. The name of my story is The Beehive.

One summer day, our cousins from New York came over to spend the summer vacation. I told my cousin, that in our woods there were a lot of flowers. She told me to go with her for a while, and pick the beautiful flowers.

We went and picked our arms full of flowers. On our way back we came to a beehive. I picked up a rock and threw it at the hive, and all we heard was, Buzz, Buzz, Buzz. The next thing I knew was that I was on the ground with bees stinging all around me. We watched the bees, and they went back to their hive, and all at once a larger number of bees came.

They came on our flowers, and went back; and just before they got to the hive, they hung all in a bunch upside down, with their feet clinging to each other. Then, one by one, they marched into the hive like soldiers.

Then my cousin and I went home and told the other children of our adventure.

Fooled His Neighbor.

Dear Uncle Jed—This is an original story of what I have seen and heard. One morning last week I listened to the blue jays as they chattered and scolded about their aunts. They live in the green forest outside the city and come to our yard for food.

All birds are fond of eats and often play tricks on each other. Once as Mr. Jay was eating bread, he thought, "I can't eat any more just now. I will hide this large piece," and he flew to the rose arbor, dropped the bread in a hole in the ground beside a stone, turned, picked up a bill full of pine needles, covered it over and flew away.

Up in the pine tree sat another jay watching and waiting for a turn at the eats. Down to the ground he flew, perched on the stone, then helped himself to the hidden food and started for a place of safety.

I think Mr. Jay must have felt foolish when he returned to find none there.

The Birds.

Dear Uncle Jed: Yesterday just before going to school, I heard a twittering outside of my window. I looked out and what do you suppose it was? It was the twittering of sparrows and starlings near the fence eating. Some sang while some ate. Soon they had finished and flew away. I'll never forget the music they make.

An Exciting Afternoon.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first story written to you. One summer afternoon just as the sun was setting, my pal and I went fishing, out in a rowboat.

Having caught an amount of good sized fish we decided to pull our lines in.

My pal had a line on one side of the boat and a pole on the other side. Being busy with his lines my pal did not notice his pole warbling. Seeing the pole give a sudden dart toward the water I grabbed it and pulled it with a fish on the end. Looking at it we thought it was a snake. On closer observation it was an eel. It started to get out of the boat. We tried and tried to put him in a bag but always with failure. At last with great effort we put him in. He was a huge fish about three feet long.

After the battle with the eel we pulled up anchor and lines and rowed to shore. Gathering up our fish we proceeded to go home. Having eaten supper we went to bed where we soon fell asleep and dreamed in slumberland about our exciting afternoon.

His First Letter.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written you. I live out in the country. I have read stories in the Norwich Bulletin for which children are trying to get interesting books. I had time Sunday afternoon to write.

Out here in the country warmer weather has started. Plowing, planting, etc., has started. People already have tomatoes and cabbage in their homes but in a box, ready to plant in warmer weather. That is all I can think of to write.

Our Club's Bazaar.

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you and the Wide-Awakes will enjoy my story.

There was only three dollars and fifty cents in the treasury. We wanted to have more money in the treasury so we decided to have a bazaar.

It was held two nights at the home of one of the members. Six cushions were made especially for us. Sponge cakes, chocolate cakes, cup cakes and cookies were on the pastry booth. Fudge, kisses, butter-scotch and caramels were on the candy booth. On the ice-cream booth there were Eskimo pies. We had a variety of sandwiches on the sandwich booth. There were also surprise packages and a flower booth. The admission fee was ten cents for adults and five cents for children. The bazaar was a success. Everything was sold.

The Porimse of Regulus

Uncle Jed: This is a composition that I wrote in school. The name of it is: The Promise of Regulus.

Many years ago, Rome fought long and bloody wars with Carthage a city in northern Africa. One of the most famous men at that time was Regulus, a Roman general. He forced the Carthagenians to beg for peace, but his terms were so hard that the Carthagenians would not submit. They soon captured Regulus and held him as a prisoner.

He was thrown into prison and received the most cruel tortures. But fortune soon changed. The Carthagenians had to beg for peace. They sent Regulus to Rome to arrange a treaty of peace and to ask an exchange of prisoners. They made him promise that if he did not obtain the treaty, he would return to Carthage.

He went to Rome and marched boldly up to the senate and said: "I am no longer a Roman but a prisoner. Do not exchange prisoners with the Carthagenians. You have thousands of Carthagenian prisoners and the Carthagenians have only a few Roman prisoners." He knew that for these words he would be put immediately to death. He returned to Carthage and was put to death with the most cruel tortures. But like all brave men he preferred death to life with dishonor. Such men as he made up ancient Rome.

Made a Cake.

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written you for almost a year. I didn't mean to wait so long but time flies so when one is going to school. I like school and I still like spelling best of all my studies.

My dad is a lieutenant in the United States navy. He has been away for three years and his sea duty will be over soon. Then we will have him home with us for two years. He already has his orders for shore duty at the submarine base. We children are all looking forward to that time and I guess my mother and grandmother are too.

I made a cake Saturday, it was a cocoanut cake and it turned out real good. I never tried that recipe before.

For all it has been so cold our honeysuckle vine has quite large leaves on it and the rose bushes are beginning to show green.

We have ten downy little chickens and I love to watch them and watch the mother hen scratch for them and hear her talk to them.

We are having a vacation of one week. I have something planned for every day. I expect to be very busy and have lots of fun.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON WILL BE ON DAYLIGHT TIME TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 29—The dizzy spring pastime of tinkering with Old Father Time was again manipulated this morning in Danielson in a manner that gave away an hour which, as unceremoniously, will be taken back some Sunday morning in the late days o next September.

Not all who will follow daylight saving time hereabouts for the next few months "changed over" this morning. They deferred setting ahead clocks and watches until this afternoon and, in some cases, until this evening, for Sunday night in a town like Danielson has few temptations to keep one away from the feathers.

Monday morning, however, will find the local manufacturing, business and financial world on a fast time basis, and the same is true for all the industrial territory hereabouts. Even those who do not like the change, and are not hesitant about saying so, will step along with the machinery of things, figuring there is no nourishment in punishing one's self just to be different.

Out of the rural districts Monday morning the milk trucks will be on their way an hour ahead of the time they started rolling a week ago, for shipments for the Boston market must be made here in time to get the early morning train, which will be on a new and earlier schedule.

Incident to the changes that daylight saving time brings about is the establishing of a north and south motor coach service Monday by the New England Transportation company, as forecast in this column some fortnight ago. At the headquarters of the company here it was stated this afternoon that there is to be a New England bus, north-bound for North Grosvenordale out of here at 9:20 a. m., and a south-bound bus of the company for New London leaving here at 7:14 p. m., daylight saving time.

TO START EXTRADITION PROCEEDINGS THIS WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 29—No time will be lost by Connecticut authorities in speeding the return to this state of Roland G. Lalone and Albert G. Raymond, who have been indicted for the murder of State Officer Irving H. Nelson, and who are now held in a jail at Springfield, Mass. It has been indicated that Massachusetts authorities will in no way oppose the extradition of the young men who are held as the "ice-box" bandits and extradition proceedings are expected to go forward as fast as the processes of the law will permit.

This afternoon State Attorney Howard C. Bradford said that he likely would start extradition proceedings within two or three days. The state attorney would venture no opinion as to how long it may take to get Raymond and Lalone out of Massachusetts, for it is appreciated that they likely will fight extradition, and having eminent counsel, may delay their coming across the border of Connecticut as long as possible. On what grounds they will contest removal from Massachusetts to this state is not clear to those who are in intimate touch with the case, and the chain of evidence that has been built up appears so strong against the prisoners that it will be amply sufficient to convince any Massachusetts court that Connecticut should have them for trial.

There is the possibility that no longer than a week will be required to extradite the men. Once they are in Connecticut their trial will be arranged at the earliest possible moment, but here again efforts for delay may be expected on the part of their counsel.

When representatives of patriotic organizations hold a meeting Monday evening they will map out in a general way the program for the observance of Memorial day in Danielson. It is already indicated that the local observance will be along the general lines followed for the past number of years, with local organizations assisting at exercises to be held in South Killingly and Brooklyn.

Politics in the A. A. U. organization is held accountable for the unfortunate cancellation of the amateur boxing show at the state armory here last Friday evening, when more than 500 fans from many eastern Connecticut points were on hand to witness what was a very promising bill. The end of that disappointing affair will not be reached until the responsible parties have paid an adequate penalty, and that may mean as much as ejection from the A. A. U., and banishment from any connection with the organization. Promoter Frank Barber said Saturday that he could put his finger on the party responsible for the local upset, and that during the coming week he expects to be in Hartford and New Haven and in touch with officials who may be expected to make ample compensation to the local boxing club and patrons of it, who were so disappointed last Friday evening, insofar as satisfaction is concerned.

Such a beautiful trout as Wellington E. Bitgood brought in this morning—it weighed a pound and six ounces—thrills even the jaded old sportsman who is more or less convinced that they do not come so magnificent any more, into digging around for a pair of rubber boots and the rig that goes with whipping a rippling brook.

This is to remind you to make your regular monthly deposit in the savings department of the Windham County National bank.—Adv.

Fur coats, umbrellas and rubber footwear figured in the clothing of this town's churchgoers on this late April day. There was little about the weather to suggest spring.

Announcements were made at churches here today that the fifth annual Older Girls' conference of Windham county is scheduled to be held at Putnam Saturday and Sunday, May 12 and 13. The program that has been planned will include addresses by Miss Margaret Slattery and Dr. Sidney A. Weston, of Boston. Girls from 14 to 20 years of age are eligible for registration, which is limited to 200.

Mrs. D. E. Jette remained seriously ill today at her home on Broad street.

Today Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy, of Furnace street, had as their guest Miss Nellie Sullivan, of Hartford.

Numbers of radio enthusiasts here weer listening in Saturday evening when the German-Irish fliers made brief talks from their rooms in the Hotel Ritz-Carlton at New York.

Here and there a bit of impatience is developing with the holding up of reconstruction work on the Danielson-Brooklyn state highway, because of financial difficulties in which the contractor has become involved.

Trout fishermen out today reported over-flowed brooks as an additional handicap to getting good strings of the handsome fish.

Arthur A. Beauregard, of Holyoke, was a visitor with friends in Danielson over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Ksech are now occupying their newly purchase dhome on Horin avenue.

Flowers in the Westfield Congregational church today were in memory of Lester Boomhoer.

For next Friday evening, the Westfield Men's club has a musical program planned for entertainment of the members, and the committee is to serve refreshments described as unique.

Bad weather notwithstanding, there was especially heavy motor traffic through Danielson today.

There will be business for the town court Monday morning, minor cases having developed over the week-end.

PLAINFIELD

ANCIENT IRISH COIN FOUND AT CENTRAL VILLAGE

While digging in the yard at his home on Green Hollow road, Central Village, Willard Wilkinson recently found a coin bearing the date 1723. It is about the size of a United States quarter and the color of a copper penny. On one side are the words Georgius Dei Gratia Rex, encircling the head of a man. On the reverse are the words Hibernia 1723. Also on that side is a woman in flowing robes seated beside a harp and holding out a small sheaf of grass or grain.

(Georgius Dei Gratia Rex is the Latin inscription for "George, King by Divine Right." The figure of the woman and the word Hibernia is evidently the stamp of Ireland (Latin "Hibernia). So Mr. Wilkinson has found an ancient Irish coin, which ought to prove very valuable. The traditional harp speaks for itself and the grain is probably flax from which the famous Irish linen is made.—Correspondence Editor).

Funeral services for Mrs. Moses A Linnell were held Saturday afternoon at one o'clock at Moosup M. E. church, Rev. W. H. Dunnack, conducting the services. Mrs. Linenll was born May 14, 1851, in Eastford, Conn., and was married 53 years ago to Moses A. Linnell in East Thompson. They came in the fall of 1880 to Moosup where Mr. Linell took up the jewelry and clothing business. Mr. and Mrs. Linnell had but one child who died in infancy. Mrs. Linnell was a charter member of Rebecca chapter, Order of the Eastern Star and a regular attendant at the Methodist church as long as health permitted. She is survived by her husband and a brother Bernard Botham.

The single woman's bowling team is 119 pins ahead of the married members.

Mrs. Anna Coma left for Georgia Thursday morning called there by the death of her step-father. Mrs. Coms expect to bring her mother back with her.

The Jolly Five of the grange has planned a series of whists to be held in Grange hall.

Tuesday, May 1st the six church conference will be held at Wauregan Congregational church which Rev. William Williams is pastor.

Following are some of the newer books for children added to Plainfield library: Quimbey and Son, Hezleiger; The Spartan Twins, Cave Twins and American Twins, Perkins; Trail's End Gilchrist; Makeshift Farm, Hawthorne; Why the Chimes Rang, Alden; Chinese Moon, Jes' Boys, Little Women and Little Men, Alcott; Loyal Mary Garland, Smith; Barbery Gate, Abbott; Seventeen, Tarkington; We Lindbergh; Phoebe Dean, Hill; Happy House, Abbott; Just David, Porter; Emily of the New Moon, Montgomery; Dawn of the Morning, Hill; Bird Book for Children, Burgess; Little Maid of Old Maine, Little Maid of Narragansett and Little Maid of Maine, Curtiss.

The W. C. T. U. is to meet in the M. E. church, Moosup, Tuesday at 2.30 standard time. There will be a Mothers' day program. The roll call word will be "Mother".

PUTNAM

FORMER STATE OFFICER ARRESTED AND FINED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 29—Holman Bell of Thompson, a former member of the Connecticut state police and up until his resignation from the department on April 10, assigned to Danielson barracks, was arrested Friday evening by Special Officer Alphonse Dubriel of the Putnam police department. Bell was intoxicated and he started a brawl with a few Putnam men who were returning home at a late hour. The argument became heated and Bell started a free for all fistic battle. Patrolman Dubriel who was on duty in the down town section attempted to stop the fight by placing Bell under arrest. Bell in an enraged manner struck the officer a terrific blow in the face. After a struggle, Officer Dubriel succeeded in arresting the man and took him to the police station.

In the city court Saturday morning the ex-state police officer was charged with breach of the peace and drunkenness, the charge of assault upon an officer being dropped. Bell bore all the evidence of a man who had been in a fistic duel. He had a cut above the eye, and his right eye was blackened from the blows he received on the previous night. He pleaded guilty to the charges preferred against him and begged Judge Geissler to have mercy on him. Judge Geissler ordered the former officer to pay a fine of $5 00 on each charge and pay costs of the court which amounted to $1 34. The judge placed him in charge of Probation Officer Peter A. Gardner for a period of six months. During the year and a half that Bell was assigned to Danielson he became well known in Putnam as a capable, respected and an efficent officer. At the time of his resignation from the police force in April, shortly after the tragic murder of his brother officer, Irving H Nelson, had been committed, many people in Putnam felt that the department was losing a valuable man.

KNOCKS DOWN MAN AND THEN SPEEDS AWAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 29—While crossing an intersection at Providence and Church streets shortly after midnight Saturday, Louis Beausoleil of Church street was struck by a speeding Dodge car bearing the numbers Conn. 33-531. Beausoliel was picked up by Archie Gregoire of Putnam, who happened to be going by and was taken to a local doctor. Dr. Tetreault of Putnam found that Beausoliel had sustained a fractured arm, broken in three places. He was rushed to Central Falls, R. I., where a specialist set the broken limb.

Gregoire who took the numbers of the car reported to the police that the driver of the car struck the man, put out the lights and kept on going with increasing speed. The Putnam police checked up the number of the car and have found it to be owned by a Putnam woman. The investigation has not been completed and no names as to who owned the car were given out by the police Sunday.

PUTNAM CHANGED TO DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 29—Saturday at midnight Putnam shifted its clocks one hour ahead and went on the daylight saving time schedule this morning. All Sunday services in the different churches throughout the city joined hands with the new time, excepting the Second Congregational and St. Mary's churches which will not observe the new schedule until next Sunday. All industrial plants of the city will start on the new time this Monday morning, excepting Putnam high school which will remain on standard time. The reason for the high school not pushing its clocks ahead was given out by Superintendent of Schools Ralph C. Jenkins as because of the inconvenience that would be caused to the students coming from Pomfret and other outlaying agricultural districts where the new time system is not adopted. Trains of the New Haven road, and all bus lines have scheduled their trains to run one hour earlier effective Saturday at midnight.

Over fifty autoists parking their cars in the fire lane on the north end of Main street Saturday evening returned to them and found the green police tags attached to the wheels. This was a record tag day for the local police department and is due to the changing of the yellow signs to the opposite side of the street to confer with the rules of the city parking ordinances. Each person who found a tag on his automobile was obliged to return it to the police officer and in return receive a lesson in where to park a car in Putnam hereafter.

Miss Lillian Beadreault of Woodstock avenue, who was injured when a car in which she was riding on Friday evening crashed into the roped off district of the fire lane near the ruins of the Kinney Lumber and Coal company, was discharged from the Day Kimball hospital on Sunday, according to a report from the authorities at the hospital. When Miss Beaudreault was taken to the hospital shortly after the accident it was thought that she would suffer the loss of an eye, but her only injury was a small gash over the eye.

People of Putnam will officially start their spring city house cleaning this (Monday) morning as Clean up week designated by civic organizations starts today and will continue unt" Saturday May 5. All of the winter's supply of waste and rubbish gathered and packed should be left on the curbstone in front of the houses so the teams of the highway department can carry it off to the city dumping grounds. The West Side of the city will be taken care of during the first three days of the week and the remaining days will be devoted to the cleaning up of the east side.

Federal national guard authorities have informed Captain John J. McGarry of the headquarters company of the 43rd division that applicants wishing to become part of the local military outfit must be placed on a waiting lits until federal recognition is granted the captain to enlist more men. This restraint placed on the company is due to the unusually large number of men now enrolled. The company's fifteen day tour of active duty comes during the month of August and many local boys desire to join the company before it leaves for Niantic in the summer.

It has become known here that Major E. L. Darbie, commanding officer of Special troops of the 43rd division of national guard at Danielson is to have a medical detachment added to the detail at the armory at Danielson. The organization of such a detachment of men has been brewing a National Guard affairs for some time both in Putnam and in Danielson, but has just materialized to a point where facts could be given out for publication. It is thought that Dr. E. F. Perry, a Putnam physician who served in France during the war, with the rank of lieutenant will be commissoned a captain and will head the new company. Another junior grade officer will be commissioned in the detachment. The number of enlisted men will total 15 and will be from Putnam and Danielson.

John M. Hogan of Milford, Mass., spent the week end with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Hogan of Tatem street.

NO. GROSVENORDALE MAN IS FATALLY INJURED BY AUTO

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 25—Nasta Becca of North Grosvenordale died at the Day Kimball hospital shortly after midnight Friday as the result of injuries received from an automobile accident in North Grosvenordale. During the early part of the evening Becca was going towards his home. A large car driven by Arthur LaChapelle of North Grosvenordale appeared along the highway and struck Becca, rendering him unconscious. He was taken to the hospital where he was attended by Dr. J. A. LaPalme of North Grosvenordale.

State police from Danielson barracks were called to the scene of the accident to investigate. The officers immediately took LaChapelle into custody. Later in Danielson Coroner Arthur G. Bill ordered that LaChapelle be held in $10,000 bail. This the defendant could not furnish and he was further held in charge of the state police at Danielson.

Mr. Becca is married and is the father of 10 children, he was sixty years of age. At the time of the accident he had been visiting friends in North Grosvenordale, and was returning home. The car struck him only a short distance from the fire station at North Grosvenordale.

Mission services opened Sunday evening at St. Mary's church for the English speaking members of the parish. The mission will last one week and is being conducted by the Dominican fathers. At all the masses Sunday the congregations listened to sermons delivered by Rev. Fr. Farrell one of the missionaries.

With one more day left in April there are more than half of the dogs in Putnam that have not been registered with the town clerk in Putnam. After May 1 a fee will be charged to the regular cost of the registration for each day that elapses before the dogs are registered.

NOANK

FOOT RACE FROM LEDYARD WON BY GORDON CLARK

The champion walker of the village, Daniel Robertson and Tenderfoot Gordon Clark had a race from Ledyard Friday afternoon to the waiting room a distance of 8 miles. Starter Edward Babcock fired the revolver as the walkers got going, with an auto following them odwn through the woods where the houses are far apart and no one in sight to give them a cheer. Tenderfoot Clark was in the front only by a few feet while the champion was holding his wind to the finish line. On reaching the upriver town of Mystic the champion was ahead. A crowd began to gather and to give them a cheer. Tenderfoot's friends said: "Let out on them legs! Make two yards while the champ picks up one! and the finish line only three miles away! Daniel had a smile on his face. It wouldn't be long now! Down at West Mystic a lap was stolen on Tenderfoot by young Robertson, taking fast steps. Several autos gave the walkers the horn and watched them out of sight. It was a pretty hard race for the roads were rough as the winter storms did the country roads much damage.

At the finish line at the waiting room were two judges, Roy Abate and P. Wilcox. Down the home stretch they came, neck and neck. The mill hands, a crowd of 80 were in time to see the finish. Such cheering when both walkers went over the line. It was close and the judges had to get out the tape and after ten minutes of talking gave the race to Tenderfoot Clark by a No. 9 ahead of Champion Robertson or about four inches. It was the best race ever seen in Noank in a long while. The time was Tenderfoot Clark 1 hour, 10 minutes. Champion Robertson 1 hour, 10 minutes and 2 seconds, so the championship goes to Gordon Clark. Tenderfoot Clark the champion told the crowd. "The best man won, my pal Clark!"

Miss Grace Buddington has returned from a visit in Old Mystic.

Aunt Sarah Peabody club (no tobacco users) about 8 members went to Ledyard by automobile to attend the chicken pie supper. The town is known for that famous dish. The roads were in bad shape. Several times the car went to one side and then to the other and Driver Billie Crowell got on the wrong road. But they kept going and the no-tobacco users were at least only one mile from the Rose of New England. They had to get on the right road again and landed at the church in Ledyard 40 minutes late. But table No. 1 was all set and they found plenty of good things. Stretch Morrison asked for a Ledyard whipped cream cake and it was a dandy. The church women sure can cook. No! from a cook book but taught by their grandmothers in the old way. After supper all marched over to Grange hall across the green for dancing that took place to music by Davis' singing orchestra. The first dance was a fox trot, then came a square dance where six sets were ready to go when P. August's 250 pound voice rocked the hall and lots of swinging the corners made fun.

Arthur Goodenough went away to a school in Boston and learned the fancy steps also did the new Lindbergh hop for the first time in Ledyard. He got a good hand from the dance fans. Stretch Morrison as Uncle Bim and Eddie Babcock dressed up like a woman taking the part of Min put on an act. Billie Crowell in his tenor voice sang an Al Smith song, The Sidewalks of New York. Then everyone sang the chorus with Billie. The Aunt Sarah Peabody club enjoyed their visit and said "Go to Ledyard for a good time, as the orchestra played "Don't let the chickens wake you up, good night to you all!"

The daughter born to Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Rathbun (Anna Johnson) is granddaughter to Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson of Norwich.

Raymond Jones has gone to Buffalo, N. Y., for a week.

The people in the village turned their clocks and watches ahead one hour when going to bed Saturday. The town clock will stay at standard time. All the business places will be on new time, making the village on daylight saving time—all but the fishermen. They stay on standard time for the sun and tide they cannot change. Noank silk mill put up a notice to the help that the plant would go on the new time.

The condition of Mrs. Herman Edwards, who has been ill several months remains unchanged.

Ellison Carroll went to Pawtucket, R. I., for a visit over the week end.

Rollin Rathbun has a job as painter on fishing schooner William Morse. The boat is going to have a general overhauling.

Maxson Langworthy has returned from New York.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Morton have left for a few days' visit in East Walpole, Mass.

Lewis Main of New Haven, was home Friday for the day.

William Tourjee has gone to Bridgeport for a brief visit.

Frank Morse is in East Providence calling on his uncle, George Starr.

STONINGTON

C. M. Rawleigh, assistant superintendent of the New Haven Railroad company, was in the borough on Thursday in answer to a complaint by local officials that trains block crossings and delay fire apparatus in Stonington over a reasonable length of time.

This (Monday) afternoon the Stonington high school track team will go to New London, where they will meet the athletes of Bulkeley high. The local boys have been training hard under the direction of Coach Grant.

Miss Carolyn Derricks is having her vacation from her duties in the office of the South County Public Service Co., Westerly.

During March there were six births, four marriages and four deaths in the town of Stonington.

Hon. Robert Sweeney, of New York, and Edward O'Brien, of Brooklyn, N. Y., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Levens.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Miller, of Hartford, spent the week-end as guests of Mrs. R. D. Tillotson.

Mrs. Arthur McCoomb and daughter, of New York, are visiting Mrs. Eugene Atwood.

A three-act comedy, "Corny Turns the Trick," was presented in the First Baptist church parlors Friday evening by members of the World Wide guild.

Old Folks Say Doctor Caldwell was Right

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the baby because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In the proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

At the meeting of the Bay Side camp of the Stonington Royal Neighbors Thursday evening, arrangements were made for conducting the institutional meeting Tuesday evening in Muller's hall. Mrs. Emma S Bromley will be institutional officer, assisted by officials of Westerly camp.

Mrs. Edmund P. Hyde and sons, Robert and Edmund, are visiting in New York.

Miss Mabel T. R. Washburn, president of the National Historical society, New York, and editor of the Journal of American History, has been in Stonington the past week engaged in research work.

Rev. G. P. Jones, of Quiambaug, preached at the First Baptist church at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., Sunday.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

SOUTHBRIDGE COMPANY TO BUILD NEW SCHOOLHOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, April 29—The contract for the new four-room schoolhouse to be erected in Staffordville has been let to F. X. LaLibert & Sons, of Southbridge, Mass., they being the lowest bidders. Their figures for the complete job were $31,385. This is well within the limit of what the building committee said the building would cost, when the matter was investigated last winter. In addition to erecting the building, it will be necessary to dig a well and do more or less grading. The entire cost of this, with the cost of the building, will not exceed $35,000. Figures received by other bidders were: Manchester Construction Co., $31,872; E. J. Cross Co., $35,250; Loucks & Clark, $35,939; Joseph Stross, $31,986; B. L. Susizo Construction Co., $34,732. Two or three other bidders were rejected by reason of not complying with the terms of specifications relative to deposits, bonds, etc., at the time their bids were submitted. It is expected that work on the new building will begin within a few days and that it will be ready for occupancy when school opens in September.

Herbert Grundy, 15, who was with Jerry Armstrong and assisted in stealing gasoline at the Kaba place, Stafford street, April 10, was committed to the reform school for boys at Meriden by Judge Heald, in the borough court Friday morning. Armstrong is now serving a sentence in Tolland jail for his part in the theft. At the same session of the juvenile court, Genevieve Grundy, 18, a sister of Herbert, was committed to Long Lane Farm. It was alleged in the petition that she was in danger of falling into habits of vice.

Benjamin Campo has sold a house on West Main street to Warren C. Pease.

The senior class of Stafford high school, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Tower and Miss Lena M. Gravel, is spending the week in Washington, D. C., leaving here on the boat train for New London Friday evening. They went by boat from New London to New York and the rest of the distance by train. They arrived in Washington about 6:30 Saturday evening.

William O. Ladish has brought suit against B. Maxwell Cox for $150 rent due for the use of his barn. The case is returnable in the borough court May 5.

a box, took what he thought was a piece of candy, placed it in his mouth and bit down hard. An explosion followed which shook John up considerably and mangled his mouth severely. The "candy" was a toy torpedo left over from the Christmas season.

WEEK ENDING APRIL 28, 1928:

NORWICH'S CLEAN-UP WEEK

We are now entering upon a week which has been designated as Clean-up week and Mayor Waters in his proclamation urges the residents "to clean up the lawns, backyards and indeed all premises to them belonging and the streets, highways and sidewalks adjoining their properties."

He urges this because "such universal action will result in lessening fire hazards, improve health conditions and further beautify our already attractive municipality. It will also have a tendency to improve conditions here throughout the year. It will, by example and practice, cultivate habits of cleanliness and orderliness among the youth."

Here is an appeal in which every resident has good reason to be interested, and being interested there should be the necessary effort to fully comply with the suggestions. Many hands make light work. To the individual in most instances this duty falls. There can be a hearty, cooperative movement with results that will be noticeable and pleasing, or there can be a negligent attitude maintained thus giving a sour note to an otherwise harmonious effort.

Given assurance that the street commissioner will respond to the appeals of those who want rubbish removed this is the week to act. There are those who have already done their cleaning up. Some of them will find plenty to do throughout the season in accord with their view of what should be, but there is an unmistakable opportunity on the part of the residents in general to lend a hand in this desirable effort. The cleaner the city properties the better the place to live in, and the more it will be appreciated by the residents as well as the visitors. If we are not alert to our own appearance and attractions we certainly cannot hope to impress others.

But while there is a big chance to respond to the mayor's appeal, there is also and always an equally fine opportunity for each and everyone to do his part in keeping the litter out of the streets. Personal carelessness makes them a disgrace at times. Likewise there is probably no greater contribution that could be made in behalf of reduced fire hazards than the removal of rubbish and other quick burning material which clutter up too many of the closets and cellars, this being true of as many business houses probably, as of residences.

INTERSTATE MOTOR TRAFFIC

After the examination made by its representative the interstate commerce commission has come to the opinion that there should be federal regulation of motor bus transportation in interstate commerce but it doesn't believe there is immediate need of supervising the motor truck service between states.

According to the view of the commission the newness of this problem is such that there ought not to be an attempt made to establish control in too great detail.

The situation is one which has developed since the increased use of motor vehicles for transportation purposes, with huge vehicles using the public highways for the carrying of passengers and freight instead of having this traffic handled on private rights of way. The situation results from the departure from the railroads of much business between states where transportation was regulated by the interstate commerce commission to other means of transportation in competition which is without regulation.

One of the commissioners set forth in his reservations to the commission's finding that the need of regulaiton, except in so far as concerns public safety, is not wholly clear and should therefore proceed with caution and only in response to demonstrated needs. While Commissioner Woodlock concedes that some measure of interstate control may be advisable in commercial motor carrying, he would hasten slowly and let experience teach us.

There has been no demand for haste that would disregard experience. The desire is to get it determined where regulation can be done with authority, meet existing requirements, either by acts of the commission or others to whom authority can be delegated, and get started on a problem which can be the more easily handled if an early start is made instead of plunging into the bigger job which accumulates with delay.

THE BOULDER DAM FIGHT

Whether a new filibuster marks the closing days of the present session of congress, as it did the last one, may depend upon the manner in which the Boulder dam legislation is handled.

In behalf of this legislation there is a demand for early action. This is being opposed. The fact is that there is a strong division among the states which are directly concerned. This leads to a situation which threatens many fireworks. In urging the bill now it is hoped to get it out of the way while conditions are the most favorable and while some pressure can be exerted in its behalf before other legislation is dealt with. In the opposition there are those who are determined to carry on a filibuster if it cannot be blocked in any other way. It is thus up to the opponents to be ready for whatever contingencies may arise.

Difficulties are experienced in awakening as much support for this measure, which would not only make provisions for flood control but would prepare for electric power production, because the group of states located in that vicinity and entitled to more or less rights cannot agree as to what should be done and the method to be followed. If nothing is done some will be pleased and others displeased, and the same will be the case if the bill is adopted in part or in full.

It is one of those situations which calls for a getting together among those who are directly involved. If they can come to congress with a plan upon which there is agreement it will be easier to get endorsement, and particularly so when there are those who believe that the government ought not to have anything to do with the proposition, that it should be handled entirely by private enterprise, after such rights as are necessary to proceed with such construction have been obtained.

Such a solution may be more easily advanced than actually obtained, but where a group of states cannot come to an understanding among themselves about something which directly concerns them, it is to be expected that others will be slow in doing the deciding.

INCREASING CANAL FACILITIES

It is not to be expected that all will be of one mind in connection with the question of increasing the facilities of Panama canal or of building a new canal through Nicaragua. There was a decided difference at the time the Panama waterway was built and the same can be expected in connection with any new movement for added canal accommodations.

While efforts are underway for the purpose of determining what should be done, it is the opinion of Secretary Davis of the war department that the time is not ripe for the building of a new canal. He supports the idea of making provisions for a much greater use of Panama canal before launching out into the expenditure of such a large sum as will be required to develop the Nicaraguan waterway. The secretary of war believes that with the completion of the new reservoir which is now being constructed on the isthmus and the building of new locks it would be possible to keep the canal in operation all night, so that if the canal is getting crowded now, under restricted use, this would be relieved and there would be less delay for the vessels which want to use it.

Furthermore it is pointed out that not over $15,000,000 would be required for the betterment of the facilities in accord with such plans, while it would mean a billion dollars if a new canal should be constructed. On the other hand the secretary of war gives thought to the question of defense and maintains that it would be twice as expensive and twice as difficult to defend two canals than it would be to defend one in case any such emergency should arise.

No decision has as yet been reached as to what will be done. None is promised for some time. The advantages of a shorter water trip from the east to west coast of this country and the desirability of having two canals in case anything happened to Panama canal will not be overlooked in the comparison of advantages.

The situation is one which calls for a thorough study of all propositions and when the time comes a decision that will best meet the requirements. It is to be expected that the whole problem will be scrutinized from every possible angle.

CONGRESSMAN MADDEN

We rather think that Congressman Martin B. Madden died as he preferred, in the harness. He had been a member of the lower house for 24 years. He had been aware of his heart condition and yet he was not willing to give up the service he was rendering to his constituents, his state and the nation for that reason. He had recently gone through the trying experience of a hard fought primary campaign from which he emerged successful, so that at the coming election he would unquestionably have been returned to congress for his 13th term.

Prominent in Chicago politics there were times when he was sought as the party's candidate for mayor, but he never accepted. He went to congress instead and there made an enviable record for himself. For the past nine years he had been a member of the important appropriations committee and since 1923 had been its chairman. His work in that respect had won for him the reputation of being a careful guard over the federal treasury. He was a politician and understood the game thoroughly but he was not given to playing politics with the federal treasury. He devoted himself unreservedly to the exacting duties of his important post and in such a manner that there was no question of his sincerity. His place was not an easy one but he administered it in a manner that drew commendation from all sides.

It is inevitable that the removal of such a figure will mean a serious loss in congress as well as to the district which he represented.

EDITORIAL NOTES

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Celery and apple, with mayonnaise dressing, make a fine winter salad.

Be sure and sear the pot roast on all sides before putting it on to boil.

Reheat rolls in a paper bag.

If meringue becomes watery it is because it is chilled too quickly.

Cookies never dry out in a stone jar.

All fruit should be washed before serving.

To make a chicken tender and white, rub inside and out with a cut lemon before cooking.

Pieces of camphor gum placed with silver will keep it from tarnishing.

Sprinkle a few cloves on the top of the stove and they will quickly kill all cooking odors.

If you will grease the cork of the mucilage bottle after it has been opened it will not stick.

Line the medicine cabinet shelves with blotting paper to lessen the racket of the bottles.

If the fowl is placed in boiling water for a minute before plucking the feathers will be loosened and will not fly around the room when picked.

You should have a pound of unshelled peas for each person to be served.

Pieces of beef or chicken fat to be rendered for frying should first be cut very fine.

A little tomato juice added to the cooking water will soften the fibers of tough meat.

Chicken fat is particularly good for making chocolate, or other strong flavored cakes.

Starch made with soapy water will impart a gloss to linen.

A pinch of salt added to cooked starch will prevent it from sticking.

Don't let your clothes and linens get very dirty before washing them, and don't forget that use wears them out more than careful laundering does.

If the men of the family do their own pressing of suits, it is very difficult to keep the ironing board clean for the usual weekly wash. One way is to cover both sides of the board, making the seams come along the sides of the board. Mark one side with a little patch of dark material so the men can use that always for their dark suits. This will leave you a clean surface for your daintier work.

COAT OF VARNISH IS KITCHEN AID

Closets and shelves need to be dust free, clean and washable. A coat of varnish (renewed periodically) will keep moths out of bedroom closets and mice out of kitchen cupboards. The insides of drawers too, may well be made washable, especially in the kitchen, where they are apt to become spotted and sticky. The cook book is another thing to be included. Varnish will not injure the covering, and may be applied to fine books as well, to preserve them.

Swelling doors that won't shut and drawers that won't open are annoyances that exhaust our time and patience. If sandpapered down and the edges varnished over, the troublesome condition will not again occur.

FRYING HAM

When frying ham or bacon always place it in the pan before putting the pan on the fire. It cooks and browns quicker and better than if put in a warm pan.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Should the doctor prescribe an ice cap for the head of the feverish patient and you have none on hand, fill your hotwater bottle with ice water and use in its stead, replenishing when the bottle warms a bit. It will answer the purpose.

When the blood stream that feeds your scalp gets slow and sluggish, you scalp loses its activity. It gets stiff and adheres too closely to the skull. Massage your scalp to keep the circulation up and to maintain that looseness between the scalp and skull that is so essential.

It is fortunate that children are being taught to walk differently now. In the old days the little girls were taught to toe out politely. Now they are told to walk straight like an Indian, feet straight, carrying the weight evenly. This change from the old tetering, tiring totter to a graceful, free-swinging walk is a noticeable improvement.

For a home shampoo first, wet the hair with warm water, using a spray. Now rub in the shampoo mixture either a liquid soap or a good cake soap shaved and dissolved in a little warm water. Rinse with hot water, then repeat the soaping. You should rinse again gradually cooling the water until it is quite cold. Now spray with hot water again and dry with lot towels, by hand. The specialist who uses this shampoo routine declares that the final spraying is what keeps the hair light and fluffy.

DAMPNESS IN CELLAR

Much can be done to cure cellar dampness by the following method: Take one pound of rough kitchen salt, powder it and divide it into four portions. Get four tins, put the salt into them and stand them in the cellar. The salt will absorb the moisture from the air. As soon as it becomes caturated stand the tins on a warm stove. The heat will cause the moisture to evaporate and the salt is then ready for use again.

SMOOTH HIP LINE

Even with the pouched waistline seen recently on many frocks, the hips must be firm. Consequently there is a constant demand for the hip molding and girdles. With these are worn the simple brassieres while bare little more than bands of lace and satin.

NEW SPRING COLOR

The fresh yellowish green of spring verurne is undoubtedly a feature of the spring modes. But it is essentially a youthful color and many find it extremely difficult to wear. For evening many of these lighter colored dresses have draperies floating from the armholes. Dull gold lace done in a many frills and flounces is being utilized.

DON'T FORGET THIS

After oiling your sewing machine fasten a narrow trip of absorbent cotton around the needle bar to avoid danger of stains on the fabric you are sewing.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Marcasite and shell are favorite trimmings for new bags.

The vogue of the polka dot has now invaded the field of trimmings and dots appear in beads and chenille embroidery.

Small-patterned crepe is used for tailored suits. The cardigan jacket often is lined with the same figured crepe as the skirt.

The all-tweed ensemble has no equal for traveling or sports.

Squares and octagons are very smart in all types of jewelry.

Color combinations in vogue are apple green and light pink, orange and white, beige and sandalwood, navy blue and pink and black and white.

New handbags in gala colors, feature outside flaps that raise to reveal a mirror and compartments for change and makeup.

Very new and smart are gunmetal shoes for spring. Other attractive models are in dark blue and in honey beige.

Quite in the modern manner is a bag of fine porocco, envelope in shape which has deep scallops outlined in metal.

Nothing could be more attractive for early spring wear than a frock of printed chiffon and a coat, either knee length or full length, of transparent velvet.

Jaunty and youthful is a sports coat of mole which has raglan shoulders, a stock collar with buckle, matching buckle at wrist and belt and snug straight silhouette.

Entrancing little close-fitting hats, which closely resemble helmets are covered with small blossoms in tones of yellow and pink. There are large bouquets to match if one desires.

FEMININE FLOUNCES.

Warning is being issued on every side by the more fashionable dress designers against too much elaboration in the spring costumes. There may be feminine flounces and a figure but both must be revealed in moderation. The more formal frocks are constructed along statuesque lines with few trimmings and decorations. Afternoon dresses may have fluted panels and swaying draperies but they must be definitely restrained.

FOR THE SPORTSWOMAN

The most vigorous sportswoman will be unimpeded in a frock of white linen, sleeveless, and trimmed around the armholes and neck with a band of bright flowered material. A coat of this gay material, with its vivid colors, is worn with the sleeveless dress.

HAND-WORKED WOOL

Spring coats will see handwork decorate silk for wool. Hand-fagotting, hemstitching and open-worked polka dots enrich colorful kashas and other light woolens. A lavender kasha has its fagotting in geometric design.

LAUNDERING LINEN.

If table linen is soaked in lukewarm or cold water for one-half hour and a little soap applied directly to any known grease spot, the dirt will be loosened, and half the job done. Prepare fresh, hot, soapy water for the washing process. Keep plenty of thick suds, as they float out the displaced dirt. Many stains made by chocolate and cocoa, coffee, egg, grease, ice cream, tea and salad dressing, if not too serious, come out easily with plenty of soap and warm water. It is not necessary to boil the linen at every washing; every other time is sufficient. Rinse well in several waters.

When the linen has been wrung dry, stretch each piece, and hang very straight, as good hanging helps in the ironing. Pinning by the edges induces tears, so hang each piece well over the line, either half or one-third over. If they are taken down while half dry, you are sure to have an even dampness, which facilitates ironing. Use a hot heavy iron, first on the right side, then on the wrong side. This will develop a high gloss and make the pattern shine prettily.

TO CLEAN FELT HATS

Felt hats take on that battered look all too soon. A good cleansing medium is a small box of imported earth. Apply it with a stiff brush, shake off the loose powder and apply it again. Take it outdoors and beat it and shake it and brush well—and behold!—as good as new!

BATH BRICK POLISHES

To clean steel knives get a cake of bath brick, rub the brick on a smooth board and rub the knives on it till the stains disappear. This will also sharpen the knives.

EASILY HANDLED.

When having a number of guests to whom you desire to serve ice cream and cake, bake the cake in flat pans in one layer. Cut into squares, oblongs and diamonds and ice in different colored frostings. It will be much easier to serve—and to eat—than sliced layer cake.

THE WAFFLE IRON.

The waffle iron should never be washed. Instead, after baking waffles place the iron in a paper sack and tie it tightly around the iron. Thus it will be kept clean and ready for use.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Up to the year of 1917 there were no women medical students in Spain, but in 1927 there were 88 enrolled.

Mrs. Annie Hurd Cole, now 76 years of age, has been president of a bank at Fond du Lac, Wis., for 18 years.

Miss Mary Proctor, daughter of Richard A. Proctor, the distinguished British astronomer, is the only woman on the Council of the Royal Television Society of Great Britain.

When they do men's work, French professional women demand that they be given the same title as the men doing the same work.

A Girls' Revolver club has been formed in Paris and already has more than 60 members, who meet each week to hold spirited matches.

SAGGING FLOORS.

If your floors have sagged and a crack is seen between the baseboard and floor, take off the beading around the bottom of the baseboard and lower it.

HOT WATER BAGS.

Fill hot water bags about half full of water and then squeeze out the air before screwing in the top. This keeps it hot longer.

RECIPES.

Red Apple Salad — Choose six rounded apples, pare carefully and scoop out centers. Cook slowly in a syrup made of 1 cup of sugar, one cup of water, and 2 tablespoons of red cinnamon candy. After cooking has started, finish in an oven so that the apples will keep their shape, basting frequently. After removing apples, cook the juice to a jelly and pour over the apples. When cool, stuff with chopped celery, white grapes and nuts. This stuffing can be combined with regular mayonnaise and whipped cream dressing, although a special dressing made of lemon juice, orange juice, oil and celery salt gives a delightful flavor. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

Stuffed Apple Salad—Mellow apples, leaving the skins on, may be used for a similar salad, if it is preferred to have the uncooked apple, although the red apple salad is well worth extra time.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Town and City

Mr Editor: There is a great lot of balderdash being vented on the above topic, both by towns people and city people—as if the city and town were two rival enbities and institutions. As a matter of fact now Mr. Editor, isn't the city embraced in the town and doesn't city property holder in the city pay a town tax as well as a city tax?

Is anyone so foolish as to think that if the rest of the town is taken into the city by a vote of one or both parties, that the town tax will be abolished?

So far we have had fair prosperity. The town government has functions to perform as well as the city, and division of labor—now, is recognized as the most economic and the best.

All separate departments need to have separate directors and whether we are consolidated or not the expenses of departments must be met by a tax. The real fact is that in every community there are a residuum of people who have an itch for change. They want to be busy altering something or organizing something—they think every change is an improvement. They will even cite the woman's fashions as an example. They prefer the bare leg to the hoopskirt. Older inhabitants of Norwich know that this city made wealth by an invention in hoopskirts and a family became famous for it. Is Norwich getting rich now in the stocking business? Read the advertisements and tell us if it is? What Norwich needs today—more than anything else, in addition to its many organizations is a "Lot well enough alone Guild" officered and managed by some men and women who know a good thing when they see it, and stick to it with persistent endeavor.

There is an old adage written by the poet Pope which applies to Norwich. "For forms of government let fools contest.

What's best administered—is the best."

READER OF THE BULLETIN.
Norwich, April, 28, 1928.

Norwich Then and Now

Mr. Editor: At one time my people owned practically every house on one street in Norwich. They lived in some and rented others, lived comfortably, and were esteemed by all.

Now, we have removed to another county, purchased homes, rent houses, and pay very small taxes, and recently when I considered one item exorbitant I explained my view to the assessors, and the valuation was reduced.

But Norwich is still home to us, and every time for the last 20 years I have suggested buying a home in Norwich the answer is from my city friends, "Oh, don't think of buying a home in Norwich! You never could pay the taxes."

Why not? It is my home. Mr. J. M. recalls estimable gentlemen who would be surprised at the present day doings, but his people are still there, and always were an inspiration. Why not now?

The old-time spirit is there, and we don't need an aerial survey to know every foot of ground and every building installed for the last century.

THE BANSHEE.
Plainfield, April 28, 1928.

Sewage Disposal at State Hospital

Mr. Editor: In the year 1922 the officials of the Norwich Hospital for the Insane came to the then mayor of the city, Mr. Lerou, to the president of the board of water commissioners and to the writer pleading for the cooperation of the city on the matter of the city supplying the institution with water. The request of officials of the Norwich hospital for the Insane had been preceded by investigations by engineers seeking to find a source of water supply for this institution. The engineers reported in substance to the officials of the Norwich hospital that no adequate or dependable supply of water could be obtained by the state for this institution without the expenditure of a very large sum of money. The state hospital at Brewster's Neck was in dire need of water. A condition bordering on a water famine at this institution was threatened.

After a number of conferences with the officials of the Norwich hospital, appearances before the state board of control, consultations with the attorney general of the state a contract between the city of Norwich and the state of Connecticut was duly executed whereby the state hospital subject to certain conditions was ensured an adequate supply of potable water.

Responsive to the request of state water commission the mayor of the city included in the items to be considered by the special city meeting the matter of the cooperation by the city with the state commission in the correction of stream pollution. The city meeting voted such cooperation and also the sum of $6,000 was authorized for a preliminary survey.

Citizens of Norwich can with good grace now ask the state to remove its own pollution of the waters of the Thames river at or near Fort Point. The state maintains an institution within the town of Preston where including both patients and employes there are about 2400 persons.

Since this institution was opened by the state about 25 years ago it has disposed of its sewage and offal by depositing it on the tidal flats of the Thames river.

At periods of low tide these flats are wholly or partially exposed with the result that no one needs to possess a vivid imagination to have forcibly brought to his olfactory organs the fact that there is something rotten in the state of Denmark.

The state board of finance and control have the power to appropriate funds to be at once available for the purpose of abating this public nuisance which threatens the public health and to authorize the construction and maintenance of a hygenic plant for the sanitary disposal of the waste of this institution.

The mayor of the city and others have presented a memorial on the subject which is now before the state board of finance and control. The condition has been called to the attention of the state board of health: the town health officer of Norwich has been appealed to. Certain of the trustees of this institution have indicated their interest and given assurances of their cooperation and support and admitted the necessity for action.

Norwich with its 54 mills tax can well ask the state of Connecticut which has a cash surplus to abate this nuisance. A matter involving the public health does not brook of delay nor with all respect should the state longer defer. The state water commission by Mr. Copeland admits the need.

It is no favor that is asked of the state, but it it were, the city of Norwich can well ask a favor of the state so far as this state institution is concerned. Norwich has done all that the sanitary engineer of the state water commision has asked it to do, now the different civic bodies and governmental agencies of the municipalities of this section of the state should memorialize the state board of finance and control in an effort to overcome official inertia, procrastination or indifference.

This public nuisance endangering the health of thousands should be at once abated by the state.

EDWIN W. HIGGINS.
Norwich, April 28, 1928.

YOUR HEALTH

OBSERVATION OF THE SCHOOL CHILDREN

By Ira C. Brown, M. D., Seattle, Wash., Medical Inspector, Seattle Public Schools.

Every teacher's training school should include a course in public health relating particularly to school life in its problems. They should also be required to have a good working knowledge of biology. Not to teach the subject but to be able to give an intelligent answer to those seeking enlightenment upon the subject.

After the children are seated and quieted down for their morning's work the teacher should look them over, having definitely in mind the following: The natural color of the skin. Note whether pale or flushed. Also color of the ears. If pale or waxy there is some constitutional trouble more or less chronic in nature. Note the condition of the eye, whether bloodshot, glassy, or secreting pus. Such a child needs immediate attention. If some eruptive disease is suspected, look in the child's mouth and see if there are spots on the inside of the cheeks or back part of the throat. These spots generally appear before there are any outward signs of such diseases as measles, scarlet fever, chicken pox and others. Such children should be sent out of the room for examination by the doctor or nurse.

Remember that all cases of whooping cough do not whoop. It is quite characteristic of this disease that between the periods of coughing the child is perfectly well. They usually give a history of coughing a great deal at night and they frequently vomit or become nauseated. Such children are suspects and should be excluded until they have been passed upon by a doctor or nurse. If a child vomits or is sick at the stomach and has a sore throat and complains of a headache, it is possible that he has scarlet fever.

The teacher should know whether each child can hear and see plainly in all parts of the room.

Encourage the children to blow their noses night and morning. It is done in this way: Close one nostril and blow, then close other nostril and repeat the process. This has two pronounced advantages if continued over a considerable period of time. It makes the concavity of the root of the mouth less acute, thus giving a better speech tone and preventing accumulations in the nose to harbor disease germs. The nose was made to breathe through. Observe if the children are doing so.

Remember that every unprotected sneeze or cough in a room impregnates thirteen square feet and whoever walks into this zone has been exposed.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

To Explore World's Biggest Battery of Volcanoes.

Dr. Thomas A. Jagger, the scientist who for a quarter of a century has rushed to volcanic eruptions as a fireman responds to an alarm, left Washington this week after conferring with President Gilbert Grosvenor and the Research Committee of the National Geographic Society, to lead the Society's expedition to explore the Mount Pavlof sector of the Alaskan Peninsula and Aleutian Island volcanic chain.

By intensive study of this longest battery of craters in the world it is hoped to devise ways of predicting volcanic eruptions and earthquake shocks and thus save millions of dollars worth of property and thousands of human lives by the issuance of timely warning.

Dr. Jagger is not an alarmist.

"There are no more earthquakes or eruptions than there have been in the past," he said. "But more and more people are living in congested areas where these disturbances inflict disasters now whereas they would have passed unnoticed not so many years ago."

Dr. Jagger will sail from Bellingham, Washington, and the expedition will go ashore at Squaw Harbor, Unga Island, which will be the base of this summer's explorations.

Opposite Unga Island, on the tapering end of the Alaskan Peninsula, is Mt. Pavlof, object of particular study this summer, since it is the "Mt. Vesuvius" of the Alaska-Aleutian chain. Southwest of Pavlof is the towering Mt. Dutton peak, piercing the clouds at nearly 5,000 feet, named only last summer after being explored by Dr. Jagger in his reconnaissance preliminary to this year's expedition.

Back of Pavlof are the so-called Pinnacle Mountains, with their snowy sky line, and areas abounding in hot springs. A hot crater also has been reported. But this region is unexplored and unmapped. Its exploration, including mountain climbing of steep Aghileen's precipitous heights, will be a feature of the work.

Few Americans realize that in the huge arc of volcanoes between North America's loftiest peak, Mt. McKinley, out to Attu, farthest flung of the Aleutians, lies the greatest volcanic chain, one of the most amazing scenic wonderlands, and the greatest geological area of its kind in the world.

Along this mighty ridge between the Pacific and the Bering Sea lies the mighty barrage of craters, with extraordinary ocean depths to the south and the coastal plain shallows to the northwest. And therein prevail unusual weather conditions, remarkable tides, curious ocean currents, glacial deposits, vegetation types of botanic interest and future economic value, extensive fisheries, and the largest wild life reservation in the United States. All this region has scarcely been studied.

There are at least 45 active volcanoes in the chain. Along 600 miles of the Aleutian coast line there are some 150 harbors, unmapped and uncharted, and therefore unvisited.

This summer's work will make only a beginning of the exploration, and the mapping of interior and coasts, the latter work perhaps being the most essential of all because, until it is done, no commercial vessel or passenger ship dare navigate in these waters.

The expedition also will make observations of the people in the region; the north shore Eskimos and the south shore Aleuts, who, with the Scandinavian fishermen and trappers, and the employes of American canneries, make up the sparse population of the island pathway which once was the great migration route of Russian adventures who made their way across bleak Siberia and then pushed onward into North America in quest of new fur worlds to conquer.

The region is as rich in animal life as in geology. There are to be found the brown bear, caribou, ptarmigan, fox, wolverine, and geese along with various other shore and sea birds. On the north shore is the walrus, on the south shore are sea lions and hair seals.

The relation between volcanoes and earthquakes is not yet determined, but Dr. Jagger considers it more than a coincidence that they occur in the same belts the world over. This relation is one of the scientific problems which the National Geographic Society Pavlof expedition may help solve.

Be Friends With Your Children

Helen Gregg Green

"I cannot understand why Jim is slipping away from me," said Cornelia, in one of her moods of seeing things as they are, not as she would have them.

"His friends I hardly know! And my own son—well, I know the real Jim—less. All my life I've been making friends, thinking of him, hoping that the sons and daughters of my friends would be his companions, but now there isn't a boy in his crowd whose parents I know. The other day I remarked on all this to Jim.

"'But, Mums,' he protested, 'I know every mother of the bunch. They're all fine! They're all pals with us!'

"'All pals with us!' cut in the always-wise and understanding Aunt Emmy-Lou. "There you have it, Cornelia. You have not lived with Jim. You've lived above him."

"Perhaps," admitted Cornelia, wistfully. "I have been so interested in making him a thoroughbred, an intellectual, maybe I've forgotten the human side of my boy. I had not thought of that before. Just the other day he said to me, 'Jim's mother is back.' He tells her everything, Mums—things that I expect would shock you.' And I replied, 'I can't see why a clean young fellow need have anything shocking to tell!' And he just walked out of the room with 'Oh, Mums, you don't get me.' I see now that he only meant silly foolish things that boys like to tell someone."

"My dear," Aunt Emmy-Lou replied, "if you're going to be easily shocked, you'll never hear anything. Don't you know that boys and girls during the adolescent age may be frightened away from their parents by an oversensitiveness, a fear of being criticized?"

"Yes, Aunt Emmy-Lou, you're right. And why should I criticize Jim's friends so long as they're manly boys? I guess—well, what I need to do is to be friends myself with Jim—to walk, talk and play with him. I guess I have been living above him. Why—"

But just then a voice called down the stairs, "I'm going to the basketball game tonight, Mother."

"That's fine, Jimmy. I think I'll go, too."

There was a surprised silence, and then, "Oh, gee, Mums, that's great! Ned's mother is a regular fan. She never misses a game."

Tears filled Cornelia's eyes and she smiled with a great joy lighting up her face, as she nodded, "The beginning of a new relationship between us. I'm so happy to have discovered the trouble before it was too late."

Headaches and nervousness and other troubles far remote from the eyes are oft-times the direct result of an eye strain, which if corrected with the proper glass, would give immediate relief. It is not necessary for the eye to be sore to indicate their need of glasses. In many cases the eye may be perfectly healthy but glasses may be needed for the reasons which are only apparent to the physician or skilled oculist.

Caution about the Use and Selection of Spectacles

Persons having normal vision will be able to read this print at a distance of 14 inches from the eyes with ease and comfort; also will be able to read it with each eye separately. If unable to do so your eyes are defective and should have immediate attention. When the eyes become tired from reading or sewing, or if the letters look blurred and run together, it is a sure indication that glasses are needed. The lenses sold in the cheap goods are of unequal density and have imperfectly formed surfaces. Continued use of these poorer lenses will result in positive injury from the constant strain upon the muscles of accommodation to supply the defects in the glass.

NORWICH PLAYER WINS CHECKER CHAMPIONSHIP

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 29—Joseph Gorman of Norwich was victor in the checker meet held at the Masonic club rooms on South Main street Saturday. Mr. Gorman defeated F. B. Stanton of Putnam in the third round and in the fourth he defeated Willis W. Smith of Killingly three straight games for championship honors of eastern Connecticut. Smith, the 22 year old wonder of the board, succeeded in dethroning C. E. Hallen of Lebanon, the champion, who has held the honors two years in succession.

The meet started at 2 a. m. with sixteen players and continued until 11.30 until the championship had been won Smith took second honors, with the defeated Champion C. E Hallen taking third and Frank Stanton of Putnam taking fourth. W. P. Warren and Judge M. H. Geissler of Putnam who were picked by the fans to take some of the high honors were both beaten in the early stages of the contest.

Other players who entered were: Isidor Dubois; E. F. Perry; H. K. Burton; Chas. Ledoucier; Henry Dubois; Lionel Benoit; Frank Rich; all of Putnam. C. E. Hallen of Lebanon; George Baker and E. Baker of Brooklyn; Arthur Seymour of Salem. Adverse weather conditions kept away many more who were to enter the meet.

All games were played on the double knockout plan and were highly interesting.

The bearers were George Jacobs, Henry Benker, A. Almquist, Andrew Hedler, Jacob Keruige and Frederick Babbitt. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker George G. Grant.

OBITUARY

Charles H. Barber

Charles H. Barber, long a well known resident of the Falls section of the city, died Sunday evening about 6:45 o'clock at the home of his son, Frank Barber, No. 90 Sherman street, following an illness of about eight weeks. Mr. Barber was born in Jewett City, July 1, 1872, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin G. Barber. His father was a veteran of the Civil war and a well known pattern maker and for a number of years was employed as a wheelwright in the cotton mill of the Falls company.

At Fitchville, July 23, 1893, Mr. Barber was united in marriage with Miss Hattie Rathbun and since their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Barber had made their home in Norwich. In his early life, Mr. Barber conducted a painting business. For a number of years he was employed by the Falls company. About eight months ago he was obliged to give up work, owing to illness. Mr. Barber attended the First Congregational church, Norwich Town. He is survived by his wife and the following sons and daughters: Charles, Burton, Arthur, Frank, Mrs. Merton Palmer, Mrs. Fred Vergason, Benjamin and Harold Raymond Barber, all of this city. There are also a brother, William Barber, of Holyoke, and 12 grandchildren. Mr. Barber was a member of Griswold camp, No. 6, Sons of Veterans, and at one time held membership in Hugh H. Osgood lodge, No. 6920, I. O. O. F., M. U. He was also a member of the old William M. Williams hose company, which was stationed at the old Falls firehouse.

Mr. Barber was devoted to his home and family and through his genial and kindly nature made many friends, who sincerely mourn his death and who extend heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family.

WEDDINGS

Hawkins-Briggs

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Louis Orlando Hawkins, of this city, and Miss Justine Muriel Briggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Briggs, of 47 Pearl street, which took place March 30th last, at Blackstone, Mass., the ceremony being performed by Rev. Mr. Osborne. The groom has been a resident of this city for about nine years and is proprietor of The Flower Shop on Main street. The newly married couple are residing at 11 Warren street.

Taylor-Wright

Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride at 47 Penobscot street, Miss Esther B. Wright, daughter of Hilma and the late Alvin Wright, was united in marriage with Alexander G. Taylor, of Westerly, son of Mrs. Esther Taylor. The house was beautifully decorated with palms and potted plants and the ceremony was performed by Rev. T. H. M. Ockford, rector of St. James' Episcopal church, Poquetanuck. The bride, who wore honey beige with picture hat and carried a shower bouquet of tea rosebuds, was given in marriage by her cousin, Gustave Johnson, of Bronklyn, N. Y. She was attended by her sister, Miss Florence Wright, who was gowned in powder blue and carried Columbia roses. The best man was Arthur O'Hearn, of Westerly.

A buffet lunch was served for the 75 guests, who included friends and relatives from New York, Pawtucket, New Haven and Westerly. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor left by automobile on their wedding trip to Philadelphia, Vineland and Atlantic City; and will reside in Westerly, where Mr. Taylor is the radio expert with the United Music company.

HOUSE IN MONTVILLE BURNED WHILE FAMILY IS VISITING IN FALL RIVER

One house was destroyed and another was badly damaged by fire which broke out about midnight Saturday in the Pequot section of Montville. Both houses are owned by the Robert Gair Co., and occupied adjoining lots.

The fire was discovered by a Norwich man who was driving through Montville. He saw the flames from the highway and investigating found the single story frame house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Frenessa and five children, a mass of flames. There was no one in the house as the family had left early Saturday morning for a visit in Fall River.

A telephone call to the New London fire department was answered by Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and Niagara Engine Co., from that department. Two lines of hose were laid and water pumped from the mill race. The Frenessa house was too far gone to be saved and was totally destroyed with all the furniture in the structure. The furniture, all new, was not insured.

The flames spread to an adjoining house which was badly damaged. Neighbors and others, hearing of the fire went to the scene and succeeded in moving all the furniture, even the kitchen range, from the second house, which is occupied by a Russian family. The latter family were asleep when the fire was discovered and were awakened by the Norwich man. The cause of the fire is not known. The loss on both houses will approximate $7,000. The fire evidently started on the north end of the Frenessa house.

BIRD HOUSES CONSTRUCTED BY PUBLIC SCHOOL BOYS

Recognition of arbor and bird day is made by the public schools of Norwich by a display of bird houses which is put on exhibition in the window of the Bankers Trust company on Franklin square. These are the work of boys in the public schools. The houses are made for a variety of birds, including wrens, bluebirds, finches, robins and woodpeckers, each house adapted to the special species of bird for which it is intended. Bark is used in the construction so that the houses may harmonize with their natural surroundings and each is of the proper shape or size to attract the bird occupants.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED AT BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Vitagliano of No. 54 Division street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Delia Elizabeth Vitagliano and Dominick Jacaruso, also of this city. In honor of Miss Vitagliano's 18th birthday a party was held Sunday afternoon at her home. She received many beautiful and useful gifts. Games were played, dancing was enjoyed and a buffet luncheon was served. Those present at the party were the Misses Vin Pagano, Theresa D'Ella, Rose Di Pinto, Mamie Vitagliano, Janie Vitagliano, Mary Faragosa, Camilla Cellucci, Francis Pagano, Edith Dembraski, Anna Petrowski and Dominick Jacaruso, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Vitagliano and the Misses Mary D'Ella, Theresa Del Re, Esther De Pinto, Della Vitagliano and May Schecter.

LIQUOR LAW VIOLATION CHARGED AGAINST BALTIC MEN

Two Baltic men were presented Saturday morning before U. S. Commissioner Earl Mathewson on charge of violation of the liquor law. They were John F. Papineau, proprietor of a restaurant in Baltic, and B. F. Firth, alleged owner of a pool room and candy store at Baltic. Firth's case was continued until Wednesday morning under bonds of $1,000 and Papineau's case went over until Friday, his bonds being set at $500. Each furnished bonds.

The men were arrested Friday night by federal officers under the direction of Officer Stanton L. Briggs. The raids netted small quantities of alleged whiskey at each place.

PAYS FINE FOR DRIVING WITHOUT REGISTRATION CARD

On a charge of operating an automobile without having the registration of the machine with him, Lawrence Dixon, 21, of No. 47 Thames street, was fined $3 at the Saturday morning session of the city court. Dixon's machine was involved in a minor accident Friday night on the Westerly road near North Stonington. He was summoned to court when he couldn't produce the registration certificate when he was making a report of the accident at local police headquarters. His machine skidded and knocked down about 20 feet of state highway fence.

CHARGED WITH ISSUING FALSE BANK ORDERS

On the charge of issuing false bank orders Charles Gorham of the Bean Hill section was arrested Sunday afternoon by Constable Lucius Fenton. It is claimed he issued two orders on the Chelsea Savings bank Friday night, signing the fictitious name of Fred Champlin to them, and having them cashed by storekeepers to whom he owed bills. At one place where he owed $9, he issued an order for $15.25 and took the difference in cash. At the other place he got $8 in cash on an order for $12 to pay a bill of $4.

Ground Broken for Masonic Temple

Ground has been broken for the new $300,000 Masonic temple on the former Osgood property, Sachem and Washington streets and the erection of the new temple will proceed as rapidly as possible. Contractor William S Spencer had already started a force of men at work on the job. Storage sheds have been erected for supplies and tools. It is expected that the construction of the new temple will be completed in the fall.

Struck by Automobile

Miss Rosemary Haylon, 18, of Pittsfield, Mass., daughter of Dennis J. Haylon, managing editor of the Berkshire Eagle, is in an Albany hospital in a serious condition with a possible fractured skull suffered Friday night when she was hit by an automobile. She is a sophomore at the college of St. Rose in Albany and was hit when she had gone out to mail a letter near the college.

For Fishing Without License.

Wilfred Dugas, 18, of Taftville, was presented in the city court Saturday morning on a charge of fishing without a license. Judge Libby nolled the case on payment of actual costs, $3.72. Dugas was arrested by Deputy Game Warden Walter Watson on April 15th.

HELD FOR POSSESSION OF A NARCOTIC DRUG

WORCESTER, Mass., April 29.—(AP)—After many days of investigation, federal narcotic agents, assisted by the entire vice squad of the Worcester police department an dbym embers of the state police patrol, raided a Negro boarding house near and a house in Holden occupied by Negroes employed on the Metropolitan water project, early today and made several arrests. Four persons were booked on a charge of having illegal possession of a narcotic drug. Seven men and one girl were found in the Worcester house.

Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, republican member of congress from Massachusetts, announced today that she was opposed to the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill in general and particularly to the provision proposing the placing of an equalization fee on imported agricultural commodities and food products with a roast turkey dinner served. Remarks were made by Brother Kopp, dictator of New London, J. T. F. Burns, great North Moose of Hi D. Davis Legion, B. Wunderlich, dictator of Norwich lodge.

Wm. and John Merholz were in charge of the supper assisted by H. Coons, F. Hunter, H. Jarvis and J. Lempu. The Moose orchestra furnished music during the supper. The evening closed at a late hour with a big entertainment from Boston. The attendance numbered 300 being the biggest time ever held by the local lodge.

CAUGHT AFTER CHASE FROM LISBON BRIDGE

Herbert Lawson, 27, and Robert Hultz, 23, two sailors from the submarine base were under arrest here at police headquarters Sunday night after a collision at the Lisbon bridge in Taftville between the Chevrolet car they were occupying and a machine driven by Miss Marion Johnson of 149 Church street, Willimantic.

They were caught in Franklin street when their automobile was forced to the curb near the Boswell avenue park by Constable Wood in an automobile in which he had followed the sailors from Taftville. The two men were arrested by Officer Hugh McAvoy and the constable.

Lawson was driving the machine when the officers stopped it and was also said to have been operating the car at the time of the collision. There was no registration in the car neither did he have a license and he is charged with operating under the influence, evading responsibility, driving without license and without registration. The other sailor is charged with intoxication and with driving under the influence.

According to the charges made by Miss Johnson, Lawson refused to show his operator's license when she demanded it after the collision. Thereupon the other man in the machine pulled Lawson out from the driver's seat, took his place at the wheel and drove the car away.

Judge Walter Drew of Lisbon followed after the machine to Franklin square where he picked up Officer McAvoy and they continued the pursuit up Franklin street together with Constable Wood who had followed the men from Taftville. Between the time of leaving the bridge and reaching Franklin square, the two sailors had evidently changed seats again as Lawson was at the wheel when the police stopped the car.

OBITUARY

Detective Joseph V. Daly

NORTHAMPTON, April 29—(AP)—State Detective Joseph V. Daly, personal friend of President Coolidge, bodyguard to presidents and governors and the man who headed the nation-wide searches for Frances St. John Smith and Alice Corbett, Smith college students who disappeared within the past two years, died at the Dickinson hospital here today. He was 52 years old.

Taken suddenly ill two weeks ago, he was operated on a week ago Friday for gall bladder trouble and had seemingly rallied successfully until a relapse last night.

Daly was born in Dedham and joined the Boston police force in 1909, becoming known as one of the best pistol shots in the organization. He transferred to the state police in 1911 and came to Northampton the following year as state detective for Hampshire and Franklin counties. He acted as bodyguard for President Coolidge whenever the latter visited Northampton as governor of Massachusetts, vice-president and president.

Mrs. Belle Tonsley Smith

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 29—(AP)—Mrs. Belle Townsley Smith, who with her late husband, George Walter Vincent Smith, collected art treasures valued at more than $1,000,000 which they gave to the city in 1914, died today in her 83rd year. Death was due to pneumonia contracted a year ago.

Mrs. Smith's husband, before his death in 1923, was said to be the oldest air collector in the country.

South Carolina Senator May Toss Hat Into Presidential Ring

HENRY MILLER, WASH. D.C.

Sen. Cole Blease, of South Carolina, who may toss his hat into the ring for the Democratic presidential nomination, it has been learned. His statement came in a clash with Senator Willis, of Ohio, Republican presidential candidate over a bill to regulate shipments of prison made goods in interstate commerce, in which Senator Blease declared "I may be a candidate for president myself one of these days, and I want my position clear."

TECH GAME OFF, ACADEMY NOW GETS READY FOR THREE GAMES THIS WEEK

The Academy's baseball game with Chapman Tech was postponed because of rain and wet grounds. Cancellation was made late in the morning when it was seen that there was no hope of it clearing up.

May Play In Three Weeks.

The date for the playoff had not been settled Sunday night but it appeared likely that it would be during the week of May 20, as that time seemed most suitable to the schedule.

The Academy will get right down to brass tacks this afternoon preparing for its first stiff week of the season. Three games are carded, all at the campus here. Tuesday Westerly comes for an eastern Connecticut-western Rhode Island Interscholastic league tussle; Thursday Wilby of Waterbury is here and Saturday Crosby, also of Waterbury furnishes the opposition.

These three games should extend the hard-hitting local bunch to the utmost for they are expected to face some mighty good pitchers during that time. Although Westerly has a rather shaky infield, in Sawyer, she possesses probably one of the leading pitchers in Rhode Island. It was in large measure Sawyer's work that gained the state title fo rhis team in little Rhody last year and tomorrow he should make the Wildcats step to the limit to beat him.

Beat Academy Last Year.

Last year he was one of the two pitchers to beat N. F. A. Haynes of Hillhouse was the other and if Sawyer could do what Haynes could, then he must be pretty good.

At present the Academy leads the league which title it has copped for the last three years, by virtue of its victory over Stonington in the only game played to date. The Academy has of late had its stiffest opposition in the league from Westerly, being forced to post-season engagements in the last two years to win the title. Last year the Red and White got a large trophy after beating Westerly for it was its third straight championship.

Both of the Waterbury teams are more or less dark-horses at present but more will be known of them before game time.

Had Saturday's game through Johnny Greene would have pitched, leaving Lloyd Jarvis, in the regular order, to start Tuesday and Saturday and Johnny again Thursday, but now things are rather mixed and both aces have a rest so that Coach Brigham will not have a hard job getting a pitcher for Tuesday, t least.

Stiff Session Today.

Today the local mentor is expected to stress on hitting with a fielding drill closing the session, as usual. Jack Marks was all set to make his first start at third base Saturday but now he has another day to become better acquainted before hitting actual combat.

The squad is in good condition, physically, not a player being absent becaus of an injury. Mickey Breen, scrappy little infielder, is still bothered with the ankle that he sprained in the early stages of the training season while Captain Goldblatt has a lame back, but both are ready to take up arms at a moment's notice.

SANDLOT BASEBALL

Sluggers Win

The Spring street sluggers defeated the White Eagles 12 to 4 Sunday afternoon at Sechter's diamond on the West Side. Home runs by James Hoffman, Louis Sechter, Bobby Murray and Peppy Greene featured. Hoffman pitched for the winners and got 24 strikeouts while Murray caught.

Flying Eagles Win Two

The Flying Eagles won two games Sunday, both by the same score, 12 to 11. First they beat the Silver Snakes and then the North Thames street sluggers. Their lineup for the first game was Toscano, c; Altamura, p, 2b; Gilliloso, p; Blinderman, 1b; Petros, 3b; Deire, rf; Whitica, lf; Pascouche, cf. For the second game the Flying Eagles took the field with Russko, c; Altamura, p; Blinderman, 1b; Toscano, 2b; Pascouche, 3b, lf; Petros, 3b; Deire, rf; Whitica, lf.

Greeneville Rosedales Win

The Greeneville Rosedales won their opening game when they nosed out the Baltic A. A. in a 10-inning affair at Baltic Sunday by the score of 5 to 1. Jimmy Quinn pitched and Ed Nevins caught for the winners.

Norwich Town Stars Win

The Norwich Town Stars won a 9 to 0 forfeit game from the Laurel Hill Sluggers Sunday afternoon at Mohegan park.

RAIN HALTS COLLEGE BALL; CRUCIAL GAMES COMING

NEW YORK, April 29—(AP)—With championship competition almost at a standstill through the week because of unprecedented and continued rainfall, few college baseball teams were able even to practice in the six-day period ending Saturday. New York university and Holy Cross nevertheless managed to get in enough games between showers to give further proof of their merit, and Columbia fell from the select circle by losing the only game it played. Harvard and Fordham, the remaining leaders were rained out of all their important matches.

Al Fons Brilliant

New York university defeated Colgate and Cornell on successive days as the Violet nine toured upstate, but Cornell rallied to defeat Columbia, 4 to 3, in twelve innings in the only quadrangle cup league game so far permitted by the weather. Holy Cross routed Princeton, 12 to 2, and then shut out Spring Hill of Mobile, Ala., in a game which saw Fons give only one hit—that one questioned by some scorers.

After causing numerous postponements through the early days of the week the weather reached its worst on Saturday when every championship game in the east was washed out. These contests included such important meetings as Yale-Pennsylvania, Holy Cross-Brown, Dartmouth-Cornell, Harvard-Colgate, Georgetown-Army, Amherst-Columbia, Princeton-Williams and New York University Fordham, as well as intersectional clash between Boston college and Spring Hill. Few of the games can be played off, as college schedules already are full to overflowing, but Fordham and New York university will make an effort to reschedule their postponement. Columbia and Dartmouth also may try to arrange at least one game, as both of their league meetings were prevented by rain.

H. C. Harvard Game Important

With the promise of better weather in May, all of the leaders face their campaigns with hope and confidence. At this moment, it seems as if the Holy Cross-Harvard game will go far toward deciding temporary coleadership with N. Y. U. and Fordham, which apparently are unwilling to lose.

Al Beauregard Fights

Al Beauregard, Taftville bantamweight, meets Johnny Vacca of Boston in the main bout at Pittsfield tonight. This is one of the stiffest tests that the local boy has had as Vacca holds two decisions over Fidel Labarba, retired flyweight champion. However, as both bouts were at catchweight Vacca did not get a title.

AL BEAUREGARD

Beauregard had been going great until losing his last start at Boston to Jake Zeramby. Previous to this Beauregard had 11 straight wins six of them knockouts.

ROBINS FORMLY IN FIRST B WINNING TWICE OVER PHILS

BROOKLYN, N. Y., April 29—(AP)—The Robins strengthened their hold on first place by beating the Phillies twice here today by scores of 3 to 1 and 3 to 1. Great pitching by McWeeny and Clark for the Robins featured the season's first double bill, witnessed by a capacity crowd of 28,000. McWeeny gave the Phils three hits in the opener and Clark plastered them with a five-hit shut-out in the nightcap.

Thompson's bad throw while trying to complete a double play in the fourth inning of the first game gave the Robins two runs. Bissonnette accounted for the third marker when he hit the ball over the right field fence in the eighth. Hendrick's home run with Bancroft on base gave the Robins a running start in the first inning of the second game.

Tigers 7, Indians 6

CLEVELAND, April 29—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers won the final game of the series from Cleveland 7 to 6 in ten innings here today.

The game was bitterly fought before 22,000 persons. The Indians routed Gibson in the fifth while Miller was relieved at the nd of the eighth. Van Gilder and Harder finished the game out.

Rice and Jamieson led the batting attack with four hits each. The Indians filled the bases in both the ninth and ten innings but were unable to put a run across. Score:

JACK SHARKEY 8 TO 5 FAVORITE OVER DELANEY FOR "JUST A FIGHT" TONIGHT

NEW YORK, April 29—(AP)—The behemoths of the ring return to Madison Square Garden tomorrow night hard upon the retreating heels of the even more ponderous circus, elephant.

Given over to "the greatest show on earth," for several weeks, the Garden resumed its pugilistic atmosphere with a 15-round battle between Jack Delaney and Jack Sharkey as the attraction.

Last Try for Both

Labelled by Tex. Rickard as "just a fight" the engagement looms as a sort of last chance affair for both of the one-time contenders for Gene Tunney's heavyweight crown.

Both forfeited their front rank positions in the challenger class by indifferent performances in Rickard's last "elimination" tournament which developed Tom Heeney as the outstanding contender for the title. The New Zealander has been rewarded with a match against the champion in July while Delaney and Sharkey must start all over again.

Notwithstanding the misfortune that has pursued him since he forsook his light heavyweight title to mingle with the bigger men, Delaney still is convinced he can push his way into a battle for the heavyweight championship. On his showing against Sharkey depends his boxing future so far as the heavyweight class is concerned.

Sharkey Out if Beaten

An outstanding prospect a year ago, Sharkey finds himself confronted with the possibility of being shunted into flat oblivion long before his time. He must whip Delaney decisively to re-establish himself in the good graces of the fans who saw him perform against Heeney and Johnny Risko.

The betting odds favored Sharkey, 8 to 5.

RUTH GETS FOURTH HOME RUN AS YANKS BEAT NATS

WASHINGTON, April 29—(AP)—Babe Ruth's fourth home run of the season—a looping smash over the high and far away right field wall—sent Washington to its sixth straight defeat here today, 7 to 5.

New York had a one run lead and two men were on base when the Babe Lisenbee who was the victim of two other of Ruth's homers, was pitching. Pennock yielded eleven hits but never was in serious danger after Ruth's drive. Score:

Reds 3, Pirates 2

CINCINNATI, April 29—(AP)—Cincinnati won a tight game from Pittsburgh, 3 to 2, today. In the ninth inning the visitors' first two batters singled but Rixey bore down and got himself out of a hole. Both Rixey and Kremer were in good shape but the Reds pecked away at Kremer and scored three runs off him. One of them was a gift by Lloyd Waner who let Ford's single go through him in the second inning, permitting Dressen, who had walked, to score.

Cubs 6, Cards 5

CHICAGO, April 29—(AP)—Mike Gonzale's single in the 12th inning, scoring Heathcote, gave the Cubs a 6 to 5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals today before 30,000 fans.

With Sheriff Blake on the mound at the start, the Cubs took a five-run lead in the first three innings, only to see it melt away in the seventh and ninth innings, when the Cards tied the score. St. Louis used six pitchers and a total of 18 players.

Alexander started for St. Louis but was hit hard in the two innings he pitched. Charlie Root, who finished for the Cubs, pitched excellent ball and was given credit for his first win of the season.

Heathcote saved the game for the Bruins in the 11th inning when he speared Frisch's drive near the right field bleachers. One man was on base at the time.

ROBINS, YANKS, A'S PLAY BEST BALL

NEW YORK, April 29—(AP)—At such odd times in the last week as rain, snow or high winds were not sweeping major league ball games into the discard, the Brooklyn Robins, the Yankees and the Athletics were pounding away at their opposition with sufficient vigor to make this triumvirate the outstanding group for the seven days ending Saturday night. The Robins gained the top of their league in a smashing 9 to 0 victory over Boston on Friday, and finished the week with a record of three games won and one lost.

In the American league, Philadelphia and New York each won three games while losing none, but Cleveland finished the week with a margin over both. The Indians won five games and lost two, just enough to put them ahead of the larruping Yankees after a brief dip into second place. Philadelphia is still affected by a slow start, which included four consecutive defeats before a single victory was registered.

Record for Postpostments

The antics of the weather were such that a season's record in postponements was set. In the National league eleven double-headers were manufactured, seven in the rain swept east and four in the west, where snow and cold came in for an inning. The American league had better luck. It, too, suffered seven postponements in the east, but steered clear of western snows with such dexterity that not one game of the schedule was interrupted in that sector.

The St. Louis Browns, playing their full quota of seven games, led both leagues in home runs with five. Brooklyn was the National league leader with four, three of them sailing into the new and conveniently located left field bleachers at Boston. All of the Yankee home run artists were stopped save Ruth himself, who cuffed Horace Lisenbee for two circuit blows last Tuesday.

A unique record was set in the American league when the Boston Red Sox played through four games without an error. Cincinnati played errorless ball through four games to lead the National league.

St. Louis had the best National league offensive record, with an average of more than eleven hits to each of its five games, and ranked right behind the Pirates on defense. Pittsburgh permitted its opponents to score two and two-fifths runs to each game, while the Cardinals allowed two and three-fifths. The Pirates averaged ten hits to each of their five engagements.

A's Lead in Hitting

The Athletics cornered American league batting honors with just more than twenty safeties for each game, and tied with the Yankees on defense, each team allowing the opposition an average of two and two-thirds runs to a contest. The Yankees got a fraction under twelve hits in each engagement. Cleveland averaged ten hits a game, and gave its opponents three and three-sevenths runs.

The week's major league record of games won and lost, runs, hits, errors, opponents runs, and home runs, including games of Saturday, follows:

ACADEMY TRACK TEAM OPENS HOME SEASON NEXT MONDAY

The Academy track team will meet Stonington high here next Monday in the opening home engagement of a rather tiiff schedule.

After its decisive victory over Chapman Tech at New London Friday the local outfit see bright days ahead and, in particular, a victory over Bulkeley this year for the first time in many years.

Stonington has a strong cast of performers, being claimants of the eastern Connecticut title last year and they will test the Wildcats to the utmost.

Stonington and Bulkeley meet this afternoon at Morgan park in the opening engagement for both squads.

Both were strong last year and it looks like a toss up for the victory.

'BOUT SPORTS

With the advent of daylight saving at least two of the teams intending to enter this year's Industrial league have made known that they will take advantage of the extra hour very shortly for their first call of candidates. The Y. M. C. A. outfit, which has been working indoors for some time will take to the outdoors evenings in a few days according to a statement made Saturday night, while the Richmond Radiators, champs last year, also intend to start their workouts soon.

These two teams were about the first out last year when they played practice games nightly at the Academy and probably they will follow the same schedule this season to get in shape for the opening of the Dutsy league slate.

Braves 5, 8; Giants 3, 12

NEW YORK, April 29—(AP)—Boston and New York divided today's double-header, the Braves winning the first game, 5 to 3, by an eighth-inning spurt, and the Giants the second, 12 to 8. The second game was a slow contest in which many pitchers were hit hard. The hurlers freely mixed passes with the 23 hits the two teams got.

Barnes weakened after holding the Braves safe for seven innings in the first game. Boston's eighth-inning rally was topped off by a home run by Brown. Homers by Terry and Ott accounted for all of the New York runs.

AMERICAN BUSINESS LAST WEEK SHOWED IRREGULAR TENDENCIES

NEW YORK, April 29—(AP)—Irregular tendencies continued to be manifest in American business last week Trade was backward because of inclement weather and kindred factors, but industry moved forward briskly particularly the so-called heavy lines.

Steel maintained its position as pace setter, although there appeared to be some slackening of demand. First quarter operations were at a good rate, and inspired predictions in some quarters that the 1926 peak would be duplicated this year. Earnings of U S. Steel corporation and Bethlehem Steel corporation for the first quarter showed a marked upward tendency from the late periods of last year, although failing to reach the high mark of the first three months of 1926. However, there was evidence of growing pressure against steel prices, and a slight lowering of quotations on finished steel.

March production of motor cars increased materially over the February figures, while first quarter output was far ahead of that of a year ago. General Motors corporation reported the largest first quarter in its history, in point of earnings, and maintained its position as the world's leading industrial corporation in earning power.

Revenue freight loadings continued to follow a disappointing trend. Shipments for the week ending April 21 were under those of the preceding week, as well as the corresponding period of last year. The coal industry showed little improvement, with the menace of a possible strike still hanging over it, although prospects of an agreement in some parts of the middle west appeared a little brighter.

Railway executives continued to work for some sort of compromise on the lake cargo coal freight rates controversy, in which the interstate commerce commission was enjoined from prohibiting a reduction of 20 cents a ton by roads serving certain of the southern mining fields. A meeting was held in New York, but its only apparent net result was the calling of another conference in Cincinnati on May 3.

Sale by the Delaware and Hudson of its holdings of Wabash and Lehigh Valley stocks, was believed to have advanced the program for consolidation of eastern railroads to a marked degree. It eliminated the Loree plan for a fifth trunk line, thus removing one of the most formidable of all obstacles to a definite agreement by heads of the four existing systems in the eastern territory. Submission of a detailed plan to the interstate commerce commission before the end of the year was predicted in some well informed quarters.

Further stiffening of the credit market was noted during the week, although but one increase in federal reserve rediscount rates, at Minneapolis, was added to the four already made. The belief persisted, however, that a uniform rate of 4 1-2 per cent would be in effect before the passage of many weeks. That New York was likely to be among the last to make the change was generally conceded, on the basis of past performances.

Time money advanced to five per cent, and there was moderate firming up of commercial paper and bankers' acceptance rates. Call loans, for the most of the week, ruled around 5 per cent.

Commodity prices showed more increases than declines, but the large majority of items remained unchanged. Textiles revealed only minor changes.

Bank clearings dropped sharply from the preceding week, but had a substantial gain over the related week of 1927.

WESTERLY

FIVE PLACES RAIDED—ALL DRY AS SAHARA

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 29—Five different places in the northern section of the town of Westerly were visited by Chief Thomas E. Brown and three police officers, Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock in search of illegal liquors. The officers were armed with search warrants issued by the Third district court. A careful search of the places visited failed to yield any evidence on which to hold the proprietors.

Frank Juliano, 76 1-2 Pierce street, who conducts a tobacco and confectionery store on the east side of the street, was visited by Officers George L. Madison and Frank E. Knight.

Michael Toscano, 73 Pleasant street, on the north side, had a call also from Chief Brown and Officer Madison, who found but one old man in the place.

Daniel J. Whalen, conducting a store with soft drinks in the first store next to the New Haven railroad tracks on the west side of Canal street, received a call from Chief Brown and Officer Madison.

Pasquale Salmeno, conducting a grocery store at the corner of Canal and Pleasant streets, had a visit from Officers Michael Curtin and Frank E. Knight. It was at this store in a previous raid that Officer Knight had buttons torn from his coat while incriminating evidence was being destroyed.

When Officers George Madison and Frank Knight visited the store of Thomas DiPaola at 85 Pierce street they found the grocery closed and locked up.

ALBERT E. BARBER EXPIRES IN LOBBY OF POSTOFFICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 29—Albert Ellery Barber, 64, died shortly after 7 a. m. Saturday in the lobby of the Westerly postoffice, from heart trouble. His death came as a great shock.

Mr. Barber had approached the stamp window and just as Clerk John J. Maguire opened the shutter he observed his condition and inquired as to his trouble. A drink of water was requested and James F. Spellman went to the lobby with it. A telephone call was sent for Dr. C. Grant Savage and Henry C. Crandall went for Dr. John Champlin, Jr., but Mr. Barber was barely alive on his arrival. Medical Examiner Dr. M. H. Scanlon was called and left the case to Dr. Champlin. Death followed in less than 20 minutes from the time he was stricken. But recently Mr. Barber agreed to attend the Grand Worthy Matron's reception in Norwich and then cancelled his plans when it was feared that the trip would be too much on a stormy night.

Mr. Barber was born in Richmond, R. I., Jan. 8, 1864, the son of Elason and Rachael Pollard Barber. He was a great-grandson of Reynolds Barber, a Rhode Island soldier in the Revolutionary war, and a direct descendant of James Barber, who migrated from Berkshire, England, to Boston in 1633.

Mr. Barber came to Westerly when a young man and entered the employ of the old lumber firm of Randolph, Bentley & Co., in 1888 as bookkeeper. In 1900, when the company sold out to H. T. Kenyon, Mr. Barber continued his work and again, in 1921, when the firm became the Walter C. Hiscox Co., this year rounding out 40 years in the same position. Jan. 18, 1887, Mr. Barber married Miss Hattie I. Place, of East Greenwich. She and one daughter, Mrs. F. Milton Eldridge, of Attleboro, and two brothers, Oscar and Herbert Barber, of Carolina, survive him. Mr. Barber was admitted to Franklin lodge when a young man. He served in various offices and was a past master of Franklin lodge, besides holding the office of secretary of Franklin lodge for 26 consecutive terms. He was a member and past high priest of Palmer chapter, No. 28, Royal Arch Masons, and its secretary for 12 years, and he was a member of the Anointed High Priests' convention of Connecticut. For nearly ten years he was recorder of Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T., of Westerly, and a member of Mystic council, No. 29, Royal and Select Masters, of Mystic, Conn., Palestine temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., of Providence; a charter member and past patron and past secretary of Deborah chapter, No. 9, Order of Eastern Star; a life member of Scottish Rite Masons, having received his 32nd degree in Providence a number of years ago, and Westerly forest, No. 107, Tall Cedars of Lebanon. He was also a charter member and secretary of the Westerly Square and Compass club, No. 176. Mr. Barber was a member and collector for 12 years of Granite council, No. 177, Royal Arcanum.

The first section of the Colonial express, making the Westerly station stop at 11:04 a. m., Saturday, was made up of combination Pennsylvania R. R. Pullman cars which were occupied by a party from Palestine temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., of Providence, en route to the Imperial council session which is held this year in Miami, Fla. The party will arrive Tuesday afternoon after a short stop in Washington. At Westerly the train was boarded by Clarence A. Vars and his brother, Raymond C. Vars, who were making the Florida pilgrimage, to return home next Sunday afternoon. Another member of the party was George E. Phillips, of Providence, summer cottager at Pleasant View.

As the train pulled into the Westerly station, Baggagemaster Edward W. Pitcher noticed a hanging brakebeam under the baggage car and on his notification to the trainmen it was wired into place until the car could be taken off at New London.

On the second section of the same train the alert Westerly baggagemaster found a loose swinging chain, one end of which should have been fastened to the truck. The loose chain had been reported by towermen and the train proceeded slowly from the Westerly station to notify the train crew that all was safe after Baggagemaster Pitcher had secured the end of the swinging chain.

D. M. CORNELL STRICKEN WHILE LEAVING HIS CAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, April 29—The sudden death of Dwight M. Cornell, 64, gardener in the employ of G. L. Stillman and for many years employed at the White Rock mill, occurred at 3 a. m. Sunday at his home in Varietyville No. 12 White Rock road. He was attempting to step from the front seat of his automobile about noon Saturday when it was parked in front of the salesrooms of the F. O. Lanphear Co., at the corner of Broad and Union streets and as the auto door opened he suffered a stroke of paralysis. Pitching forward, he fell on the running board of the car. Benjamin A. Peabody, Jr., and Rev. Lewis A. Walker, passing at the time, picked Mr. Cornell from the auto and were assisting in taking him into the salesroom where he was made as comfortable as possible. His wife was summoned from shopping in the Mohican market adjoining and Dr. C. Grant Savage, in Dixon square at the time, was quickly at his side. The shock had paralyzed Mr. Cornell's left side and the doctor ordered the ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary corps, in which he was removed to his home. Mr. Cornell was a member of Narragansett lodge, No. 7, Independent Order of Odd Fellows. He is survived by his wife and son.

April 27. Jennie R. Mellow to Giovanni P. Toscano and John J. Dunn, three tracts of land, lots Nos. 158, 159 and 162, Fairview Park.

Miss Nellie Ella Young, of Watch Hill, was given a surprise shower the past week by members of the Royal Neighbors of America. A large box of useful gifts was presented by Messrs. Tough, Crandall and Eccleston. A salad and cold meat supper was enjoyed, when the bride-elect and her fiance, seated under a large bell, received a shower of confetti. The wedding of Miss Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Young, and George Howard Gavitt, operator of the Norwich-Westerly bus of the Rhode Island Coach lines, will take place at an early date.

Funeral services for Jared Babcock were conducted at his home, 12 Moss street, Pawcatuck, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, by Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, D. D., pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh-Day Baptist church.

A member for nearly 20 years of Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, A. F. and A. M., of Pawcatuck, burial services were conducted at River Bend cemetery by that lodge, Russell Hemphill, worshipful master. The bearers were W. John T. Johnson, and Frank A. Greene and James Tefft, Charles Smith, Louis Moss and James McCormick, from the C. B. Cottrell & Sons plant.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron T. Webster have returned to Pawcatuck after the winter season passed at Oklawaka, Fla.

Mrs. D. D. Clark has returned from Jacksonville, Fla.

Miss Kathryne M. Sturtevant, teacher of French at Westerly high school, is passing a week's vacation as the guest of Boston relatives.

Mrs. Roland Taylor, of Proenix, Ariz., formerly Miss Clara Opie, of Westerly, arrived Saturday noon for a visit with relatives.

William C. Mudge, delegate from Westerly Central Labor union, left Saturday afternoon to attend the two-day state convention of the R. I. A. F. of L., at Providence.

Westerly Letter carriers L. Ward Alger, 8 Charles St. Onge, Edward W. Murphy, Thomas F. Lenihan, Jr., James A. Keane, Eugene O'Neil, Michael Healy, Nicholas J. Craddock, Daniel M. Coogan, John Lynch, James P. McMahon and Edward Montague, were members of four automobile parties which left Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and returned Sunday afternoon. They had been to Boston to attend the convention of the Boston Letter carriers' association.

Mrs. Sarah A. Opie, widow of P. H. Opie, was taken Saturday afternoon in the ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary corps to the private hospital for observation.

Miss Gladys M. Stott left Saturday morning for a week's vacation visit in Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. John DeFanti left Saturday for Providence to attend the Rhode Island State Federation of Labor convention.

Mrs. Clifford W. Campbell, her son, Charles King, and daughter, Eleanor, are in Washington, D. C., this week.

Jesse F. Hakes, of Baltimore, a business visitor to Hartford, was a caller at his former home in Westerly Saturday.

Arthur N. Nash, Thomas McKenzie and John O. Mills were visitors Saturday in New Britain for the laying of the cornerstone of the new Masonic temple.

P. H. Egler, Boston author, while a Yale student in 1886 publisher of "Watch Hill Life," has visited with Albert G. Martin, at Charlestown Beach, where he desires to occupy a cottage the coming summer.

SNEAK THIEVES AT NEW LONDON STEAL FROM CARS SATURDAY NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 29—Sneak thieves, the type who apply their talents to stealing from automobiles operated successfully here Saturday night for the police received two complaints from auto owners who lost articles from cars. Mrs. Jessie M. Brown, Monument street, Groton, drove to New London during the evening and parked the auto on Meridian street. In leaving the car, Mrs. Brown neglected to take her hand bag and upon her return she discovered the bag was missing. The bag contained about $10, also letters and keys.

Nicholas Dandona, 9 Evelyn street, made numerous purchases, principally food supplies, Saturday night and his shopping concluded he drove his machine to Masonic street where he parked it over an hour. When he returned about 11 o'clock, Dandona discovered that his groceries and meats had been stolen, but he failed to make a report of the theft at police headquarters until today.

An employe on a government mine planter, moored at the government pier, Water street, notified the police Saturday night that an attempt had made to steal articles from a Chrysler automobile parked on the pier. The police informant said that one of the windows of the auto had been smashed because the doors were locked, but that entrance to the auto was not obtained. He also said that a man with a mackinaw coat and a light cap had been seen running from the pier. Patrolman Frank Philopena was assigned to the complaint, but was unable to obtain a clue that might lead to the detection and arrest of the thief.

James Telford, 40, employed as a tile worker, went to the London Grill, corner of Main and State streets, Saturday night and created such a disturbance that he was arrested by Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky on a charge of breach of the peace, was preferred by an employe of the restaurant. Mrs George Barclay qualified as surety on Telford's bond of $25 for his presentation in the police court Monday.

Mrs. John Davis, 6 Belden street, notified the police at 3.30 o'clock this morning, that a man was endeavoring to obtain entrance to her home and requested that the intruder be arrested. Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman Henry Sylvia went to the house, but when they arrived there the night prowler had disappeared and a search of the neighborhood failed to find him.

GARDE THEATRE SALE CONTRACT SIGNED SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 29—The contract calling for the sale of the Garde theatre building, State street, to the Connecticut Valley Theaters, Inc., was signed yesterday in the law offices of Hull, McGuire & Hull. The deed transferring title in the realty is being drawn and will be filed for record at the office of the city clerk within a few days. The building is owned by Walter S. Garde, who purchased the structure several weeks ago from the 325 State Street corporation, on order of the superior court. Mr. Garde purchased the building to protect his financial interests for he was the holder of two mortgages. The deed transferring title from the 325 State Street corporation to Mr. Garde was filed for record Saturday. The Connecticut Valley Theatres, Inc., are the owners of several theatres in Connecticut and it is understood they will cause some changes to be made to the building which will permit of additional revenue from rental being realized.

COAST GUARD DESTROYER TO ACCOMPANY TRAINING SHIP

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 29—When the United States Coast Guard training ship Alexander Hamilton starts on her annual cruise to foreign waters on June 1, she will be accompanied by a coast guard destroyer, the accompanying of the training ship by a second boat being the first time that two boats have made the voyage. The reason for the destroyer accompanying the training ship is the Hamilton being too small to properly accommodate the 70 cadets and officers who will make the trip. The cruise will include stops at London, Antwerp, Cherbourg, Corunna, Casa Blanca, Funchal and Hamilton. The boats are scheduel to return to port Aug. 26.

Mrs. Walter Davis and infant daughter of 95 Oneco avenue; Miss Stella Honosky, 26 Potter street and Mrs. Rose Syracuse, 32 Colman street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

GIRL FOND OF SAILORS STEALS BENEFACTOR'S WATCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 29—Evelyn Jones, 21, of 32 Spencer avenue, Waterbury, was arrested at 3:30 o'clock this morning by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh, charged with larcenous larceny. She will be in the police court Monday. She was unable to procure a surety on her bond of $10 and was locked up. That the young woman will not face a more serious charge is due to the fact that a woman from whom the girl stole a watch does not desire to proceed against her. The girl recently came to New London and had been living with a sailor as a common-law wife until a quarrel took place, resulting in the bluejacket abandoning her. The girl then went to a residence and sought employment. This was not obtained, but the housewife consented to permit the girl to remain at the house a few days or until such time as she could secure work. A day or two later the girl stole a wrist watch valued at $90 and this she gave to a United States coast guard sailor. When the sailor returned to the state pier at 2:30 o'clock this morning he was confronted by Sergeant Cavanaugh as having received the stolen watch. The sailor finally admitted having been given a timepiece by the girl, but declared that he had no idea it had been stolen. Sergeant Cavanaugh was given the watch and then went to the house where the girl was stopping. She had returned there but a short time before and was persistent in her denial of having stolen the watch. When she was confronted with the theft, the watch being produced, the girl broke down and confessed. The girl's parents are dead and she has served a term at a woman's reformatory.

Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Mann have returned to their home on Montauk avenue, after having spent several weeks touring Europe.

Patrolman Edward Skoczylas was unable to perform duty tonight, being ill.

It is probable that additional traffic regulations will be adopted for the control of parking on Bank street. On Monday Chief Thomas Shipman will confer with Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney with regard to the suspension of parking of automobiles on the west side of Bank street. With the west side of the street torn up for the purpose of double tracking, automobiles are allowed to park on that side of the street where possible, also on the east side. Should a fire occur between Tilley and State streets, it would be impossible for fire apparatus to pass through that section of the street because of automobiles being allowed to park on the east side.

Over 130 girls attended the barn dance last night in the study hall of W. M. I., held under the auspices of the committee in charge of the fund being raised to erect a new building for the school auditorium. The hall was attractively decorated in the colors of the school.

Members of the Y. M. C. A. have enlisted the aid of 91 women in their drive for $14,500 to meet expenses of the current year, not cared for by funds derived from annual dues of members. Ward T. Twenty persons attended a bridge party held Friday night at the home of Mrs. Arthur M. Beckwith, of 151 Lincoln avenue. At the end of the evening's entertainment luncheon was served by the hostess.

Dennis McAuliffe, about 66, of 88 Ocean avenue, died Friday night at Lawrence-Memorial hospital where he had been a patient less than a week, ill with pneumonia. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Johanna McAuliffe and three daughters, Mrs. Ralph Martin, of Boston; Mrs. George Cooper of Groton and Miss Ruthie McAuliffe, of this city. He was a member of St. Mark's Star of the Sea church and the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Mr. McAuliffe was employed as teamster by the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company for 46 years. He was born in Ireland, but had resided in New London since boyhood.

Mrs. Bridget Kenney, widow of James Kennedy, died Saturday at Hillside home. She was of advanced years and had been in poor health for a long time. Mrs. Kennedy leaves no near relatives.

James Stanners, 42, formerly of New London, died Friday at Reading, Pa., in which city he had resided about a year. He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. C. J. Doherty, of Reading; Mrs. C. P. Ware of Merced, Cal., and Mrs. A. J. Bierman, of Detroit, also by a brother, John Stanners, of Hartford. Mr. Stanners was at one time employed as a teamster by Nichols & Harris.

Miss Catherine Jean McKay, 32, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angus McKay, died Saturday at her residence, 94 West street, after an illness of two months, for six weeks, scarlet fever confining her to the bed. Besides her parents, Miss McKay is survived by three brothers, William McKay, Bank street; Hugh M. McKay a student at Norwich university, Northfield, Vt., and Angus McKay, Jr., of this city. Miss McKay was a teacher at Nathan Hale grammar school until her illness. She had ben a teacher here twelve years.

The funeral of Mrs. Adelaide W. Sanborn, widow of Homer Sanborn, was held Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the residence of her nephew, Frederick W. Harvey, Flanders, the services being conducted by Rev. Mr. Ogden. Burial was in Old Stone Church cemetery, Flanders.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel Saturday ordered the suspension of the driver's license of Samuel Williams, 3 Schoolhouse lane. Commissioner Stoeckel also ordered the return of the driver's license of John Davis, U. S. S. McCall. The latter license was suspended several weeks ago.

There was no session of the police court Saturday, although the two cases were scheduled to be presented on continuance. Martin Oskey, charged with intoxication and breach of the peace upon complaint of his wife, Oskey was placed in charge of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. Helen Goode, colored was also placed on probation. The woman was found intoxicated Friday roaming about the tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad and arrested by Special Agent James Daly.

A live wire of the Connecticut Power company was found dangling from a pole on Pequot avenue early Saturday morning. Patrolman John Foley reported the element of danger at police headquarters and a repair crew of the power company soon had the wire back in place.

City Manager William A. Holt Saturday informed Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney of the appointment as supernumerary police officers of the three successful candidates who submit positions as members of the police department. They are George Bruhm, Enfield F. Tolles and Augustus Turella. Bruhm obtained the highest average and will probably be assigned to duty within a few days. Tolles and Turella will not be assigned to duty until some time during the summer.

Mrs. Edward L. Daniels was surprised Friday evening when acquaintances called on her in celebration of her 60th birthday. The evening was devoted to bridge and pinochle. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Laughter on horseback, romance on the polo field, with a hero of the "400" who rated 100 per cent. in the night clubs.

That in brief is William Haines' new starring picture for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, now playing at the Palace theatre, a comedy that positively scintillates with laughs, that thrills with love interest and vibrates with excitement.

Haines has established for himself a reputation for turning out consistently good pictures, but with "The Smart Set" he outdoes himself. The story is that of smart society and a millionaire's son who because of a natural gift for polo makes the all-American team for the international cup contest with the British.

How his own cockiness first wins him a place on the squad and then loses both his father's respect, his position and the girl he loves, only to win it all back and more at the crucial last instant of one of the greatest dramatic polo struggles ever filmed, makes an enthralling story which would win and hold interest for its dramatic story alone. However, that isn't the half of it, for "The Smart Set" is a picture of a million laughs as well.

McEnelly's Orchestra

The ever popular Edward J. McEnelly and his Victor Recording orchestra appearing at the State armory tonight, will use as his feature numbers, You'll Be Sorry, Who is She and Would You Be Happy, all three written by a local boy composer, Edgar J. Caron.

Mr. McEnelly is using these numbers with great success everywhere he goes, and claims they are about the best numbers in his books at the present time. He is also using them in all his broadcastings from WBZ on Thursdays.

Frank Carle, the marvelous little pianist with this outfit does a few specialties on the numbers mentioned above.

Strand Theatre

Monte Blue, as engineer of "The Black Diamond Express," is dismayed by the accident to a young society girl, in which her carelessly driven car crashes into his train. Going to the hospital to visit her, love at first sight follows. She breaks her engagement with a rich suitor, becomes engaged to Monte and refuses her mother's pleadings to give him up. When Monte's young brother disgraces the family, he insists on giving the girl up. She marries the other man in anger, and her birthday party is on Monte's train when it is attacked by bandits. From then on the plot is fast moving and has plenty of thrills. This is but a bare outline of a story big with human interest and real gripping drama. Edna Murphy plays the leading role, and in the supporting cast are Claire McDowell, Myrtle Stedman and William Demarest.

"Old Tin Sides" is a rollicking, laugh provoking comedy with Pat Kerr, Kewpie Ross and Fatty Alexander presenting a ton of fun. There is plenty of action and good humor in this production, and will help you enjoy a pleasant evening.

"Memories" is a beautifully colored Tiffany Scenic.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Snake That Wasn't

No matter what you are about
'Tis sometimes wise to hold a doubt.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit had started down toward the Smiling Pool. He was going lipperty-lipperty-lip. He had offered to go ahead of Old Mr. Toad to warn Old Mr. Toad if he should see anything of Mr. Blacksnake. You see, Old Mr. Toad was most anxious to be in the Smiling Pool with his friends and relatives, so as to join in the great spring chorus. He had started once, but had returned in great fright, saying that he had seen Mr. Blacksnake.

Now, one of Peter Rabbit's hops is equal to a lot of Old Mr. Toad's hops, and it was no time at all before Peter was so far ahead that it was just as if Mr. Toad was alone. So Mr. Toad stopped. Yes, sir, Mr. Toad stopped. You see, Mr. Toad was being pulled two ways at once. Longing for the Smiling Pool was pulling him one way and fear was pulling him the other way. It is a most uncomfortable feeling to be pulled two ways at once. Mr. Toad would hop a step forward and stop. Then fear would grip him and he would hop a step backward.

"Oh, dear!" whimpered Old Mr. Toad. "What did Mr. Blacksnake have to come along this morning for? Why couldn't he have waited until tomorrow? Oh, dear! Peter Rabbit ought to know enough to wait for me. He knows I can't travel as fast as he can."

Meanwhile, heedless Peter Rabbit had scampered along, quite forgetful of the fact that Old Mr. Toad couldn't possibly keep up. Presently Peter came to an old leather strap that lay half hidden in the grass. He merely gave it a glance as he hopped over it. He had gone on several hops when a thought popped into his head that caused Peter to stop abruptly, sit up and look back. Then Peter began to chuckle. Yes, sir, Peter began to chuckle. "That was it," said he. "That was it. As sure as I can hop, that was it!"

"What was it?" demanded a voice quite unexpectedly.

Peter turned to see Johnny Chuck sitting up a few feet away.

"Do you see Mr. Blacksnake over there?" inquired Peter.

Johnny Chuck looked where Peter was pointing. "No," said he, "I don't see Mr. Blacksnake. I see an old strap—that is all."

Peter chuckled again. "Old Mr. Toad didn't see an old strap," said he. "Old Mr. Toad saw Mr. Blacksnake. It scared him most to death."

INSERT CUT HERE tRI

"Huh!" exclaimed Johnny Chuck. "Old Mr. Toad is too jumpy. He's always looking for Mr. Blacksnake and so he is always seeing him. I've discovered that if you are looking for trouble, you are pretty sure to find trouble. By the way, where is Old Mr. Toad?"

Then Peter realized how far ahead of Old Mr. Toad he was. "Oh," said he, "he's back there somewhere. I forgot he can't travel as fast as I can. I'll go back and tell the old fellow that he has nothing to fear."

So Peter hurried back. In a few minutes he came in sight of Old Mr. Toad. Old Mr. Toad took a hop forward, then took a hop backward. Peter sat still to watch for a minute. Forward, backward, forward, backward, hopped Old Mr. Toad. "I wonder if that is a new kind of dance?" thought Peter. Then he went forward and asked this of Old Mr. Toad.

"No," said Old Mr. Toad. "No, it isn't any kind of dance. I'm just trying to go two ways at once, and I can't seem to get either way."

Again Peter chuckled. "Perhaps I can help you," said he. "What you thought was Mr. Blacksnake was nothing but a black strap in the grass."

Old Mr. Toad's eyes brightened. "Thanks, Peter," said he, "you've helped a lot. Let's go."

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Aime J. Pain, of Norwich, have leased one of the apartments owned by Joseph O. Tellier on Merchants avenue and have moved there.

Among those graduating from the Connecticut State Trade school at Putnam last week was Wilfred Dugas, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Odilon Dugas, of Merchants avenue, who has been taking a course in electricity.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Durand have moved from South C street to the house at 12 South Third avenue.

Alphonse Viens has resigned his position with the spinning department of the Ponemah mills.

Mr. and Mrs. Sylva Collins and family have moved from South B street to a house on South Third avenue.

Detouring Through Coventry

Because of the condition of the state highway between Willimantic and Katsman's Corner incident to the reconstruction work, announcement is made by the New England Transportation company that commencing at once all Willimantic-Hartford coaches will operate via the Coventry route.

Effective Sunday, April 29, shuttle service will be scheduled between Andover and Bolton Notch connecting with Hartford coaches in each direction. This arrangement will continue until the new highway is completed.

Lieut. Streaman's Condition Improves

Gratifying improvement was noted Friday in the condition of Lieut. E. V. Streaman, commanding officer of the Groton state police barracks, who is seriously ill at his home, 26 Morse avenue, Groton. The popular police official is a victim of septic poisoning and his condition during the past few days has been such as to occasion grave alarm to relatives and friends.

Fined $100 in Waterford Court

Louis Freedman, a Hartford jeweler, was fined $25 on a reckless driving charge, $50 on a charge of driving an unregistered automobile and $25 for Connecticut operator's license when he was presented in Waterford town court Friday. Judgment was suspended on a charge of driving an automobile with defective brakes.

Freedman was arrested on April 29, after he had driven his automobile past a car in which were Lieut. Edward V. Streaman, and Officers Peter P. Busch and George Webber of the Groton barracks.

THERE is nothing quite like Bayer Aspirin for all sorts of aches and pains, but be sure it is genuine Bayer; that name must be on the package, and on every tablet. Bayer is genuine, and the word genuine—in red—is on every box. You can't go wrong if you will just look at the box when you buy it:

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

W. R. C. PRESENTED AMERICAN FLAG TO METHODIST CHURCH AT UNCASVILLE

Presentation of an American flag to Uncasville Methodist Episcopal church by Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps, No. 16, of this city, made an interesting event for the church Sunday evening at the exercises held in the Uncasville school house, where the congregation has been meeting since its church building was burned some time ago.

The presentation was carried out by several members of the corps who made the trip to Uncasville. To the inspiring music of Onward Christian Soldiers the color bearers of the corps entered followed by the President, Mrs. Inez N. Hill, and the patriotic instructor, Mrs. E. Grace Fowler, bearing the beautiful silk flag bordered with gold silk fringe. These members took their places on the platform, while the other members sat in the front. At the close of the hymn, Mrs. Fowler addressed Rev. Charles Smith, pastor of the church, and the members present. In part she said: I will try to give you a brief outline of the Woman's Relief corps which was organized in 1883 n Denver, Colo., and today has a membership of nearly 4,000, making us the largest patriotic organization in the world. The Woman's Relief corps is the pioneer in the teaching of patriotism and Americanization. Its members were the first to stress plans and carry them out with gifts, a flag in every school house, a flag in every church, a flag in every court. We were the first order with official committees, to attend the federal and county courts, where examinations of classes for naturalization of aliens take place, presenting each new citizen with a flag and a copy of the constitution. Since our organization in 1883 we have used our unity influence to make this a better country for ourselves and for the generation to come. United States flags float today over nearly one-tenth of the earth's dry land and one-twentieth of the whole people of the world give it proud allegiance.

The Woman's Relief corps has given nearly 8,000 flags to Sunday schools, so tonight it gives me great pleasure on behalf of Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps, No. 16, to present this beautiful flag to the Methodist Episcopal church of Uncasville.

Rev. Mr. Smith accepted the flag and in behalf of the church made a fitting response. Then the corps gave the flag salute, after which some of the Sunday school girls sang, Will There Be Any Stars In My Crown. Rev. Mr. Smith read a chapter from Ephesians, following this with a very interesting talk about the flag, speaking of the vast area over which it floats, and saying it floats over a religiously inclined people. He spoke also of the industrial world over which the stars and stripes wave. He said once in Rhode Island when giving an address on the flag some one asked why he didn't speak of other flags and in reply a man who had adopted America and our loved flag as his own said, "Why speak of others. This is the flag that gives me my bread and butter. This is the flag and country that makes me free." Then Mr. Smith read a poem entitled, Our Flag, after which he offered prayer and the meeting closed by singing A nerica.

EUGENE O'NELL'S WIFE DENIES DIVORCE RUMORS

Rumors that Eugene O'Neill, who went from the reportorial staff of the old New London Morning Telegraph to Broadway to become known as the foremost dramatist of the present day, would be divorced or legally separated from his wife, the former Agnes Boulton Burton, were definitely denied by the latter upon her arrival at New York Friday from Bermuda. O'Neill was in New London several weeks ago conferring with City Clerk Julian D. Moran, his representative, on plans for the disposition of New London property still held by him. After leaving New London he went to Europe and is now reported to be in Southern France. Mrs. O'Neill said Friday that she plans to rejoin him soon in London.

It was her only interview since Mr. O'Neill's departure. Those not in the know were told at that time he had gone to California. Following this absence, Mr. O'Neill's name became coupled in published reports with that of Carlotta Monterey, actress and former wife of Ralph Barton. Miss Monterey also went abroad about two months ago. It was because of these published reports that Mrs. O'Neill saw fit to clarify the situation Friday in what she called an "authorized interview."

Where Miss Monterey is, she said she did not know. But her husband, she explained, is touring with friends in France, preparing to start work on Dynamo, an unheralded O'Neill drama. He went abroad primarily, she said, because repairs were in progress at Spithead, their Bermuda place. There was nothing strange about a trip to Europe by her husband, she added. She had always wanted Mr. O'Neill to do this, but his dreams in the past had been centered on "going to China."

Miss Monterey has been married three times, once more than either Mrs. O'Neill or the playwright, each twice married. She had a role a few years ago in The Hairy Ape, and has appeared since in plays by other playwrights. Mrs. O'Neill said she "believed" Miss Monterey's part in The Hairy Ape, her husband's realistic drama, was a "small one only."

"I have no real objection to divorce—if Mr. O'Neill wanted one I would be the first to grant it. But that's not to be thought of. The idea of a divorce or separation is too absurd and due solely to gossip. Why, I haven't even got a lawyer."

The O'Neill's were married April 18, 1918. She was then Mrs. Agnes Boulton Burton, a daughter of Mrs. Cecil Boulton. The present Mrs. O'Neill has achieved no little fame herself as a writer of short stories.

Mr. O'Neill's first marriage was to Miss Kathleen Jenkins. They were divorced in 1912. The O'Neill's each have one child by their first marriages, as well as the girl and boy who accompanied their mother Friday on the steamship Bermuda.

RUMOR BRITAIN HAS SENT ANOTHER NOTE TO EGYPT

LONDON, April 29—(AP)—It is reported that Britain has presented a fresh note of protest to Egypt, but this report is so far unconfirmed. Credence is lent to the rumor, however, by word from Malta that part of the British fleet has been ordered to Alexandria.

R. C. PLAUT DESCRIBES AUDIENCE WITH POPE

The following letter has been received by Norwich friends from Rutherford C. Plaut, who is traveling in Europe:

Well, I have been to Rome or "Roma" as they call it here and I was amazed at its modernness, the great boulevards, the jolly sidewalk cafes, the whole town sitting at tables eating and drinking, the magnificent residences and hotels, theatres, shops, movies, promenading pretty girls, dashing Italian officers and whiskies and sodas, cocktails and champagne, the dancing and flirting—all the life of any big American city is in the ancient city of Rome. The biggest thing we did was to meet the pope. Of course you know we had letters from Bishop Nilan and Monsignor May, and also one from Father Keegan. With these letters, I went to the American college, where Father Bresnan of New York gave me the proper credentials for our party to have an audience with his holiness. Men have to wear evening clothes at high noon and women must wear a mantilla veil, and a high cut dress with long sleeves and skirt. Your invitation calls for 13 o'clock, which means one o'clock and such a ceremony! You drive to the vatican and are admitted at the pope's automobile entrance. You are pretty well scrutinized and your papers are examined, after which you walk up several flights of marble steps, through rooms with luxurious rugs, hangings, pictures, statuary, etc., until you are escorted into the audience chamber. There are several rooms, all filled with people, many of whom are priests, nuns and peers from all over the world, all awaiting the entrance of the pope. You kneel with other pilgrims in a row around the room. Everyone has rosaries or anything they want blessed and when all is ready his holiness enters and walks the full length and breadth of the room, putting out his hand, and all kiss his ring. He is accompanied by a guard in gold braid uniform. The other guards are the Swiss guards. Their uniform was designed by Michael Angelo and is gorgeously colored. The pope has a kind, beautiful face, looks great and smiles to everyone. He has a stocky physique and the appearance of an athlete. At one time he was a great mountain climber. As his holiness walked through the chamber he spoke to the priests and asked one woman where she was from, in a very beautiful German dialect. Before one realized it, he was out of the room we were in, which was the Leo XIII room and into the next room. How many rooms he went to or how many people he saw would be hard to estimate. There were ninety-one in our room and other rooms were much larger. We had special position, as we were in his ante room.

Another interesting experience was when we left the surface of the earth for a while and went down into the catacombs. You carry a candle, creep along narrow, winding passages and soon gaze upon the tombs of St. Peter and St. Paul, upon the graves of the early Christians and the caverns carved in the walls, in which they hid themselves during the persecution.

We saw the Forum, the ancient walls, the palace of Marguerite, the late queen mother, the king's palace, the balcony where Mussolini, the man of the hour, comes to address the people. We did not see him. He was on a visit to Milano. We saw the vatican again, the main sections of which have marvelous paintings, sculptures, books and the pope's personal gifts from the rulers of all nations. Then there is St. Peter's church, the largest cathedral in the world. In the wonderful Sistine chapel here we saw the great painting by Michael Angelo, "The History of Civilization", one of the masterpieces of the world. The following story is told of this painting. The cardinal of that period, upon seeing the picture, objected to certain nude figures. He ordered Michael Angelo back and commanded him to paint draperies over them. The great artist did so, but under protest, and, to express his indignation and contempt for the cardinal, he added another figure in the corner, upon the body of which he entwined a snake with the ears of an ass. The cardinal recognized the new face and body as his own and flew into a rage, but Michael Angelo, the great painter, sculptor, orator, poet and writer, stood too high with the crown and the people to be annoyed, so the painting remained and we see it today just as Michael Angelo left it. Also in this Sistine chapel is the most remarkable of all paintings—the great ceiling. The ceiling was painted by Michael Angelo also, and for five years he lay flat on his back painting it—a feat never attempted before or since. It is in the Sistine chapel that each pope takes his vow, and from here the traditonal little wisp of smoke rises to proclaim the balloting on a new pope.

Then you visit the Church of the Dominic, beneath the floor of which is preserved a tablet, said to have the footprints of Christ upon it, the Church of the Iron Chains, the wonderful St. Paul church, numerous fountains, lots of Chianta drinkers, plenty of spaghetti eating exhibitions, lots of views of St. Peter's dome, and, if I could only remember what I saw I would be writing all night. So off to Florence and then to Venice.

We read in a local paper today of the Lloyd Hall accident, so you see we are near but yet so far. We are all well and going good. Give my regards to all, and pass this letter along.

SHORT-CHANGING GOD IS TOUCHED UP BY PRIEST

In the course of his nearly fifteen years as an assistant pastor of St. Patrick's church Rev. Myles P. Galvin has had some interesting experiences and has come to know human nature pretty well. Making the weekly announcements from the pulpit at the 8 o'clock mass Sunday, he stated some facts which apply accurately to a body of church attendants in every denomination. These concerned the people who are square in meeting demands for money in every other matter, yet will dodge their responsibility when it comes the question of doing their share as a member of a church.

The upkeep of St. Patrick's with its 4,000 parishioners, is admirably accomplished, now that the renting of all pews has been given up. Persons entering the church—except the poor and the children of the Sunday school—are expected to put a dime in the basket. At the offertory, each is supposed to give at least a dime. Since the Sunday revenue does not cover the parish expenses, for church, rectory, convent and school, two means have been adopted annually to add to the treasury fund. Every June, when taking the parish census to secure spiritual data the priests are given the annual census offering. During each August the parish holds a big lawn festival. By these two extraordinary projects the parish coffers are expected to be replenished.

While making the suggestion that this year each parishioner donate at least one day's pay or salary to the census collection, Father Galvin touched up "the dollar limit" brand of Christians, whom God grants prosperity through 365 days of the year, yet who like to get by with a paltry dollar in this annual canvass. He referred to the list of contributors in 1927 which, when printed, showed mechanics, teachers, nurses, stenographers and others credited with $1. No mechanic, no nurse, no teacher, no stenographer works for a dollar a day, he declared. He was paying tribute to the elder members of the parish, who not only had helped build and equip the church but who are continuing to contribute generously toward its running expenses, in contrast to the young generation, who dodge their obligations by cheating God through this dollar contribution. Because the entire parish is free from debt, certain of the prudent ones take advantage of that fact and cut their donations to the minimum.

The day was the feast of the patronage of Saint Joseph, chosen from among all men by God Himself to be the guardian of His divine Son and of Mary the Mother of Jesus. The scriptural record of the important part which Joseph played in the scheme of Redemption was quoted, appointed by the Almighty as was this member of the great house of David protector of the two purest and two greatest Beings who ever lived in this world. Exemplar of the worthy head of the Christian home, St. Joseph's life was spent not alone in loving Jesus above all else, but in good deeds in His service. Father Galvin urged parents, in particular to copy the virtues of Joseph.

ANSWERS MARYLAND GOVERNOR ON PROHIBITION ARGUMENT

Dr. Albert Levitt, a New York attorney, who spoke Sunday night at the United Congregational church at a meeting under the auspices of the Women's Crusade of the W. C. T. U., answered four arguments advanced by Governor Ritchie of Maryland, who is opposed to prohibition and the eighteenth amendment.

The meeting opened with a short organ recital by Dr. J. Lawrence Erb, an anthem by the united choirs of the church and the Central Baptist church and prayer by Rev. Joseph Cooper, the new pastor of Trinity Methodist and scripture reading by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott.

The speaker was introduced by State Attorney Arthur M. Brown, who gave expression to his feeling that it was an honor to preside at this meeting and said that he believed when the American people understand a subject they will settle it right.

Dr. Levitt said he believed that Governor Ritchie is eminently honest and his argument is the highest point which has been reached by those who are opposed to prohibition. But Governor Ritchie's position, the speaker declared, is unsound in law, in fact and in policy.

As to the Maryland governor's first contention that the eighteenth amendment is an invasion of state's rights by the federal powers, Mr Levitt said there are no state's rights where the general welfare is concerned. The fundamental thing is that prohibition is of national importance and a national evil had to be met by national measures. Prohibition is not the only instance of a denial of personal liberty through the constitution, Mr. Levitt said, for there are at least four direct prohibitions upon the personal acts of an individual. Personal freedom is limited by possible danger to another or to the nation.

Governor Ritchie is flatly wrong when he claims that no majority is entitled to override the rights of the minority. Minorities are free to act within the general welfare of the entire nation. Neither minorities or majorities have any divine rights. Whatever is for the general good is to be done. Minorities must not be oppressed but majorities must rule as history has proven that to be the best political policy.

FREED FROM CRIMINAL LIABILITY IN ACCIDENT

By a finding made by Deputy Coroner John H. Barnes in the case of Robert McNeely of 508 Boswell avenue, a member of the school board and business agent for several union organizations, Mr. McNeely is exonerated from criminal liability on account of the death of 11-year old Harold Raucher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel I. Raucher of 35 Sturtevant avenue, who was fatally injured when he was struck by the McNeely automobile as Mr. McNeely was driving up Broadway on April 19, accompanied by Jacob R. Slosberg and Gilbert S. Raymond.

In his finding, Deputy Coroner Barnes says:

On April 19, 1928, at about the hour of 3.30 p. m. the said Robert McNeely was operating an automobile along Broadway and was preceeding in a northerly direction. There were two passengers in said auto with him at the time of the accident. As Mr. McNeely was operating said machine along said Broadway and on his right hand side of the street he noticed a group of young boys on his left, part on the sidewalk, part down on the bank and a few in the street. It appeared from the evidence that when the said McNeely had reached a point on said Broadway just across Broad street, one of the boys to wit; the said Harold Baucher started to run across Broadway on an oblique line toward the northeast and was trying to pick up a paper, or ball in the street. When the driver of the car noticed the young lad start to run across the said street, he turned his car to the left to avoid hitting him. When th young lad picked up the ball or paper instead of continuing across said Broadway to the right, the evidence discloses that he suddenly turned to his left and ran directly in front of the approaching car which had then reached a point just above Broad street and about ten feet north of the entrance of the front walk of the premises of Miss Williams' located on the right hand side of Broadway going north.

In view of the circumstances it was impossible for the said driver of the automobile to avoid striking the lad. The testimony of the driver of the auto (Mr. McNeely) was that he was operating his auto at the time of the accident at a rate of 20 miles an hour while the testimony of the other witnesses varied as to the rate of speed at the time in question from 25 to 35 miles an hour. However, after a careful examination of all the evidence before me I am unable to find any negligence on the part of the driver of said automobile.

I am therefore satisfied, and find that the death of the said Harold Raucher was not caused by the criminal act, omission or negligence of any other person or persons.

THREW MATCH INTO AUTO GASOLINE TANK

"Oh, I just wanted to see what would happen, was the answer given by Tony Lalima, son of Luigi Lalima, of 102 Chestnut street, in reply to a question asked by a member of the fire department following its response to an oral call at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon for a fire in an old discarded automobile parked in front of 68 Chestnut street. Squad A responded to the call, using three gallons of chemical to extinguish the blaze, which had spread from the automobile to an accumulation of rubbish nearby and threatened to set fire to buildings close by. The only damage was to the antiquated car.

Tony, in company with several lads of about his age, 13, was playing or aimlessly occupied in the vicinity of the automobile, when he conceived the idea of applying a lighted match to the gasoline in the partly filled tank. Lighting the match Tony hoisted it into the topless gas tank and the consequence was an explosion, which was heard over a wide area. Tony and his companions narrowly escaped serious injury, getting away just in time. Tony later told a member of the fire department that "I just got my head away in time," and exhibited a badly swollen hand. None of his companions was injured.

Wilbur F. Young, 30, president of a well known proprietary medicine manufacturing concern founded by his late father of the same name, died in Hamilton, Bermuda.

SO WEAK SHE COULDN'T WALK

Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Gretna, La.—"After my first child was born I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a run-down condition. I could not walk across my room at times, I was so weak. A friend induced me to take the Vegetable Compound. Since that time I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Herb Medicine and the Pills for Constipation, and I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I am a housekeeper and I am still taking the Vegetable Compound as a tonic to enable me to do my work."—MRS. E. F. VICKNAIR, 829 Hancock Street, Gretna, La.

To the Citizens of The City of Norwich

The week of April 30 to May 5, both inclusive, is designated as Clean Up Week in the City of Norwich. This action is taken to improve conditions within the City of Norwich. Residents are urged to clean up the lawns, back yards, and indeed all premises to them belonging, and the streets, highways and sidewalks adjoining their properties. Such universal action will result in lessening fire hazards, improve health conditions, and further beautify our already attractive municipality. It will also have a tendency to improve conditions here throughout the year. It will, by example and practice, cultivate habits of cleanliness and orderliness among the youth.

The hearty cooperation of all is asked for, and will be appreciated. Please phone 1565, Street Commissioner, and trucks will remove rubbish.
